That another $20,000,000 would be appropriated by congress for "prenatal care, delivery of the servicemen's child and subsequent nursing care for the mother" but that none of this would be available to army wives in Oregon was brought out by the reading of clippings from Oregon an out-of-state newspapers at the regular meeting of the Tagalongs at the YWCA Wednesday night. A deadlock between three plans in Oregon seems to be holding back federal allotments. It was reported; namely, that of the children's bureau of the United States department of labor, which has been accepted by 42 states, that of the Oregon State Medical society, and that of the Oregon state board of health. Information regarding other sources of maternity aid will be presented to the club at the next meeting in answers to letters sent out by Mrs. H. R. Anthony, USO adviser.

Mrs. William Cohen, secretary, presided. An enthusiastic report was given of the USO trip to the Eyerly ranch Sunday and those who were unable to attend were urged to go at the next opportunity, which will be Sunday, Oct. 3. Mrs. A. J. Rahn was the visiting guest, entertaining the members during the social hour following the business session.

A new member was Mrs. John McAteer of Boston, Mass. Hostesses were Mrs. Velma Franks, Jr., and Mrs. Verne Wallin.

Club Discusses Finances

The tortillas, the Middle American women make them, would be much too difficult for us to duplicate. They are made from corn meal, stone ground to exactly the right texture, the dough then being deftly patted and flipped to a thin cake by hand and cooked expertly on soapstone griddles without even a smidgin of grease.

From the northern part of Mexico comes a recipe using flour instead of stone ground corn meal, making it possible for us to serve quite a creditable version of the enchilada. The traditional fillings and sauce are used to give the dish its authentic Middle American touch.

ENCHILADAS
1 cup chopped left-over lamb
2 cups Mexican sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
6 tortillas

Mix lamb thoroughly with $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of the sauce. Season well with additional salt and pepper. Spread on tortillas and roll up, fastening with toothpicks if necessary. Arrange side by side in shallow baking dish and pour over the remaining sauce. Reheat in a quick oven, 450 degrees until bubbling hot, about 25 minutes. Sprinkle with a little grated cheese before heating, if liked. Garnish with chopped parsley. Serves six.

MEXICAN SAUCE
2 onions, minced
3 tablespoons shortening
3 tomatoes, chopped
1 green pepper, minced
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
pepper

1 chicken bouillon cube
1 cup water
Melt shortening, add onion and cook gently until soft. Add rest of ingredients and simmer covered for 45 minutes.

TORTILLAS
1 cup flour
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup milk

Mix eggs with flour and salt. Add milk gradually and beat vigorously with rotary egg beater. The batter should be very thin and smooth. Have a small frying pan hot and greased lightly. Pour in sufficient batter to just cover the bottom of the pan and cook over medium heat, lifting the edges of the pancake with a spatula, allowing any liquid batter to run underneath, and shaking the pan to prevent sticking.

When the underside is lightly browned and the top set, flip over the pancake and brown the other side. Repeat process until the batter is used up, stacking the finished pancakes in a napkin to keep warm and soft. Makes six seven-inch pancakes.
