Draft Not Delayed—The proposal of Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, to cancel occupational deferments of men under 22 years of age will not delay the drafting of Oregon fathers, State Selective Service Director Elmer E. Woodson declared Wednesday. Drafting of fathers on a large scale is scheduled to begin in January. Col. Woodson said Oregon has only a handful of men under 22 with occupational deferment.

Wright Flight Celebrated

Gov. Earl Snell called attention Wednesday to the national celebration of the 40th anniversary of the first Wright brothers flight at Kitty Hawk, December 17, which is being informally observed as Oregon aviation day.

"Particularly in these times does the Wright brothers achievement stand in full significance, when aviation, so recently turned against us, is now returned to the side of the allied war effort in such strength and dominance," said Gov. Snell. "It is our great pride, of course, that aviation is an American contribution to the civilized world."

Rogers Up For Bank Post

"Quit your shoving" reputedly was the attitude of members of the state banking board Wednesday when they failed to hold the meeting understood to have been scheduled, for the purpose of appointing a state superintendent of banks.

Though no member of the board would comment for publication, it was understood that one or more of the members objected to what was considered newspaper "rush-ing" tactics.

There was no indication that any candidate other than A. A. Rogers, incumbent, was up for consideration. Rogers has continued to serve since expiration of his original term December 1.
