Break in Oats Upsets Bread Cereal as Rye Follows Down Trend

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO, Sept. 30-(AP)-Wheat made an effort to extend its advance today. Going to new highs since early July on aggressive mill buying at the outset, but profittaking eventually proved too much for the market and final prices were off fractionally from yesterday's close.

The bread cereal was unsettled by a break in oats which at one time extended to almost 2 cents. A slight rally developed in this grain before the close, but the undertone remained weak. Except for choice quality, cash oats were under pressure. Rye tended to follow wheat and oats, ending about a cent lower.

At the close wheat was 1/8-1/2 lower, December $1.51-1.511/6, May 51,51%-%, oats were off %-1%, December 761/2-58, and rye was down 1/8-11/4, December $1.08%-

Traders were not inclined to follow the early upturn in wheat. wheat stored on farms, and, in addition, the commodity credit corporation was reported to be importing fairly large quantities of the bread cereal from Canada.

came into the oats pit on the belief increased marketings of corn will diminish the demand for oats by feed manufacturers. Corn bookings totaled 70,000 bushels, less than expected but still well above purchases of a week or so ago. It was reported 4000 additional box cars had been moved to the northwest to haul grain.

Rye, like oats, was under the influence of the expanding corn movement. Potential demand for rye as a livestock feed was seen as declining. Weather over most lief increased marketings of corn as declining. Weather over most of the corn belt was favorable, and traders pointed out that each day of favorable weather removes delicitional aventity of normal section of the corn belt was favorable, and traders pointed out that each day of favorable weather removes redditional aventity of normal regions and traders and traders are removed to the corner of the an additional quantity of corn from danger of frost.

Stocks generally operated on the recovery side of today's market although demand continued mild and price gains, on the whole, Customers, while rather timid, began to reinstate commitments at the opening on the idea the list may have been pretty well sold out and had undertone a fair correction of the recent upswing. Earnings prospects helped individual issues. Good war news, as in past weeks, had little if any influence on trends. Wall Street's principal worries now seem to be over post-war conditions.
