Don't Look Now . .

but . . . vacationing isn't what it used to be, what with worrying about every drop of gasoline that trickles into the carburetor. But you can justify a trip to the coast by coming home with a bucketful of huckleberries and a $4 tuna can.

Anonymous . . . they prefer to remain, but here is the schedule of a typically patriotic family, which used to enjoy leisure but finds little time now for play. The mother rises early, sees her younger daughter off at 6:30 with a platoon to the bean fields. The mother leaves at 7:45 three days of the week for her job of packing celery for the Labish growers. The white collar workers in the family, the father and elder daughter, leave for his office and her job at the bank later. The mother spends two more days of the week at the ration board and tries to catch up on her home work the sixth and seventh days in the week.

Restricted enthusiasm . . . We heard of a teacher-platoon leader who blows her whistle just as truck gets into the city limits and orders her charges to cease singing while in town. It seems to us that if youngsters can still sing after hours in the bean fields, the citizens of Salem are entitled to hear about it. It isn't easy to give up a whole vacation to supervised work. The children deserve all the fun they can get out of it.

Needle in a haystack . . . had nothing on the 40-acre field we flipped a sack needle into. Sewing grain sacks on a combine one day during our vacation, we lost the needle overboard, dove into the tall stubble and retrieved it—just as if we made a hobby of picking needles out of grain fields. Try it sometime, it's something to boast about.

Hole in one . . . Every now and then we meet some interesting personality. Our latest acquaintance is a pig that objects to being fed anything but doughnuts and milk.
