M. G. VanCleve On Crew of Missing Sub

Official announcement that the submarine USS Pickrel is missing, released this week by the navy, makes it permissible to reveal that Merrill Gragg VanCleve, 24, torpedoman second class, whose wife lives at 2054 North Church street, was a member of the Pickrel's crew. She received a telegram June 4 stating that her husband was missing.

This was the second submarine on which VanCleve had served since enlisting in the navy June 10, 1939. He was on the Pickrel at Manila at the time of the first bombing there, and during the subsequent retreat down the coast of Asia until the fleet reached Australia.

About a year ago the submarine returned to a west coast port for overhauling and at that time Merrill came home on leave and was married to Miss Alice Tucker. They lived in Berkeley, Calif., until January 1, 1943, when he returned to active duty.

Merrill VanCleve was born March 4, 1919, at Coquille, Ore., but spent most of his life in Salem and vicinity. He was a graduate of Aumsville high school, where he was an honor student, and attended Willamette university before his enlistment. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. VanCleve, reside at Aumsville and his grandmother, Mrs. Beatrice Merrill, lives at 110 Ratcliff drive, Salem.

MERRILL VANCLEVE

There are also two brothers, David, US army, and Kenneth of Aumsville.

No idea as to where the Pickrel met mishap was given, but it is presumed that it was in far eastern waters, where United States submarines have been accounting for large numbers of Japanese ships. It is known that the Pickrel was on at least one of these patrols with noteworthy success, and may have returned to continue the raiding of the Japanese coast.

Pedestrian Deaths 39 for Half Year

For the first half of 1943 pedestrian fatalities resulting from traffic accidents totaled 39 as against 68 for the entire previous

The secretary of state warned both motor vehicle drivers and pedestrians about entering the military maneuver area in central Oregon. He urged motorists not to drive through this area at night.

Your Old JEWELRY TRINKETS Are "Wampum" to Our Boys in the South Seas

Into the dank, treacherous, fever infested jungles of the South Seas our armed forces are waging a dual battle . . . against the Japs and against the elements. The help of the natives is essential to the success of this mission. Money means little or nothing to these people . . . but a glittery trinket of any kind will win the natives' friendship and help in transporting supplies . . . in providing food . . . in moving the wounded back for medical care. As you finish reading this message, go through your old discarded costume jewelry and bring it or send it to Stevens & Son. It will be turned over to the government for distribution where it may quite feasibly be the means of saving some boys' life . . . could actually mean the winning of a battle.
