By IERYME ENGLISH

TOURNAMENT BETS . . . A full house for opening night . . . lots of cheering by the many high school students . . . a grand turnout of townspeople, although familiar faces we have seen in the past were missing . . . Enthusiastic rooters, who have had the same seats for years . . . Judge and Mrs. E. M. Page . . . she attractive in blue with blue and white striped jacket and blue hat with jaunty feather . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lester Barr . . . Mr. and Mrs. William L. Phillips . . . the latter wearing a chic black hat with silk jersey snood, a gift of her husband (incidentally he picked it out himself) . . . The Howard Maples, Breyman Boies, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huggins, she smart in a grey tailleur with small black calot and black accessories . . . Welcomed back after a several year's absence were Mr. and Mrs. Werner Brown . . . they have been in California and are now at their Leslie street home while Werner awaits army orders . . .

On the sidelines as a spectator, was Navy Lieutenant Harold Hauk . . . Other rooters . . . Mr. and Mrs. Brown E. Sisson, the George Croisans, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolf, Miss Beryl Holt and Mrs. Tom Wolgamott . . . The Gordon Blacks had their usual front row balcony seats . . . Arthur E. Gibbard, who hasn't missed one of the 25 tournaments came down from Seattle for the games and remembers seeing Slat's Gill play in the first tournament . . . One morning Mr. Gibbard took his grandson, Peter Manning, to his first game.

There were girl ushers and program sellers this year taking the place of the Willamette men, who have handled it in the past . . . and Willamette faculty men were at the gates . . . It seems that several service men arranged to have their furloughs during the tournament . . .
