

Production, Labor Talked

25% Increase of Food Needed, Mickey Tells Club

LINCOLN — A representative group attended the March meeting of the Lincoln Community club for which Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hammer and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Cooper were the committee on arrangements.

Mrs. R. W. Hammer presided as chairman at the business meeting when Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Williams were nominated as a committee for April.

The program numbers included a piano solo by Audrey Merrick; a two-act play, "When We Ride a Bicycle," by the primary grades; accordion selections by Lois Hammer; a patriotic play, "Stop That Rumer," by upper grades; song and march ending with flag salute by all of the school children with Mrs. L. I. Mickey directing school numbers; violin solo and encore by Ardon Shepard; a talk on victory gardens and community leaders by L. I. Mickey, local representative, who is one of a group including R. W. Hammer, Mrs. I. E. Merrick and Mrs. Lloyd Allen.

Mickey said in part, "County Agent W. C. Leth helped us to organize here. We have a different situation here than ever before because of war conditions. The civilian population, especially those in the country, will have to produce as much as possible. Twenty-five per cent more of all types of food will be needed than last year. We are asked," said Mickey, "to produce extensive farm gardens and conserve everything possible."

To make this easier, bulletins are issued by the government through the community leaders of the county on planting essential foodstuffs. Five different vegetables are stressed: potatoes, tomatoes, greens such as spinach, chard, peas, beans and yellow vegetables including carrots, pumpkin and squash. The speaker also gave a brief sketch of meat conserving possibilities on the farm.

Following Mickey's talk, a representative of the U. S. employment service, C. R. Wilson addressed the group on "Farm Labor." "The farm labor situation is a serious problem and a confusing one," stated Mr. Wilson. "It is hard to find men, as so many are in the war and in defense plants. This year, men in employment in the cities are being organized to do what they can at harvest time. In seasonal work such as harvesting berries, cherries, prunes, beans, peas, hops, etc., women's and children's assistance was invaluable. They did a splendid job last year and can be depended upon for this year's crops."

Mr. Wilson placed emphasis on the inestimable value and cooperation of the city and country school teachers who instill into their pupils the desire to help Uncle Sam by doing all they can to get crops harvested. The children get enthused and that is one way to reach their elders. Marion and Polk counties have a large labor supply if it can be reached successfully, he said in closing.

Swansons Are Hosts At Sunday Dinner

Gardeners Told No Need Treat Seed Potatoes

Treatment of seed potatoes for planting in home gardens is not so important as when plantings are made for commercial purposes and in most cases can be omitted entirely without danger, according to County Agent Robert E. Rieder. Some gardening advice published recently has raised doubt in the minds of a number of victory gardeners as to whether they can grow potatoes without treating the seed. If they use good seed to start with there is little to fear, says Rieder.

The latest home garden suggestions on potato growing just put out by E. R. Jackman, extension specialist in farm crops, and O. T. McWhorter, extension horticulturist, says that if a home gardener does want to treat a small amount of seed potatoes, a material known as semesan vel is much easier to use than the corrosive sublimate treatment used by commercial growers. Directions are on the container.

Potatoes grown from untreated seed may not be free from scab and rizoctonia as treated potatoes, but they will be edible and will yield as well. If seed potatoes are poor to start with, no amount of treatment will help much. Certified seed comes from fields that are practically free of disease.

Early potato varieties suggested for Oregon home gardeners are Bliss Triumph, Irish Cobbler, Early Rose, Earliest-of-All, and White Rose. Suggested late varieties are Burbank, Nettle Gem and Katahdin.

Whole small seed potatoes from certified stock are entirely satisfactory to use, while larger potatoes are cut so the pieces will weigh 1 1/2 to 2 ounces. The best plan is to cut them into blocky shapes, as these have the least amount of exposed cut surface.

The home gardener is limited in his choice of commercial fertilizer to the standard victory garden 3-8-7 mixture. This can be spread over the entire surface of the soil at the rate of four pounds to the square rod and worked in, or an ounce of fertilizer may be placed near but never against the seed piece at planting time. It is best to keep two or three inches to one side and preferably about an inch deeper than the seed piece.
