Charged With Burglary—Richard Royce Deitz, jr., 21, Portland, and his nephew, Robert John Dawson, 18, of 310 Evergreen avenue, Salem, were arrested Monday morning and charged with burglary in connection with losses at the Davis Oil service station, Fairgrounds road, and were given until Wednesday to enter pleas in justice court. Deitz, who 2½ years ago was charged here with possession of stolen property and was at that time sent to the state hospital, was arrested at the service station after the proprietors had watched him jump from a window. Dawson, who told officers when he heard "a telephone bell" which was in reality a burglar alarm, got away at the time but later was apprehended. On Deitz's person were found a slip of paper bearing a name and address which had reputedly been left in the cash register and the $2.60 cash which had been left there when the place was closed Saturday night.

Sick Foresees Greater Labor Legislation

Likelihood that some federal control of business will continue after the war and that though free enterprise will survive it will find a heightened social consciousness necessary, with fair treatment of labor after equitable labor laws are enacted was indicated by Emil G. Sick of Seattle, a leading Pacific northwest brewer and civic leader, who addressed Salem chamber of commerce members at their luncheon Monday.

The lack of enthusiasm over the prospect of victory in the war reflected in the book "Men in Motion" by H. J. Taylor, which Sick commended to his listeners as worthwhile reading, was typical of American thought ten months ago, he indicated. People were fearful of what "postwar" might mean, but they have cheered up somewhat since then.

The Seattle chamber of commerce, the speaker said, has ceased to work exclusively for Seattle and is helping in projects for the benefit of the entire northwest. He cite the alumna plant as an example and congratulated Salem on its choice as a site. He promised that the Salem brewery, in which his company is now majority stockholder, will cooperate in projects for Salem's benefit.

With about 331,000 private passenger car owners registered in Oregon, only 50,504 applications for 1944 registrations have been received and of these, 36,000 have been processed and the stickers mailed.

Farrell cautioned owners to give complete information on the application blanks to save additional delays. The 1944 stickers may be used after December 15. The 1943 stickers must be removed.

Development of the dehydrated foods industry has been stimulated by the global war. In Great Northern Railway territory today are many new plants devoted to dehydration of vitally essential foodstuffs, principally milk, eggs, potatoes and vegetables. Dehydrated foods are being consumed in increasing quantities by America's Armed Forces in foreign lands and by civilians in Allied countries, for dried foods are both palatable and nourishing—and they conserve over-the-seas transport space. Because of its peacetime advantages, the dehydrated foods industry is here to stay. The Great Northern Railway is privileged to afford it dependable transportation service.

"Jimmy called me a Commando!"

And right you are to be proud, Sonny. Your big brother Jimmy has always been your Number One hero, even before he went overseas. So his commendation means more to you than a medal.

You don't quite understand the full, grim reality of war, nor why Dad and Mom don't laugh as much as they used to. You just know that Jimmy is going to lick the enemy, and you want him to do it soon, because life isn't as much fun with Jimmy gone. You miss those man-to-man talks, those early morning tussles in pajamas, those after-supper lessons in passing a football. And to bring Jimmy home sooner, you're backing him up on the home front with everything you've got. Scrap drive champagne, honor-roll scout, all-around good Citizen Soldier—you bet you're a Commando, Son, the kind America needs!

Be a CITIZEN SOLDIER

Let's all back up our fighting men. The need is urgent for blood donors, nurse's aides and student nurses, Red Cross Motor Corps drivers, victory shift workers in war plants, volunteers for the Coast Guard Port Security Force and Civilian Defense, food processing and harvest help, conservation, salvage, dozens of other activities. Choose the ways in which you can help most, and enlist—as a Citizen Soldier.

War Needs Come First

Petroleum products are particularly vital war material. The needs of the armed forces for fuel and lubricants take precedence over all others. These needs are still increasing as our attack increases. They will continue to increase. The products and service left available for civilian needs will be affected—but no more than is absolutely necessary. We know you understand, and will gladly accept these changes as they come. They're for Victory.

Tide Water Associated Oil Company is supplying fuel and lubricants for the Army, Navy and vital war industries, and 100-octane gasoline for the air forces—in quantities which cannot be revealed, but of which we are very proud. And our war production is still increasing.
