

Cherry Picking
In Full Swing

Mexican Laborers
Proving Boon
In Some Areas

FAIRVIEW—Charles C. Wright began cherry picking Tuesday with 76 Mexican laborers doing the work. Twenty five more, who are employed in smaller cherry orchards, will augment the number as soon as their present work is finished.

HOPEWELL—Picking cherries is underway at the Fred Kirkwood 26-acre orchard. Mexican laborers are assisting in the picking. When the harvest is finished in the Kirkwood orchard, others are awaiting pickers.

ELDRIDGE—Oliver Reubens has started harvesting his crop of Royal Anne cherries. A few were ruined by the rains, he reports.

Mrs. Nolan is employed at the Woodburn cannery, driving there each day and taking a carload of other workers with her, including Miss Evelyn Hannegan, Miss Talitha Magel, Miss Gertrude Eder, Miss Emma Eder, Miss Elinor Brown and Miss Shirley Brown.

GRAND ISLAND—Worth Wiley has completed the Blue Bantam and Gardus early pea marketing in his one and a half acre fields and five people are busy hoeing in corn and melon fields. Nine women and girls are thinning Rochester and Golden Jubilee peaches at the Morton Tompkins orchard.

Haying has been resumed after several days suspension here because of showers.

Fifty Mexican laborers who arrived at the labor camp Sunday worked here Monday. Half were hoeing the 20 acres of sweet corn at the George Asher ranch while the other 25 weeded table beets for Dale Fowler. This consignment of workers was engaged for harvesting in Kansas but at the last minute the hallmaster there effected a change of work to Oregon crop centers. Asher and Fowler both were pleased with their first experience with the Mexican laborers, they reported.

Shirley Sees Welders Work

Admiral Vickery and Shirley Temple spur shipyard workers along in the vital job they are doing at the California Shipbuilding Corporation yards at Los Angeles. The admiral, Howard L. Vickery, vice-chairman of the US maritime commission, went to the yards to speed the work of building ships, while Shirley Temple went down to the yards to entertain the workers at noontime. The 15-year-old screen star is pictured inspecting the work being done by women welders at the yard. (Left to right) Shirley Temple, Vera Haverfield and Myrtle Lee Richardson.—IEN photo.

Bodine Rite
Held, Albany

ALBANY—Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah Adeline Bodine, 78, who died at her home here Saturday, were held Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock from the Fortmiller Funeral Home. Burial was in Riverside.

Born in Corvallis on March 8, 1865, she had spent her entire life in that city and in Albany. She was married to W. A. Bodine in Albany on January 27, 1886. Mr. Bodine died in 1919.

Surviving are the following children: Daniel of Beaverton, Mrs. Ruth L. Burkhart and Mrs. Verne H. Hite of Albany, Mrs. Margaret L. Saffley of Eugene, Mrs. Naomi Hall of Marshfield, and Mrs. Addie E. Rickart of Corvallis. There are also nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren surviving.

Tibbett Invents
Calf Dehorner

One of the most practical methods of dehorning young calves that has come to the attention of the state department of agriculture veterinarians is a hot iron which looks like an old-fashioned soldering iron except that the heat carrying part is cut off square and has a depression or cap in the end that will fit over the tiny horn point or center. The device was developed by Jack Tibbett, well-known rancher of the Innaha district in Wallowa county.

This dehorner rides the horn follicle so the burn is applied immediately over the forming horn and around the horn-producing tissue on the calf's poll or head. The horn follicle will drop or slough out in a few days and the poll will heal much as occurs when a fire brand is applied.

The hot-iron dehorner is generally used before the calf is three weeks old. Two horns may be treated with one heating if an iron about an inch thick tapered at the contact end and about five inches long is used.

Majority of the beef and dairy cattle breeders in the state practice dehorning as a matter of safety to their stock and ranch personnel.

UNION HILL—The Union Hill juvenile grange and several grange members were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Orlo Humphreys and Robert Saturday night.

Games were played on the lawn until a late hour when waffles, buns and other refreshments were served. Mrs. Marion Fisher assisted the hostess with the serving. About 85 guests were present.

Planners Study
City Zoning

Burton Reports Clean
Up of Mill; Pool
Opening Delayed

SILVERTON—Silverton's new proposed zoning ordinance occupied the time of the Silverton planning commission at its June meeting held Monday night at the city hall and presided over by Lowell E. Brown. The commission finished its preliminary work on the ordinance, and voted to recommend its passage to the city council. A public hearing will be held later, if the city council adopts the ordinance.

E. K. Burton, city manager, and secretary for the commission, reported that some progress was being made in cleaning up the old Fischer Flouring Mill property. Progress, with the present shortage of labor, is of necessity slow, said Mr. Burton.

Mr. Burton also reported that a delay in opening the swimming pool had occurred because a recently installed boiler, to replace an old stove, had failed to pass the inspectors. A small welding patch called the inspectors to report the boiler unfit for use in the swimming pool connection. However, it was explained the boiler would be of considerable use to some private person and would be sold for this purpose. The old stove will be reinstalled for the summer, it was thought, but the definite day for opening the pool had not yet been announced.

A communication, addressed to Mayor Reber Allen, from the post-war readjustment and development association, was also read and placed on file. This communication suggested that cities make plans and blueprints for after-war projects when labor and materials again will be available.

In every department from Beer Blender to delivery trucks, only Modern, Sanitary equipment is used in producing Master-Bread.

Hewett Rite
Set Today

MONMOUTH—Mrs. Una Alice Hewett, a native daughter and life long resident of Folk county, passed away in the Deaconess hospital in Salem at 4:45 a. m. Tuesday. The deceased was the daughter of L. L. Hannum and Mary Ritner Hannum, who were members of well known early pioneer families and she was born at Pedee, November 12, 1890. After receiving her education and growing to young womanhood she was united in marriage to M. W. "Bill" Jones. Following their marriage they lived at Pedee until 24 years ago when they moved to Monmouth where Mr. Jones passed away in 1929. In 1931 she was married to Henry J. Hewett and since that time they have continued to reside in Monmouth.

Mrs. Hewett had been an active member of the Monmouth Christian church for many years and was also a faithful member of the Rebekah lodge and the Neighbors of Woodcraft. She had been in failing health for several years and her condition had gradually grown more serious during the past few weeks. Besides her husband she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna Harley of Yamhill.

Funeral services, under the direction of the Keeney Funeral Home of Corvallis, will be held in the Christian church at Monmouth, Thursday at 10 a. m., with Rev. Willard A. Ekins, pastor of the church, officiating and interment will be in the family plot in the Evergreen Memorial park at McMinnville.

Observe Rites on Ship Return

Flying her "homeward bound" pennant, the cruiser of the United States fleet returns to a west coast port after many active months in the Pacific zone. The 222-foot ship of red and white bunting shown is shorter than naval tradition would have it, since it should contain one foot of material for each member of the crew. Every sailor aboard, however, will get a piece of the pennant.—IEN photo.

Battling 'Blaze' on Simulated Warcraft

More Island seamen's school—General view of the simulated ship built on dry land at California's Mare Island navy yard for the purpose of training navy personnel in the art of fighting oil and gasoline fires at sea. Divided into sections which represent hangar, wardroom and engine room of a modern naval vessel, the structure is flooded with burning oil and gasoline and the men proceed to extinguish the fires in a matter of minutes. They do not wear masks in the way of protective clothing. Some days there are 500 fires set in this fashion for crew rounds to tackle with siphons.—IEN photo.
