

Mt. Angel Sociology Teacher Discusses Juvenile Delinquency

MT. ANGEL—The subject of juvenile delinquency, which is arousing such nationwide apprehension, is being treated in a novel way by Rev. Vincent Koppert, professor of sociology at Mt. Angel college and assistant-pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church at Mt. Angel, in a series of talks given each Wednesday night at the lenten services.

By taking the various stages of the life of a soul from the time it comes, pure and undefiled, from the hands of God until it returns to Him at the end of the mortal life of the body it inhabits, Father Vincent intends to prove that the human being without religion cannot be expected to act much different than a refined animal. Children brought up with the idea that there is no ultimate end to life other than the satisfaction of their needs and desires and that they are essentially no different than animals will learn to have no higher motive than a wary precaution "not to get caught."

Father Vincent bases his assumption on the FBI statistics that 90% of the inmates of penal institutions come from broken homes where there is no religious unity and homes where no religious training is given. He supplements these with statistics from schools and colleges and societies interested in the moral welfare of the country.

An interesting statement was that given him two weeks ago by professor in a northwest college, who stated that out of his class of 49 young men and women who were given the question "What is the difference between a man and an animal?" only one replied, "Man has an immortal soul and an animal has not." All the others attributed the difference to more refined reflexes or some other phrases that would indicate a more highly developed biological specimen. With such a materialistic viewpoint on the part of such a large percentage of the youth of the country, Father Vincent, thinks there is no need to wonder at their actions.

SUIT—This fashionable dinner suit, modeled by Jane Wyman, film player, is of moss green heavy satin and features a deep rolled men's dress collar and jeweled front.

Silverton Teachers Leave

Resignations Accepted From Two Instructors; Anderson Term Out

SILVERTON — Resignations of two teachers were accepted at the Wednesday night meeting of the school board. Miss Mable DeVos, physical education, resigned to continue her studies and Miss Mable Fred, music teacher, resigned, not giving out her future plans.

Teachers will be hired by March 15, and while it was discussed Wednesday night, no definite action will be taken. F. Decker, who came here last autumn to fill an emergency vacancy in the principalship of the grade school, does not intend to return in the autumn. He plans to go to his home at Granger, Idaho. This was the understanding when he accepted the contract for this year, and he has indicated that he intends to return to Granger. The contract of A. B. Anderson, superintendent, also expires this spring. It is generally understood that he will be offered the contract again. He has made no statement as to his acceptance.

Canned Fish Supply Grows

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—Civilians will get about 577,000 more cases of higher quality salmon, pilchards, Atlantic sea herring, Atlantic mackerel and Pacific mackerel from this year's production than they did from last year's under a government allocation order issued today.

The order set percentages of this year's production which packers will be required to make available for government military and lend-lease requirements.

The government requirements of salmon, except chum and steelhead, were set at 3,115,000 cases, or the same as last year, and of pilchards, herring and mackerel at 2,315,000 cases. Officials estimated civilians will get 2,685,000 cases of the better grades of salmon in addition to the entire pack of the chum and steelhead varieties. In addition, they will get 2,984,000 cases of pilchards, herring and mackerel compared with about 2,401,000 last year.

Limit Pack Approved Northwest Canneries

PORTLAND, Ore., March 2—(P)—Pacific northwest canneries have received the go-ahead for limit packs of fruits and vegetables this season.

"The war manpower commission for Oregon is prepared to guarantee an adequate labor supply for all canning and food processing operations no matter how large the pack may be," L. C. Stoll, state WMC director, told a conference of operators.

Lewis Brandt New FSA Head

Lewis C. Brandt has been appointed farm supervisor for Marion and Polk counties by the Farm Security Administration to take the place of Owen K. Lemmon, who has resigned to go into farming. The appointment was effective March 1.

Brandt is a native son of Marion county, was born and raised on a farm near Silverton. He graduated from Oregon State college in 1927 and has been engaged in farming in Wallowa county since that time except for a two-year period, working for Dairy Herd Improvement associations.

Brandt reports that farmers lacking adequate sources of credit and expecting to use Farm Security Administration loans, should make application at an early date at the office, 460 North High street, in the old high school building.

Loans are made for farm operating expenses, and purchase of capital goods such as livestock or equipment to be repaid over a period of years determined at the time the loan is made.
