FDR Would Prefer to Retire, Says Former Publicity Chief

By RICHARD TOMPKINS
NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—President Roosevelt would prefer not to seek reelection, but circumstances may "make it impossible for him to lay down the burden," according to the reasoning of Charles Michelson, former democratic publicity chief.

Writing in the April American magazine, Michelson also expresses the opinion that James A. Farley, former democratic chairman, will not lead a third-party revolt against the president. As to Roosevelt's intentions, he says he holds the same position as five years ago when he wrote: "My guess is that Franklin D. Roosevelt would take a case of the hives rather than four years more of the headache that being president means. It will not be so easy a choice as that."

"Circumstances might arise that would make it impossible for him to lay down the burden. And the man in the White House is not the kind of individual who would let his personal desires interfere with what seems to him his duty."

Going back to the third term, Michelson says: "Reelection was wise if his motive, and if the people's motive, was based on the thought that with the impending war, Roosevelt's experience made him the best qualified man to steer the nation through a stormy period. The alternative is that, being convinced that no other available democrat could be elected, and determined not to turn the government over to the party opposed to him and to his policies, he therefore defied the tradition."

"Had it not been for the imminence of war, Roosevelt would never have received the third-term nomination; would never, in fact, have gone after it."

As to Farley's role in the 1944 convention, Michelson has this to say: "Knowing what I do about Farley's opinion of third parties, and having in mind his worship of the party and his oft-expressed disesteem for bolters, etc., my surmise is that in '44 he will follow the same trail he trod in 1940. That is, he will amass as many delegates as he can to stop Roosevelt in the convention; and, if that fails, he will again announce that he will vote for the ticket, and then take no further part."

Lard Becomes Unrationed During March

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP)—The office of price administration today freed lard from rationing in March while the war food administration allocated 50,000,000 pounds of lard to soap making during the month.

The two actions were taken, the agencies said, because the current rate of hog slaughter is boosting lard production to record breaking levels.

Deliveries of lard to soap manufacturers must be completed by March 31. OPA added that whether lard will continue rationed free depends upon civilian allocations in subsequent months.

Lard available to civilians during March has been increased to 206,000,000 pounds. Originally the allocation was 156,000,000 pounds.

Lard is listed on the March ration values table, effective Sunday, at three points a pound. It was explained that the table was printed prior to the decision on today's action.

Oregon Farmers Union Favors Selective Subsidy, Board Says

The executive board of the Oregon State Farmers Union has interpreted the attitude of the 34th annual convention held here last week as having been favorable to selective subsidies.

Almost the closing action of a resolution favoring "the anti subsidy bill now before congress." Approval was voted 22 to 10 while earlier voting had shown more than 80 delegates in attendance. Many had gone home before the final resolution came up.

Earlier the convention had approved the AAA incentive payments and higher payments on hogs while tabling another resolution having to do with subsidies in.

Members of the executive board are Ammon Grice, Polk, president; Ronald Jones, Marion, vice president; Harley Libby, Marion; John Shepard, Linn; Henry Johnson, Washington; and Joe Owens, Yamhill.

The statement issued by the executive board as of March 1 was as follows: "Due to the fact that our state convention passed one resolution against a general subsidy, passed two resolutions making special request for certain selective subsidies, and tabled one anti-subsidy resolution, the state executive board shall interpret the general intent of the convention as being in the support of selective subsidies."
