Interpreting The War News

By GLENN BABB
AP War Analyst for The Statesman

The United States and her allies are fighting two submarine wars and winning both. In the one in the Atlantic, Allied air forces, especially around New Guinea, and successfully, against Hitler's U-boats. In the other our own underwater flotillas are carrying devastation to Japan's limited shipping resources.

The trend of the battle of the Atlantic continues highly favorable, although the danger of greater losses during the long summer days remains. But since the subject was mentioned in this column two days ago further returns, all encouraging, have come in.

American shipyards delivered 1,782,000 deadweight tons of ships during May, an all time record that probably will stand only until the June tally is in. Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, of the maritime commission, said this was "quite a bit better" than four times the allies' shipping losses for the month.

Berlin's own accounts of the U-boats' May record put sinkings at only 380,000 tons, making it by the Germans' own admission one of the least successful months of the war.

A. V. Alexander, Britain's first lord of the admiralty, said yesterday that the killings of submarines during May set a new record and that during the last two months the number of U-boats in the Atlantic actually had decreased.

But against the daring, far-ranging, ruthless campaign waged by American submarines Japan is having no such success. They have carried the war right to her doorstep, into Tokyo bay and other of her chief harbors and to all the vital sea lanes through which the lifeblood of the empire she has seized must flow.

Furthermore, whereas we are replacing the U-boats' toll at a rate of four to one, there are strong indications that Japan's industrial capacity is utterly incapable of making good more than half her losses.

When the Japanese dream of a great overseas empire lies in ruins a major share of the credit must go to our submarine service. For although Japan aspires also to be a great continental power, it was as a maritime power that she challenged the United States and constitutes a menace to American well-being. She grabbed a great empire largely through a combination of sea and air power. Unless she can maintain the overseas communications routes to hold it together, to supply the armies that defend it and carry home the spoils to be turned into sinews of war, it must in the end fall apart.

That danger already faces her. The navy announced Tuesday that American submarines had sunk six more enemy cargo carriers, in addition to a destroyer, bringing to 169 the total of Japanese vessels downed since the Pacific war began. Allied air forces, especially around New Guinea, and the Solomons, have added several hundred thousand tons of shipping to the total.

The size and shape and durability of the plaque, if erected, will depend entirely upon how the public reacts to such an enterprise, depending upon the number of dollars contributed.

The committee favors the city library park as a permanent location for the plaque.

The following plans have been designated to receive contributions or votes:

Evenden's drug store, Woodburn Feed and Supply, Fred Hecker's Implement House, Tom Renn's pool hall, Kenneth McGrath's drug store on the highway and Elmer Matson's storage plant on the highway.

Woodburn to Erect Plaque

WOODBURN — The Woodburn honor roll committee for the armed forces met Friday night to discuss at length the possibility of erecting a plaque large enough to list the names of individuals who have gone from Woodburn and vicinity into any branch of the armed forces. There will be from 500 to 800 names with the committee attempting to avoid overlapping with other communities.

The following plans have been designated to receive contributions or votes:

Evenden's drug store, Woodburn Feed and Supply, Fred Hecker's Implement House, Tom Renn's pool hall, Kenneth McGrath's drug store on the highway and Elmer Matson's storage plant on the highway.

Rogers Builds Granary Addition, Adds Equipment

OAK POINT — Hugh Rogers is building a large addition onto his granary, putting in bins for storing grain, and adding more cleaning equipment and elevator for cleaning all kinds of grain. He plans on harvesting his grain in bulk this season and storing in his granary; doing away with sacks.

Rogers sowed quite an acreage to Canadian field peas for hay. These peas are blooming now and have a white blossom. They can also be threshed and are eligible for table use.

Willamette and common vetch is in bloom now and, where it is heavy, has fallen down due to the recent rains.

Attend 4H Classes

LYONS — Ruth Briles, Carroll Johnston and Roberta Reid left Tuesday for Corvallis where they will attend 4H summer school. Carroll and Roberta both received a half scholarship from the Santiam Valley grange and Ruth a half scholarship from the Lyons Women's club.

Heart Attack Fatal For Mrs. Galbraith

ALBANY — Mrs. Iva Staline Galbraith, 76, a resident of Linn county all her life, died at the family home here Sunday following a heart attack. Funeral services were held from the Fisher Funeral Home, Wednesday. Rev. T. W. Reed and Rev. Alan Banks officiated. Burial was in Riverside cemetery.

Born in Brownsville on May 9, 1876, Iva S. Templeton spent her early life in that city, where as a very young girl she joined the Presbyterian church. In recent years she had become a member of Interdenominational church.

On March 15, 1899, Miss Templeton was married to George E. Porter at Halsey. He died July 19, 1915. The couple adopted two children, both of whom are now dead. Following the death of her first husband, she married John Galbraith at Washluwa, Wash. At intervals, Mrs. Galbraith had lived in Sweet Home and in Washluwa, Wash., but the greater part of her life was spent in Albany.

Surviving are two half-sisters, Mrs. Anna J. Kirk of Halsey, and Mrs. Hattie B. Setters of Oakesdale, Wash. Her two brothers, Charles R. and William H. Templeton have been dead many years.

Fire Destroys Barn, Livestock at Woodburn

WOODBURN — The Woodburn fire department was called out Tuesday afternoon to fight a barn fire at the Kennedy place where the Elmer Halkinrude reside.

As Mrs. Halkinrude had attempted to save the four horses, two of which were saved, in the barn before she called the fire department, they were too late to save the barn. Besides the barn and two horses, some hay was lost.

Meeker Dumps Peas

PERRYDALE — Phil Meeker and his crew have been dusting peas in this vicinity the past week. R. L. Walker, who has a duster of his own, has been dusting his and some of his neighbors fields.

Valley Births

JEFFERSON — Mrs. Grace Thurston received word that she has become a great grandmother, upon the birth of an eight pound seven-ounce daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sedgwick of Portland. This is their first child, born May 23, at the home of the mother's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Skelton at Toledo. The baby has been named Linda Joy.
