Jap Food and Drink

In the cleanup of Attu our soldiers find that the Japs were well provisioned. Likewise in Tunisia the axis armies had ample stores of food and drink—and ammunition too for that matter. The rule seems to hold in all countries: give the fighting men the best the country has. And the Japs on Attu had plenty.

Here is an AP report of what Americans found in the Jap camp, most of the items "in the thousands of cases and the hundreds of barrels":

- Rice, cooked and uncooked.
- Oatmeal, which now is making very good meals for our soldiers.
- Canned Oriental oranges, which now is the first item our soldiers jump when they find a new ration dump.
- Literally tons of good potatoes, stored in rubberized sacks to keep them fresh.
- Delicious fresh carrots, which did not keep so well, but which help to make our GI stew more palatable.
- Delicious fresh onions, which the Japanese used as barracks decorations when they began to sprout in too great numbers to be used for food quickly.
- Thousands of cases of "salute" salmon, the same stuff which used to flood the West Coast markets in low price brackets; also thousands of cases of unlabeled salmon.
- Meat balls in cans. This, not savory to Americans, was the only meat found in quantity.
- Half a dozen varieties of dried fruits.
- Soybean cake by the ton.
- Kelp, for soup.
- Dried fish of various kinds.
- Tea, tea and more tea, and small quantities of coffee.

The Japs go in strong for vitamin pills. Every soldier had three or four large bottles of them—plus an assortment of remedies of various kinds. And saki—plenty of saki—bottles all over the beach—bottles in all the huts.

The foodstuffs are going to the American mess, and the saki, well, doubtless the soldiers will want to sample it, at least.

Coal Strike Ends

Once again, as in 1919, John L. Lewis has called off his strike, on government order. Then he told his men: "You can't strike against the government." His action now confirms that declaration. It stands as further recognition of the truth of the Coolidge declaration that no one can strike against the public safety anytime or anywhere, at the time of the Boston police strike. Faced with the direct, blunt order of the president, Lewis has yielded. But he did give the country an awful scare.

John L. Lewis has given labor its greatest disservice. Regardless of what concessions he may bring for his miners, the stirred-up wrath of the public will continue to vent itself against labor and labor unions for a long time to come. And he has done his country a great disservice, putting the interest of his group above the interest of his country—in wartime.

No one emerges with any credit from this mess: Not Lewis, of course. Not the president, who long was flouted; nor the labor board, which was ignored and defied until the president himself took command. Not Sec'y Ickes whose flirtation with Lewis, no matter how well intentioned, threatened to yield the principle at stake. And the public, of course, will wake up with higher coal costs. The miners? They will win higher wages at the cost of public esteem.

The lesson of the strike is that the monopoly power over labor must be broken or controlled.

Argentine Revolt

While it was generally understood that the Castillo pro-axis regime did not reflect the popular mind in the Argentine, it was hardly anticipated that a revolt would occur, especially since an election was scheduled for this year. The Argentine republic, too, has long enjoyed stability in its government, and freedom from the frequent revolutions that prevailed in other Latin-American countries. The ousting of Pres. Castillo, if the revolution succeeds, will bring the last of the American countries in line with the United Nations.

The benefits of the shift in power will be noteworthy. No longer will the axis have a listening post on this hemisphere. The Argentine can bring material aid to the allies, both economic and military.

Now when our attention ought to be engaged on the battle of Europe or the licking of the Japs the Dodgers and the Cards have to engage in another tight duel to attract public interest. Don't they know we've got to win the war and can't take time out now for swivel-chair strategy on baseball?

Ersatz has hit the drug trade, made necessary by curtailment of imports. Atabrine is a substitute for quinine, and demeter for morphine. Both are synthetics. If you want to prepare your own demeter, this is the mixture: 1-methyl, 4-phenyl, 1-piperidine, 4-carboxylic acid, ethyl ester hydrochloride.

Sen. Wagner, author of the Wagner act creating the national labor relations board, has introduced a bill to provide for "cradle-to-grave" security. He doesn't say where the coal is coming from to keep everyone warm.

The railroads have a slogan: "The railroads are the backbone of offense." Wouldn't "arteries" be more accurate; anatomically speaking?

We're going to ask the radio to loan us the whiz quiz kid to figure out our income tax, under the new stop-go plan.

Harry Wood, sometimes called "father of the comic strip," died the other day. Probably he didn't feel as badly about it as the inventors of the airplane.

Borneo has its head hunters; the USA its headline hunters. Both species are dangerous.

"Spare That Tree"

Ordinarily reports of starting a new industry warm the cockles of the heart; but when we read of a plant down in Coos county being set up to manufacture cut blocks for shipyard use out of myrtlewood we lift our eyebrows instead. These blocks are of 14 x 14 by five foot in dimension. It is easy to see that any extensive logging and milling of myrtle trees to obtain blocks for the ravenous maw of shipbuilding would quickly level the limited stand of such trees.

It has been a matter of state pride to refer to Oregon's myrtlewood as a unique Oregon product—only one other place growing myrtle trees, the holy land, and those of a different variety. So we would hate to see the lovely myrtle trees sacrificed for war unless it is absolutely necessary.

Perhaps the cut planned will not make serious inroads on the stand; but if it does other hardwoods should be substituted. We could spare the valley white oak much better. Tree conservationists would do well to examine the situation, lest we lose too many of this rare, strictly native, tree.

The famous "Woodman, spare that tree" may need to be invoked to save the species.

The army and navy are calling for bugles for use in foreign sectors. Any chance to slip in a few saxophones with their mournful gurgles?

Mussolini tells his fascist associates he will stay "until the end." It looks as though he wouldn't have long to wait.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON, June 3—Is Hitler at the end of his fighting rope? Is the big break in the war in Europe a matter of weeks or months, instead of promised years?

New portents raise three questions now more seriously than ever before. The German radio, for instance, is bleating a new tune lately—claiming the speechless Mr. Hitler need not have an offensive this summer in Russia after all, that the reich has switched to the defensive completely, that we, the enemy, must attack.

The Swedish correspondents in Germany have been reporting also along that new line for the past week, and a Lt. Col. Kurt Dietmar was heard broadcasting from Berlin that nazi blitz-warfare was over and Hitler was switching to the defensive on all fronts.

If you could pin these facts down as a true indication of nazi intentions, they would comprise a development as decisive as the fall of Tunisia.

Only a few weeks ago, Hitler in person was blatantly advertising to the German people what he would do to Russia in his next offensive this summer. He was accumulating men, planes and material for it, he said. If his official radio spokesmen are now correct, he has failed.

All through the long winter months, he likewise kept a bridgehead in the Caucasus at heavy expense in lives and guns, solely as an offensive threat, to again try for the oil he failed to reach last year.

Similarly, his preparations along the northern front have had an offensive character. The way he has moved his army about this spring suggested clearly he would strike at Moscow, heart of Soviet power.

The theory that he has given up hope of holding any initiative anywhere can now be sustained by one other significant development. He kept pushing men and material into the lost cause in Tunisia right up to the very end. There is reason to believe he wanted to hold there until July, so he would be free of pressure on that front to organize his summer Russian campaign. This loss of Tunisia two months ahead of his expectations may well have upset his Russian calculations.

There are other good reasons for detecting a major internal German defeat behind the Berlin radio's new propaganda line. Swiss and Swedish correspondents speak of disruption of nazi industry due to recent bombings.

One has reported that normal execution of nazi plans is no longer possible. Sub warfare—last offensive stroke of nazi power—is reported to have been broken definitely (by War Mobilizer Byrnes).

For the present, this vital apparent turn of affairs must be held under a question mark. But unless Germany shows an offensive in Russia by mid-June, it will be accepted everywhere as a conclusive fact, which heralded the final turn of the war.

The revolutionary curtailment of eastern gas supplies (revolutionary as far as transportation is concerned) is accepted everywhere here as a move to build up supplies at European jumping-off places for the coming invasion.

Certainly all the announced non-military excuses have evaporated. The pipeline and railroad food breaks were mended long before the new order cutting the value of coupons to 2 1/2 gallons.

It is probably true that officials have not efficiently managed eastern distribution of what is left from these new military necessities. Authorities connected with the industry have noted that every time a real famine develops, the government finds gas somewhere.

True also, the mismanagement should bring something like a Baruch committee investigation of the subject, as was done with rubber. The American Automobile association has recommended this, but the suggestion has gained little headway, because most authorities hope or suspect the need for gas in Europe may diminish before such a committee could report.

WISDOM

It would be interesting to see if one could find as much political wisdom in the entire 1942 Congressional Record as in Madam Chiang Kai-Shek's tiny religious volume, "I Confess My Faith."—Rev. L. H. Walls in letter to New York Times.
