Will Visit Cabin—Opening of the national forests will be the signal for Chemeketa to visit their cabin on Whilwater creek and hike to Coffin Mountain on the weekend on October 2 and 3. The round trip is approximately 16 miles but those who wish may return via Bachelor Mountain and Bruno Meadows, adding another two miles through high mountain country. Cars will leave Salem on Saturday afternoon with dinner to be served Saturday night and Sunday breakfast at the cabin. The commissary committee is in charge. Anyone interested in the trip is invited to join club members. Arrangements will be made by signing the register at Ramseyer's garage, 250 North High street, by Friday night.

Jobs Benefits At Record Low
Benefits paid to the unemployed last week were $401, lowest amount ever paid in one week since the state unemployment compensation commission commenced operations nearly six years ago. For the entire year only $220,235 has been paid to those without work, compared to $1,618,022 at this time in 1942.

Only 27 claimants were allowed benefits. Of the 22 federal employment offices in the state, 12 failed to take a claim. New low records have been set almost every week this summer as the harvest advances, and the demands of canneries and other war jobs absorb all available workers.

Gets Furlough—Sgt. Alyce Cline, recruiter for Wacs in Salem, will leave today for Culbertson, Neb., to spend a two-week furlough visiting her parents.

Robin Reed Sues Eyerly, Asks $30,000

Suit demanding an accounting in connection with his operations as sales agent for the Eyerly Aircraft corporation was filed Thursday in circuit court here by Robin Reed of Reedport against Lee U. Eyerly. Reed declares in the complaint that he has reason to believe, and therefore alleges, that at least $30,000 is due him.

The complaint asserts that a contract was made October 30, 1934, and modified May 7, 1935, whereby Reed was to act as exclusive sales agent for the Loop-O-Planes manufactured by the Eyerly Aircraft corporation; that he continued in that capacity until October 30, 1937, but that contrary to the contract, the corporation and Eyerly sold some of the devices personally and through other salesmen. Reed contends he is entitled to 40 per cent commission on all such sales. The complaint adds that Reed advanced certain sums to take care of freight, repair and replacement costs on Loop-O-Planes sold by him, and that these sums were not repaid.

The Eyerly Aircraft corporation has been dissolved and Lee U. Eyerly is the owner of all its assets and liable for its debts, the complaint declares, adding that Eyerly has refused to render an accounting or to permit Reed to examine the corporation's books. Records which will show the amount due are in existence, the complaint says.

An attached document described in the complaint as a copy of the original contract provided that Reed was to purchase all of the Loop-O-Planes manufactured at prices which the contract fixed. Under the 1935 modifications, he was to pay 60 per cent of the list price, and was required to sell a sufficient number to keep the factory operating at 40 per cent capacity; if he failed to do so, the corporation might sell through other agencies but was obligated to pay Reed a 10 per cent commission. Reed contends in the complaint that he sold enough of the devices to keep the plant running 40 per cent of capacity, and thus is entitled to 40 per cent on all sales.

One of the terms of the modifying agreement was that Reed, one-time Olympic games champion wrestler and later professional champion in the welterweight class, was to refrain from wrestling except for four matches.

Paulus Leaves Hop Board; Rowell in Post
Slated, according to report, for an important position with a large eastern firm dealing in hops, C. W. Paulus resigned this week as managing agent of the hop control board and terminated his duties Thursday.

The board has named Paul T. Rowell, who formerly was its representative in Washington state with offices at Yakima, to succeed Paulus as managing agent. For the past year Rowell has been secretary-manager of the United States Hopgrowers association which a year ago was organized to succeed the Pacific Coast Hop Stabilization corporation.

Rowell will take over his new duties today. Activities of the hop control board are greatly restricted, since the marketing agreement it was organized to administer has been suspended. Its function for the present is that of keeping records of production and sales for the department of agriculture. Field offices have been discontinued and the only offices maintained are in Salem and Yakima, the one at Sacramento for the California growers having also been closed.

Paulus has been managing agent of the board since its creation in 1938 and was a leader in steps toward its organization for two years before that. The board has regulated hop production in Oregon, Washington and California.

Mr. and Mrs. Paulus were scheduled to leave Thursday for a week's vacation. He made no announcement as to his future plans but reports that he will join one of the leading firms dealing in hops have been current for several days.

Consultant To Recruit Nurses Here
Women interested in army, navy or army air force nursing may contact Mary Gray, Red Cross nursing consultant who will be in Salem today, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday at Red Cross headquarters. The consultant is to be in Salem to complete the nursing program for the county.

Bessie Hammer, recruitment chairman for Marion county chapter of the Red Cross, has released a list of nurses who have been assigned to duty since December 7, 1941, from Salem. The following names were listed: Mildred Bohrer, Agnes Marie Frank, Submitt, Luene Green, Winifred McFarland, Alice Ruger, all army; Theresa Doherty, Fern Jones, Bula Kitts, Bernice Lee, all navy; Mary Moeckle and Josephine Cushing, army air corps.

Oregon's quota for army and navy nurses in 1943 is 263, and up to September 1, only 135 have been recruited. This means that 148 or approximately 55 percent must be recruited in the remaining four months, said Miss Hammer.

Ex-Publisher Visits—O. K. Mitchell, Jr., of Santa Cruz, Calif., formerly publisher of a newsstand periodical, visited briefly in Salem this week. He renewed acquaintances with Joe A. Hendrick, 1410 D street who is desk clerk at the Argo hotel.

Training for Aviation Cadet Told at Meet

An outline of what an aviation cadet may expect during his training program before being commissioned a lieutenant in the army air force either as pilot, navigator or bombardier was presented a group of interested young people and members of the Salem unit of the civil air patrol at the armory last night by Maj. James H. Howard and Lt. E. G. Depper of the Salem air base and Lt. Katherine Sarmel, WAC recruiting officer.

Attention was directed to the appearance here Saturday of Maj. Eric Shilling, who will be at the city hall throughout the day to receive enlistments of young men seeking to become pilots of fighter planes.

Those accepted after preliminary examinations, including mental and physical, will be notified immediately, and if under 17 years old will be placed on the reserve list until they are 18 years old. Their papers will then be presented to the draft board and they will be given six months within which to report for primary training. Young men over 18 and who have not yet reached their 27th birthday, will be sent into training at once if accepted.

Lt. Ray Moore, communications officer of the CAF, was in charge of the meeting. Introduced were Lt. Elvin E. Thomas, unit commander, and Capt. Lee U. Eyerly, supervising officer for the Oregon wing. A short meeting of CAP officers followed.

Hans Seitz Lies Ill on 25th Anniversary of Arrival Here

R. W. Hans Seitz, veteran music-master of Salem, is ill at his home at 2041 South Church street. His old sign, "Salem Conservatory of Music," hangs in front of the entry to his home, but within Prof. Seitz lies in a very serious condition. Mrs. Seitz has been ill for a long time, and lies in an adjoining room.

It was 25 years ago today, Dr. Seitz said yesterday when a visitor called, that he came to Salem to become head of the school of music at Willamette university. He occupied the position for two years, and then stayed on in Salem, as instructor in vocal and instrumental music, as director of choruses and orchestras. Until recent years, music was both his life and his livelihood. Then he instructed in languages patients at the tuberculosis hospital and worked in the victory book collection at the state library. It is fall again, now, and he looked for pupils; but four weeks ago he had to give up and go to bed. Mrs. Seitz says it is the first time in their 34 years of married life that Hans, as she calls him, has been sick.

The highlight of his musical career in Salem, as he recalled it yesterday, was a May Festival some twenty-one or two years ago. He directed a chorus of 400, and an orchestra of 65; and the armory was so crowded that 500 had to be turned away. The late Mrs. A. N. Bush served as chairman of the festival.

Dr. Seitz directed the old Apollo club, a chorus of men's voices; and the People's chorus, and the women's Euterpe octette; and at different times the choirs of the First Methodist and Unitarian churches. He was organizer and first director of Salem's symphony orchestra. Hundreds have taken individual or class instruction in music from Dr. Seitz.

Friends who have tried to help Dr. and Mrs. Seitz in their illness will try to brighten his anniversary today of 25 years given to music in Salem.
