China Mission Church Topics

Presbyterian, Baptist People to Hear of Work in Orient

The Rev. Kenneth W. Wilson of the Presbyterian church will be the guest speaker morning and evening at First Presbyterian church Sunday. He was a resident of Ichow, China, a community of 75,000 located between the coast and the Shanghai-Peking railroad, and mid-way between those two cities in Shantung province. He and his family served a constituency of between three and five million people and watched the transformation of the city from a peaceful, old-fashioned village to a spot of ruin and suffering during the Sino-Japanese war. He remained for three years to help carry on the American Chinese relief program. The speaker is a graduate of Occidental college, Princeton Seminary and San Francisco Theological Seminary.

At the Sunday morning hour his subject is "Unrationed Eternals." The chorus choir under the direction of Virginia Ward Elliott will sing, "Hear Us O Father." The morning soloist, Bettliellen Payne, will sing "Trust Ye in the Lord" (Fisher).

At the 7:30 evening hour Virginia Ward Elliott will be the soloist singing "Seek Ye the Truth" (Ellis). Mr. Wilson's message is entitled "Red Cross Christians." The pastor, Rev. W. Irvin Williams, will be in charge.

Rev. L. H. Randle, returned missionary from China, and a member of the Calvary Baptist church, will bring the communion meditation at the morning service Sunday. Rev. Randle became a charter member of Calvary church after his return from China and was pastor of the Baptist church at Cottage Grove.

The senior choir, the Calvary Trumpeters, and the ensemble and other musical organizations of Calvary will present an hour of sacred music at Camp Adair Sunday afternoon. This concert will be presented in chapel No. 5, which is in charge of Chaplain Kenneth A. Nelson, a member of Calvary church. The Friesen quartet of Salem will accompany the group.

The newly organized Men's Fellowship of Calvary church will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday evening, December 7. Preceding the meeting dinner will be served. Beside the regular business meeting members will have the privilege of hearing Rev. Eric A. Johnson, pastor of the Evangelistic Tabernacle, a former missionary to the Belgian Congo. The Men's Fellowship will be hosts to the high school class of boys of which Dr. Hugh A. Dowd is the teacher.

Service Men Have Meeting

The newly organized Service Men's Gospel team will hold two services Sunday, one at the Church of God, located at Cottage and Hood streets, from 7 to 7:30 p.m., and another at the Free Methodist church, Market and North Winter streets, from 7:30 to 9. They have scheduled Sunday evening services for a month in advance in the various Salem churches.

The group is composed of service men from all sections of the country, and representing a dozen different denominations. Several members of the group have had active service on foreign soil. The program consists primarily of testimonies from each member of the group, interspersed with musical numbers by the quartet and the bass soloist, Seaman Clarence Dahl, who is now attending Wilamette university. The service is concluded by a short message and an illustrated chalk drawing with lighting effects.

Sacrifice Sunday Will Be Observed

A Sunday of sacrifice is to be observed by the First Baptist church December 5. Members are planning to contribute their share toward the World Emergency Fund at this time. The money is to be used for work with service men and for reconstruction and emergency work at home and abroad.

Baptists are giving $1,500,000, and Oregon's quota is $22,500. The First Baptist church's share is $650. This sum will be collected at the communion service.

In the afternoon at 4:30 the young people will have a service in the form of an organ recital and vespers conducted by the Guild Girls. Those taking special part are Mrs. Delores Bailey, "Ann of Ava," Miss Helen Hat-
