Oregon Exhibit To Be Shown

The Portland Art Museum has just announced its third All-Oregon exhibition, from May 26 to July 2, to which all artists resident or working in Oregon and in the communities on the Columbia river along the Oregon border are invited to send their work. This biennial event has been extremely popular with both artists and general public, has given the creative painters and sculptors of the region an opportunity to show their work in an institution of repute, and has informed the layman and interested him in what is going on in the local creative field.

The museum guarantees to show at least one work submitted by every artist, and once again undertakes to find ten citizens who will pledge themselves to purchase one work from the exhibition.

Any artist may submit a total of five works, but no more than three may be in any one medium. Paintings must be framed. Each work must bear on its back or base the official entry card of the museum and must be for sale, with the definite selling price stated. Finally, entries must be submitted from May 10 to May 14 during museum hours.

A limited number of entry blanks have been sent out to previous exhibitors, but due to the drastic population and address changes it is not possible to reach all artists by mail. Artists are therefore urged to write or call for entry blanks at the museum, SW Park and Madison streets, Portland 5, Oregon.

A special section of the exhibition will feature works by men in the armed forces now stationed in Oregon and Oregon men now stationed in other states. Entries by these men may be sent collect. All entries from civilian artists must be sent prepaid.
