Stuffings Stretch Meat

Stuffings in your favorite roast, make the meat flavor stretch away out, and add interest to the already favored food. But you need not buy a roast to make stuffing or dressing, we should call it, make the flavor go farther, and other forms of cereals may replace the stuffing too.

Meat loaf of course is a favorite recipe to make cereals make the meat go farther. Here's a recipe for meat loaf that uses good meat shredded wheat for flavor.

- #### MOIST MEAT LOAF
- 1 1/2 pounds bottom round steak, chopped
 - 2 small onions
 - 2 shredded wheat
 - 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
 - 2 teaspoons horseradish
 - 1/2 te a spoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 egg, beaten
 - 1 cup hot milk
 - 1 tablespoon butter

Grind together steak, onions, shredded wheat. Add seasonings, egg, and milk to which the butter has been added. Place in bread tin. Top with bacon strips if desired. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1 hour. Serves 6 generously.

Veal birds are another standby for stretching the meat quota. Cracker crumbs will give this a novel touch.

- #### VEAL BIRDS
- 3 tablespoons chopped onion
 - 3 tablespoons fat
 - 1 1/2 cups cracker crumbs
 - 1/4 cup finely chopped parsley
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon sage
 - 1 1/2 pounds veal steak
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 3/4 teaspoon paprika
 - 3 tablespoons fat
 - 3/4 cup boiling water

Saute onion in 3 tablespoons fat until onion is tender. Remove from heat and add cracker crumbs, parsley, pepper and sage. Mix well. Cut 1/4-inch steak in pieces. Place generous amount of dressing in each piece of meat. Roll tightly and fasten with toothpicks. Sprinkle with salt and roll in mixture of flour and paprika. Brown in hot fat; add hot water; cover tightly and cook slowly 1 hour or until tender. Serves 6.

Then there's a meat loaf that will use bran breakfast cereal for it's starch extender.

- #### MEAT LOAF WITH BRAN
- 1 cup bran
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1 pound ground beef
 - 1/2 pound ground pork
 - 3 tablespoons grated onion
 - 3 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 teaspoon horseradish
 - 1/2 teaspoon paprika
 - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 - 1 egg, beaten
 - 1/2 cup catsup

Pour milk over bran and let soak 5 minutes. Then add meat, onion, parsley, salt, pepper, horse radish, paprika, lemon juice and egg. Mix well. Pack in a greased loaf pan. Spread catsup over the top and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 1 hour. Serves 10.

Marine Chaplain Goes Through Everything With His Men; He's Their Friend, Adviser

(The following article was written by Sgt. Samuel Shaffer, Washington, DC, a marine corps combat correspondent, and distributed by The Associated Press.)

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Feb. 13—(Delayed) "Don't tell your troubles to me, boy. See the chaplain." These 10 words contain the most frequently voiced sentiment in the marine corps. They have been uttered in the trenches of France, the Nissen huts of Iceland, the jungles of Nicaragua and the Solomon islands. They were spoken when the leather-necks stormed the halls of Monleuma and the shores of Tripoli. The injunction to "see the chaplain" is the marine's way of humbling his nose at malicious circumstances. Let one of them complain about his chow, the unsympathetic treatment of his liberties, the unexpected deprivation of liberty when he has a date in town, and he will receive this unsympathetic response from his closest friend in the corps. But the fact remains that a surprising number of marines do go to the chaplain.

Typical of the chaplains on duty with marines is Lt. (jg) Gordon Y. Tollefson, USN, regimental chaplain for the unit stationed here. Only 28 years old, Chaplain Tollefson is of the same generation as the men to whom he preaches. When the men go out on a 20-mile hike and bivouac overnight in the jungle, the chaplain marches right alongside, weighted down like the others with a heavy pack. When the men complain of blisters, he is there to prove he's no exception as he nurses his aching feet.

Chaplain Tollefson is the son of a minister, the Rev. Sander Tollefson, pastor of the American Lutheran church at Huron SD. The chaplain, who was born in Forman, ND, preferred aviation to the ministry at first. He has a total of 485 flying hours, accumulated as a naval cadet and civilian pilot.

When he decided to follow in his father's footsteps and received an honorable discharge from the service, Chaplain Tollefson in June, 1941, was ordained in his father's church. He accepted a call to the Trinity Lutheran church at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, and was there nearly a year when he was commissioned a naval chaplain. Though he is married—his wife is the former Miss Helen M. Solland of Great Falls, Mont.—and the father of an infant son, the chaplain felt he could not remain behind while the men of his generation marched off to war.

"All but one of the 43 young men in my congregation left for the service," he said. "The majority of them had volunteered rather than wait for the draft. I am young and I felt the duty within me to be numbered among those going away, to face what they were going to face, and to minister to them as they would be in their churches at home."

"I also felt that the church at large cannot remain aloof nor apart from that experience which our young men are going through. We must talk their language when they come back, and to do that we must suffer the same discomforts and dangers. I wouldn't trade my experience for anything. It will mean a definite enrichment of my ministry when I return." The chaplain admits the sermons he preaches now are different from those at home. "I try to show the men that the word of God is practical, fitting into their every need. I tell them that christianity is a human affair." The fear of death has brought many men to the chaplain for guidance. "I tell them," he said, "that fear of dying springs from their uncertainty of the life beyond. Some try to suppress this anxiety by toughness, but soon realize its futility and come to me for aid. I tell them that the word of God is a definite source of what they are seeking, that struggling humanity can still go to that one source of strength."

There can be no permanent peace unless men of all lands can have truthful, unbiased news of each other which shall be freely available at the source to all who seek it there, wherever that may be. The flow of news must not be impeded. Those whose business it is to get from "BARRIERS DOWN" - by Kent Cooper
