Road Inspected—The bridge over Sardinia creek on the North Santiam highway, buttressed with logs since it was partially washed out by the winter's high water, will need extensive repairs, Market Road Engineer Oscar Cutler of the state highway department and County Engineer N. C. Hubbs reported Wednesday following an inspection tour over the highway as far as Detroit. The road, they said, was in good shape. The damage to the bridge was done while the county and state were maintaining that stretch of road on a 50-50 basis. Since that time the state has agreed to pay for upkeep work done there by the county. Who will pay for the bridge repairs is still a question.

Board Flays Fire Hazards

Increased Payments Talked; Hospitals Ask Wage Boosts

Criticism of fire hazards at the various flax processing plants in western Oregon was voiced at the state board of control meeting Wednesday, on the basis of findings by Leslie M. Scott, state treasurer, and Roy Mills, secretary of the board, on a recent inspection trip.

Mills said that due to scarcity of labor, crews at the flax plants were not able to remove the straw and chaff to a safe distance from the plants. Board members discussed the advisability of increasing the flax industry's rate of payment into the restoration fund, in view of these hazards. This cannot be done until June when the new law permitting variation of rates on the basis of risk goes into effect.

The board took under advisement requests by Supt. John C. Evans of the state hospital, Donald Ware of the eastern Oregon state hospital and H. G. Miller of Fairview home, that monthly salaries of attendants be increased as of March 1. Dr. Evans said his staff had been reduced by about 35, below the number authorized for the current biennium, due to resignations and inability to fill vacancies. He would tend to prefer a month's increase to prevent further losses and that the money was available because of the reduction in total number of employees.

It was explained that by matching approximately the pay scales of Washington and California, Oregon institutions of this type would be able to attract some experienced attendants who desire to move to the west coast.

Board members said they recognized the crisis faced by these institutions but Gov. Earl Snell said these increases would not solve the problem permanently, and suggested that the problem be studied in all its aspects.

Snell Makes State Dimout Area Official

Violators of dimout regulations, as outlined by military officials, are punishable in state or municipal courts, under a proclamation issued by Gov. Earl Snell here Wednesday, providing officially for the dimout area in western Oregon.

The proclamation was based on authority of the civilian defense act approved by the recent legislature. It follows the language of Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt's proclamations except for minor changes made necessary by local conditions.

Civilian defense coordinator Jerrold Owen called attention to the fact that executives of many industrial establishments have not yet applied for variances when necessary, as required by General DeWitt's proclamation.

Officials said recent inspection indicated flagrant violations of the dimout regulations in every county within the western dimout area.

A speed limit of 15 miles an hour, from one-half hour after sunset to one-half hour before sunrise, on highways visible from the sea, is provided in the proclamation, which also designates 250 beam candlepower for headlights traveling coastal roads in light-restricted areas.

The same restricted lighting areas and similar requirements as to illumination are included in the governor's proclamation as in General DeWitt's regulations.

Capitol Janitors Seek Wage Boost

Janitors employed in the state capitol buildings here have petitioned Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell, Jr., for a 20 per cent increase in wages. They now receive an average of $125 a month.

Farrell, by virtue of being secretary of state, is in charge of state capitol buildings and grounds.

Two Women Join WAAC; Recruiters Here Again Today

Responding to the urgent need in Oregon for 100 more WAACs by the end of March, two young women from Salem appeared before the traveling army recruiting board Wednesday, took examinations and were sworn in. The two are Vivian Bernice Fryer of 700 Stewart street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller Fryer of Woodburn, and Mona Johanna Skaug, 2004 Market street, daughter of Mrs. Dina Skaug. Both will await orders to their training school.

Miss Fryer has been employed six years, since her Seattle Pacific college days, as a stenographer at the state highway commission. Miss Johnson is employed by the West Coast Beet Seed company.

A number of young women called at the army recruiting office, second floor of the postoffice building, for information about joining officers, hopeful of signing up several more today, are to keep the office open all day and through the early night hours. In charge here are Lt. Donald C. Dodds, medical corps examining physician; Capt. Donald K. McDougall of the infantry, mental examiner; Auxiliary Miriam E. Feathers, supplying information; and Sgt. Ethel W. Senn, formerly in charge of the Salem recruiting office, assisting in transportation.

The unit will continue Friday to Corvallis for a two-day recruiting campaign at Oregon State college. Auxiliary Officers will address a mass meeting of Willamette university co-eds and women teachers at 12:45 p.m. today in Lausame hall. The talk is sponsored by Dean Olive M. Dahl. Students and teachers who enlist now will not be called for training until the end of the school year, recruiting officers stressed.
