Alaskan Labor Sought—Interviewing men to work on the Alaska military highway through the Yukon territory and in the construction camps housing workers, D. H. Brown, personnel supervisor for Dowell Construction company set up temporary headquarters in Salem on Tuesday at the US Employment service offices, Ferry and Cottage streets. He plans to continue the interviewing to mid afternoon today. Sought are men from 18 to 60 years of age, who can get certificates of availability from non-essential jobs now held, and who can fill posts as carpenters, heavy duty truck drivers, flunkies, camp attendants, yard men, construction equipment mechanics and helpers, Brown said Tuesday.

Kells Daughter Here—Mrs. Harley B. Hiestand (Margaret A. Kells) and small son, Harley Kells Hiestand, arrived in Salem on Monday from their home in Indianapolis to spend a two-week vacation with Mrs. Hiestand's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kells. Although she had been informed that her father was ill, Mrs. Hiestand was surprised to find him still hospitalized, she said, upon her arrival here. Kells, general secretary for the Salem YMCA, probably will be removed to his home later this week, members of his family believe.

'B' Trucks To Get Recaps

"List B" trucks—those generally classed as not directly essential to the war effort—are now eligible for tire recapping service and new tubes, Richard G. Montgomery, OPA district director, announced Tuesday. This applies to all "list B" trucks, used for any purpose whatsoever.

The amendment, effective September 2, relieves local war price and rationing boards of the responsibility for investigating the essentiality of operations of "list B" trucks within local communities.

"Although this is an improvement insofar as making recapping material available to this class of trucks, the acute shortage of tires does not permit allotment of replacement tires," Montgomery emphasized.

"These trucks," he explained, "are in the class generally described as not directly essential to the war effort but nevertheless in most cases are important to the life of the community in which they are operated. Direct consumer deliveries of bread, groceries, laundry, etc., in which services such trucks are used, as well as wholesale deliveries in the same categories, are considered by OPA to be essential to the community."

Rural Bond Drive Forming

Organization of the rural area around Salem for the Third War Loan is progressing, reported Charles A. Sprague, in charge of the work, Tuesday. Last night a meeting at Middle Grove school was held by the local workers who will conduct the canvass. Theo. Kuenzi and Mrs. Paul Bassett are the community leaders.

Monday night a meeting was held at the Haystack school with 15 in attendance. Oscar Noren and Mrs. Albert Stettler are leaders in charge of the campaign.

The plan, Sprague stated, is to have solicitors visit every family in the district. Those living in the community should subscribe through their local leaders so the district will get credit for the sale.

Other meetings will be held in various districts. Tonight a meeting is scheduled for Swegle school. John S. Marshall and Mrs. Earl Huckstep are leaders for the community.

Labor Council Picnic Monday

The Labor day picnic, big event in days before the jaunt to the Oregon coast from Salem became a simple matter of gasoline and minutes, is slated for a comeback next Monday, declare members of the Salem Trades and Labor council arranging the event for next Monday at Hazel Green park.

No charge is to be made for admission to the park or for coffee to go with the picnic luncheon. Ted Amend, secretary of the council and member of the committee, said Tuesday night following a committee session.

Dancing to the music of the Oregonians is to be one of the attractions for the event.

Used Farm Items Get Ceilings

Used hay loaders, side delivery rakes and manure spreaders are added today by the OPA to the list of used farm equipment items which when sold by any person, such as farmers or auctioneers, are under specific price control. Reports to OPA indicated prices for the three items had become inflationary.

The maximum prices for the three items will be determined in the same manner as are ceilings for used equipment already covered; that is, 85 per cent of the price of the machine when new if the equipment is less than one year old, and 70 per cent of the price of the item when new if the equipment is one year old or more. Other items covered by the regulation are wire bale ties sold in lots of less than 2500 pounds, irrigation equipment, (except home lawn sprinklers), logging sleds, logging wagons, and portable, prefabricated poultry houses and hog houses.

Notary Officials to Meet Here

Presidents and secretaries of Notary clubs in this district will hold a conference in Salem on Sept. 9th. Plans will be in charge of District Governor Robert Cheyne.

'Surrender Now,' FDR Warns Axis Leaders

President Franklin D. Roosevelt told the people of Canada in his historic Ottawa broadcast of August 25 that if Hitler and his generals had attended the Quebec conference they would have realized that "surrender would pay them better now than later." Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada (pictured at Roosevelt's right), hailed the American president as "undoubted champion of the rights of free men and a mighty leader of the forces of freedom in a world at war." ### Public to Join in Honoring Lt. Adair at Camp Dedication

CAMP ADAIR, Ore., Aug. 31, 1943.—Citizens of Oregon, many of whom will be here for the first time since this installation was started more than a year ago, will join with thousands of officers and soldiers next Saturday to pay homage to the gallant hero for whom this post was named, Lieutenant Henry Rodney Adair.

Feature of the day of military events will be the official presentation of the sabre, revolver, spurs, hat and bridle carried by Lt. Adair before he met his death, fighting to the last against overwhelming odds, in Mexico in 1916. The presentation will be made by W. M. Adair, of Wheeler, brother of the lieutenant, at formal retreat, and receiving the relics will be Colonel Gordon H. McCoy, post commander.

Special passes, which in themselves will be fitting mementos of the occasion, will be presented to all civilians who come for the event. The day will officially begin at 10 a. m., with a display of modern warfare weapons near the field house. From that time on military personnel will be hosts at "open house" throughout the camp and civilians will be guided through the huge bakery, laundry, ordnance shops, recreational facilities and other sections of the camp.

At 2:30 p. m. the post band will be heard in concert on the parade grounds. This will be followed by formal guard mount at 3:30. The formal retreat and review will take place at 5 p. m., when presentation of the relics will be made. In the evening civilians may be guests at service club and other restaurants on the post, so visitors may spend as much of the day here as they wish.

The entire event will be regarded as the official dedication of the post as "Camp Adair." The entire Oregon Congressional delegation, of whom several, including Senator Rufus Holman, Congressman James W. Mott, Harris Ellsworth, and Homer Angell are expected to be present, has been invited. A number of prominent state officials, including Governor Earl Snell, Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell, Jr., and Leslie Scott, treasurer, will also be here. Mayors, City officials and prominent civic leaders from all parts of Oregon have signified their intentions of coming.

No military installation in the United States was ever more aptly named than Camp Adair, it is pointed out. Not only is Lt. Adair regarded as one of the outstanding military heroes of all time, but he is strictly an Oregon personage, a son of early Oregon pioneers. He was born in Clatsop county, educated largely by his brilliant mother, attended school at Bishop Scott academy in Portland and Astoria high school, and was appointed to West Point from this state.

Lt. Adair's father, Samuel Dickenson Adair, came to Oregon with

Ernest Wilson Visits Salem

Ernest Wilson, large-scale candy manufacturer and cafe owner in California, was in Salem early this week visiting old friends. He spent his boyhood here, leaving about 40 years ago. Friends still living in this vicinity include Sen. Charles L. McNary and Murray Wade. In Portland he had a reunion with Phil Metcalf, Chester Murphy and Clarence Bishop, all formerly of Salem.

Wilson is head of a company which manufactures candies sold under the slogan "the candy with the college education." Three corporations are involved in the operations of Wilson and his sons which include restaurants in Burlingame, Palo Alto, Sacramento and Fresno, in addition to the manufactory and candy store in San Francisco.
