Vegetables Do Double Duty

An excellent source of greens are the tops of root vegetables. Local cooks must be on the lookout now for vegetable tops suitable for eating because new crops are soon to be coming in, and to throw away the tops is to waste edible greens.

Already turnips have appeared in market with good green tops, beets and other greens will be coming along soon. Eat the tops one day and the roots the next, or combine and eat together.

Wood will go to church on Easter, for there are hats made of wood, and clothing for women produced from wood, although it's a far cry from the original tree.

In the home we now find new paper drapes made from wood pulp, which are supposed to be hard to tell from natural wood, and that they are pressed, not woven and there are cellulose fibres which are made into a new type blanket, said to be inexpensive but practical. Carpets and furniture coverings of wood will soon appear in local stores, and even mattresses are now being made from some of the derivatives of wood.

Plywood has taken on a new importance, in our every day existence, there are rumors of plywood bathtubs of wonderful and fearful beauty. They are said to be in exquisitely subdued colors, to harmonize with over 25 wood articles in a dainty bathroom.

We are again becoming familiar with wooden cooking spoons, with wooden handles on other kitchen utensils, and wooden trays.

Shop windows show large assortments of gifts made of wood, and the gift stores display many others.

There's something sort of homey about wood, for after all it's very much in keeping with our rugged west, and we know how many tons of precious metal it's saving for more important things these war days.

Wood Plays Important Role

By MAXINE BUREN

We are back in the wooden age.

A few years ago everything in our households was of metal, it was really up to date, and then almost overnight we were using wood objects, formerly made of metal.

ALBANY—Elmer Ryan, 35, was fatally injured at 11:10 o'clock Thursday morning when the logging truck he was driving was hit by the second section of Southern Pacific passenger train 19 at the Geary street crossing in East Albany. Ryan was burned to death when the cab of his truck caught fire, as the truck was carried 70 feet by the impact before being shoved to the side of the railroad tracks.

County Coroner E. C. Fisher, Assistant Coroner John Summers, District Attorney Harlow Wenrich and state police were all investigating the accident, but as yet had not placed the blame.

Ryan, whose home address is 3114 Falway Drive, Portland, is said to have been logging for himself. He was coming into town with a load of three logs when the accident occurred.

Surviving is the widow and nine-year-old daughter at their home in Portland; also three sisters, Mrs. Elda Pease, Oakland; Mrs. Elsie Walters Oakland; and Mrs. Elma Alrick, Astoria; and two brothers, Otis with the US army at Fort Worden, Carl also with the US army at Salt Lake City, and William of Elsie, Ore.

The body is in charge of the Fisher Funeral Home, while funeral arrangements are pending.

Barred Worker Seeks Appeal

PORTLAND, April 23—(AP)—Attorneys for Verl J. Hilliard indicated Thursday that they might appeal Circuit Judge Earl C. Latourrette's dismissal of his suit against the Portland Boilermakers Union.

Hilliard, who had been employed on a crane at Albina Engine and Machine Works here, obtained an employment release and asked to be assigned to the company's conversion dock. A union agent refused to clear him, but offered to certify him for work in any other shipyard of this area.

The court ruled that the union business agent is the best judge of where workmen will best fit into the war effort.

Lindquist Hosts At Family Gathering

LIBERTY—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lindquist were hosts for a family gathering at their home Sunday. Mrs. Mary Pryor of Wyoming, and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pettit of Salem were guests for noon dinner.
