Vikings, Axemen Rated Even In Annual Big Game Tonight

With a "remember last year" as a by-word and keyed to high "C" in the spirit department, Salem high's "Vow Boy" Vikings roll south tonight to bash gridiron style with Eugene's in and out Axemen in the annual big game of the season. The battle is listed for Eugene's Civic stadium at 8 o'clock, and from reports sifting north there'll be from 3000 to 5000 citizens taking it in

WPB Extends Bullet Sales

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10-(Special)-The war production board today announced an extension of the time limitation on other than farmer and rancher purchases of shotgun and rifle ammunition, to enable manufacturers to fabricate County Casaba allotments provided under limitation order L-286-A issued August 25, 1943.

Issuance of the amendment to the order today will advance the valid date for purchases of shotgun and rifle ammunition from November 15 to December 31, 1943. The ammunition referred to covers the 82,500,000 shotgun shells and 12,000,000 cartridges made available as a lemental program to harvest game and destroy predatory guilty of hot and cold footballing this semester, find themselves rated even for the 34th running of the Eugene-Salem series. The Axemen, herded this year by one Frank Kuchera in the absence of Fritz Kramer, reached their peak when they busted the Klamath Falls balloon by holding the Pelican powerhouse to a 0-0 deadlock in the mud three weeks ago. Since then the defending No-Name champs fizzled badly and lost to Corvallis and Milwaukie.

On the other side, Salem will be going after its second straight win since blowing that 7-0 mess to Rend two weeks ago. After that one the Viks vowed nothing but wins the rest of the season and followed through by knocking off Astoria last week. Also, a win for Salem tonight clinches second place behind Milwaukie in the league standings. Then too, there's the little but important matter of "gettin' even" with the Axemen, something the T-men have been looking forward to the entire season. ## Mostly Freshmen on Beaver Basketball Team

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis - (Special) - With the start of daily practice sessions this week full scale preparations for the 1943-44 basketball season are underway at Oregon State where Coach Slats Gill is starting his sixteenth year as head coach.

The Beavers have been working out three times a week for the last three weeks. Gill faces his toughest job this season. He must start from the bottom and build a team for Northern division play from a squad consisting almost entirely of fresh-

Don Hall, two-year letterman forward and a member of the Beavers' Northern division championship club of 1942, may be able to play. He injured his back in an automobile accident just before school started this fall. Whether or not he can play will depend upon the decision of his doctor the latter part of this month. His presence would help the club a lot.
