State Postwar Committee To Meet Here

The state committee on postwar readjustment and development will meet in the state board of control rooms at the state capitol Thursday afternoon, it is announced by the chairman, Victor F. Morris, dean of the school of business administration at the University of Oregon. This committee for the study of the problem facing Oregon was authorized by the 1943 session of the legislature upon the recommendation of Gov. Earl Snell.

Substantial progress has already been made in the analysis of the postwar problems to be faced by the state of Oregon and the magnitude of the responsibilities which public and private agencies will face in connection with the reemployment of tens of thousands of men and women who have been in the armed services and war industries, Dr. Morris said.

The Thursday meeting of the committee will consider the special phases of the work being assigned to a group of subcommittees which have been appointed. These subcommittees, working under the direction of John W. Kelly, Salem, executive director of the committee, will stimulate and correlate the work in such special fields as industrial development, finance, education, agricultural expansion, grazing, forestry, highway expansion, and other public works. The committee believes that the work of re-employment and development is a joint function of public agencies and private enterprise.

Dean Morris expects all members of the committee to be present at the meeting. They are as follows:
 Portland—George H. Buckley, contractor and builder; Stanley Earl, executive secretary, Oregon CIO; D. L. Nickerson, executive secretary, Oregon Federation of Labor; E. B. McNaughton (vice-chairman), president, First National bank.
 Salem—George K. Aiken, state budget director; R. H. Baldeck, state highway engineer; R. L. Peterson, director, state department of agriculture; Earl K. Nixon, director, state department of geology and mineral industries; N. S. Rogers, state forester.

R. H. Dearborn, dean, school of engineering, Oregon State college, Corvallis; Carl Engdahl, chairman, house ways and means committee, Pendleton; Angus Gibson, chairman, senate ways and means committee, Junction City; A. A. Lausman, lumberman, Medford; Wayne Stewart, stockman, Dayville; and Victor P. Morris, chairman.

Postwar Plans to Be Topic—George Aiken, executive secretary to Gov. Earl Snell and member of the postwar readjustment and development commission, will report upon activities of the commission to members of the Salem Kiwanis club at their noon luncheon today in the Marion hotel.

Lightning Causes Weekend Forest Fires
KLAMATH FALLS, Oct. 4—(P) In spite of an influx of thousands of deer hunters, it was lightning which caused most of the 36 weekend fires in Fremont and Klamath forests.
 Of the three men-caused fires, one was blamed on a lost hunter who set a blaze to summon "smoke chasers" who could direct him back to camp.

Hopes Dashed For Northwest Alumina Plant

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—(P)—The Pacific northwest's hopes for a $4,000,000 alumina plant ran headlong today into a war production board statement that the nation has ample reserves of aluminum.

Charles E. Wilson, vice-chairman of the WPB, told Pacific northwest congressmen that the plant would not be built since it would take 18 months to prove whether or not the aluminum-from-ore process was commercially feasible. The proposed pilot plant could not begin to aid the nation during the war, he said.
