

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Amort, who celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary at their home, 1110 Donna Avenue, Tuesday. Three of their six children were present at the celebration. They have lived in Oregon since 1902.

Don't Look Now..

but . . . I got it straight from a friend, who got it from a friend! bzzzz. . . that Mrs. G. Herbert Smith was wearing a pair of nylon hose she admits Bishop Bruce Baxter brought her from his last trip east. . . But when you repeat the story, remember that Bishop Baxter stopped off for a visit with Mrs. Smith's mother, who gave him the stockings to bring to her daughter.

Extra special. . . When Joan Louvera Raymond, very young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Raymond (Louvera Horn) was born at Columbia hospital, Washington, DC, early in January, she had extra special service, because the very charming nurses' aide who attended her mother was Mrs. Harry Hopkins. Joan Louvera is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Horn of Salem.

Windy places. . . We sat on the front row at a program this week at which the "Hungry Five," Parrish junior high school horn quintet played. Ever since we sat in front of those five horns, blown by five well polished and decidedly not hungry boys, we've been sneezing and blowing—merely a code in the head.

Don't quote me. . . It was brought to our attention that this column was quoted in a southern Oregon paper recently. Goodness, do you suppose they think we really mean the silly things we say?

Out of our growth. . . Catching the light on one of the windows in the Catholic church just right this week, we saw a small hole in one of the colored glass windows, which looked very much like a BB gun had gone off in the wrong direction. It reminds us of a time when in our youth we carried a BB gun. Once, when up on the undertaking parlor roof, we took a shot at the old Chinaman who carried a sack over his shoulders and whom we called "Monkey." We missed "Monkey" with the BB, but hit the wall of the church and the BB ricocheted, hitting him on the other cheek. He threatened, with much fist waving, to come up and get us. The undertaking parlor was the only thing that stood between us and that junk sack, for "Monkey" wasn't that brave just for the sake of so small a piece of junk. And that, my dear children, is where we lost that year of growth. . . Maxine Buren

P. S. The hole in the church window was the work of some gun moll of this generation, not the survival of our pistol packin' days.

Charles Boyer and Barbara Stanwyck are co-starred in one of the dramatically thrilling episodes of Universal's daring screen innovation, "Flesh and Fantasy," scheduled to open Tuesday, February 15 at Warner's Elsinore theatre. "Moonlight in Vermont" starring Gloria Jean completes the program.

Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland as they appear in the sparkling musical comedy "Girl Crazy," which is now showing at Warner's Capitol theatre. Second feature on the bill is "Hitler's Madman," with Patricia Morison, John Carradine and Alan Curtis.

'Girl Crazy' Full of Hits

Rooney, Garland, Dorsey Bring Gershwin Music

Brimful of Gershwin melodies, music and laughter, MGM brings to the screen the beloved stage success, "Girl Crazy," starring Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, teamed together for the eighth time. The picture is now showing on the screen of the Capitol theatre.

Tommy Dorsey and his band are featured in the laugh-happy comedy of the golden west and do full justice to the beloved score of the Gershwins. The musical numbers include "Embraceable You," "I Got Rhythm," "But Not for Me," "Bidin' My Time," and many others sung and danced by the inimitable Judy and Mickey.

The story concerns the playboy antics of Mickey Rooney, a powerful publisher's son. Tired of his son's night club attendance, the publisher enrolls him at Cody college in Arizona, hoping to make a man of him. Mickey goes reluctantly but becomes enthusiastic when he meets Judy Garland, the dean's granddaughter. But Judy doesn't like Mickey's attitude and it is not until he proves himself by saving the school from being closed by staging a gigantic rodeo that she decides Mickey is the man for her.

Several spectacular dance numbers are staged for the film. In the "Embraceable You" number Judy dances an intricate fox trot, and the finale number, "I Got Rhythm," features a chorus of 100 dancers plus Tommy Dorsey, Mickey and Judy.

"Hitler's Madman," the picture that pulls no punches, completes the bill now playing at the Capitol theatre.

Sinatra Film Is Gay Romance

Penniless Employer, Unpaid Servants Get Rich Quick

A get-rich-quick scheme evolved by a group of unpaid servants and their penniless employer forms the framework on which is hung the gay romance, hilarious comedy, and catchy song hits of "Higher and Higher," the new tune film starring Michele Morgan, Jack Haley and Frank Sinatra, now playing at the Elsinore.

Miss Morgan plays the role of the false deb who is really a scullery maid, promoted as part of an ingenious scheme by which her fellow servants hope to make some money. Haley is a valet in the same household. Leon Errol heads the featured cast as the bankrupt big-shot, and Marcy McGuire, Victor Borgie, Mary Wickes and Barbara Hale also have important roles.

Most of the action takes place in a Fifth avenue mansion of a penniless socialite. The servants haven't been paid for seven months, and they and their employer collaborate on the idea of having the scullery maid pretend to be the latter's debutante daughter and catch herself a rich husband. The victim of their scheme also is posing as a wealthy member of society and each is anxious to marry the other for money.

Naturally there are unexpected results as the various romances entangle and disentangle themselves. Sinatra himself, in his acting debut, proves to be a real "discovery" as well as singing four of the new tunes featured in this great film.

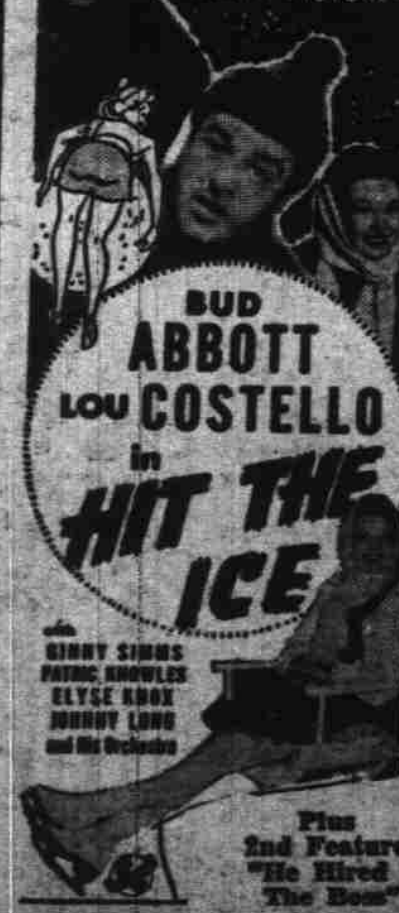

The co-feature is "Klondike Kate"—one beauty in a land of miners, gamblers, and adventurers. She rules them all—but one—Tom Neal. Don't miss this exciting story of the queen of the Yukon.

Silverton Crowns Queen of Hearts

SILVERTON — Viola Dobbert was crowned "queen of hearts" at the basket ball game Friday night and reigned over the dance which followed. Sharon Smith was the crown princess and other princesses were Shirley Smith, Margaret Warnack, Ruth Davis, Mary Ann Hansen, Phyllis Steffen, and Elaine Hamre. Lowell Njunt, student body president, presided.
