Cattlemen Tell of Fern Poisoning in Nearby Counties

A caution to cattle owners that some cattle are experiencing so-called fern poisoning, which may be confused with anthrax because symptoms are similar, is given by the state department of agriculture. Fern poisoning has been reported in recent weeks in Lane, Linn, Benton, Clackamas and some parts of Multnomah counties. A few cases involving horses have been reported from Polk county.

As long as cattle have other feed, they are not apt to eat ferns and so one of the best remedies is to keep cattle moving about if there is sufficient pasturage. Supplementary feeding with other bulky feed, such as clean hay, at the time when pasture is short also will reduce the chances for this trouble.

Symptoms of fern poisoning are described as follows: sudden illness, an extremely high temperature, difficult breathing, salivation, nasal bleeding, hemorrhages of various organs and fever rash of the visible mucosae.

Ed B. Stolle, chief observer in Mt. Angel, reported that Otto Oswald, who was seriously hurt by a falling light pole two weeks ago, was brought home from the Salem hospital but is still in casts and will be pleased to receive the visits of the business men. Dallas Plans Youth Center

Recreation Sought As Diversion From Delinquency

DALLAS—Representatives of various organizations of Dallas gathered at the chamber of commerce Monday night to discuss the ways and means of providing recreation for the youth of the community.

Mr. Ivan Warner presented the subject and called upon those present to give their views. Mrs. Conrad Murry opened the discussion by stating that war might be termed delinquency among nations brought about by the failure of those in power not making provision for the comfort of the people. And as a comparison but on a smaller scale the delinquency of youth of smaller towns is brought about by the parents and community at large not providing wholesome recreation.

Vic Waters reviewed the skafing program carried on during the school year and stated that plans are being made to continue the same when school opens. Reports show that an average of 42 attended, that the case for the keeping of valuables was ready to be placed at the park and that a caretaker had been secured for the remainder of the season.

Mr. Warner told of projects that are being inaugurated at Oregon City and Independence for the entertainment of the youth. When asked as to what kind of recreation the young people would prefer, Helen McEstredge, Vivian Richardson and Bob Dorenhecker, representatives of student body, agreed that some place where they could drop in and chat while drinking a coke would be the most satisfactory solution to the problem.

J. A. Inglis was appointed temporary chairman, and he, with the three representatives of the student body, will visit Oregon City and Independence within the next three weeks, when another meeting will be called and an advisory board formulated.
