Alfalfa is the most universal source of poultry green feed, either fed fresh or as alfalfa meal in poultry mash. Young succulent green feeds in addition to the dry alfalfa meal, are highly palatable and are a good source of proteins, minerals, and especially vitamins.

An irrigated patch of ladino clover is depended upon by many Oregon poultrymen for a complete summer supply, as it can be cut and fed fresh continuously from about the first of April until November. For winter use kale will provide green feed from October until March if not winter killed.

Lawn clippings, if cut before the grass is too long and tough, are a good source of green feed in summer. For late summer use where irrigation is not available, sudan grass can be used in July, August and September, either for cutting or for pasturing by birds on range.

Trailblazers To Play for Friday Dance

All proceeds for the event will be turned over to the Marion chapter, to be used mostly for overseas work among the armed forces.

The Trailblazers, who are members of the 70th infantry division at Camp Adair, have appeared in Salem at various times during the past several months and are well-known here.

Featuring terrific rolling tenor sax by Tech. 5 Leo Juaruez and mellow, fascinating 88's by Pfc. Ken Davies, the band really "gives out" in the way of smooth, sweet at torrid beat.

The horn blasting of a former Bob Chester sideman, Tech. 5 Bob Cozine, makes the feet move and the mind ask for more. The combination of Cozine on trumpet, Juaruez on tenor sax, Robbins on the alto sax and former Benny Goodman guitarist Tech. 4 Sam Herman, is tops, be it ballad or jump.

Blending into rhythm background are one-time Bob Chester tubeman Tech. 5 Johnny Quinn, Tech. 5 Dennis Barritt on bass, Pfc. Kenny Delhin on alto sax, Tech. 5 Cleve Hamby on tenor sax, Pfc. Bill Walters, playing unusual baritone sax. To support the brass are Tech. 4 Don Miller and Tech. 5 Dave Black on trumpets. Tech. 4 Al Pollard, Tech. 4 Gene Whistler and Staff Sgt. Dale Dalling make up the trombone section and complete the list.

Astronomers aren't the only ones with problems of TIME and SPACE

Sometimes we think the problems faced by astronomers are fairly simple after all.

Though they, like our ticket agents, deal with time and space, they don't have to explain to travelers why it's often impossible to get train accommodations for a certain time. S. P. ticket agents live with such problems every day.

The plain fact is... there just isn't room on our trains to take care of all civilians who want to travel these war days. And often we must ask would-be travelers to postpone trips they'd like to make at once.

Not only are we short of equipment and manpower—not only is our travel load the heaviest in history—but today much of our available space is needed by service men and war industry travelers. Because many people must travel during this war, many others must stay off the train.

Our ticket agents meet the public every day and on them falls the chore of explaining why train space is sometimes not available as and when requested.

People generally are understanding and patient. And from kindly letters and comments we receive, we believe our ticket agents are handling their difficult assignment efficiently and well.
