WEDDING BELL ECHOES

Everything was perfect about the wedding Saturday of Marylee Fry and William Earl Snell. . . . A clear night with stars and a new moon in the west. . . . The bride looked radiantly happy and her ivory satin gown was exceptionally beautiful. . . . her veil of illusion extended several yards beyond the train of her dress. . . . over her arm she carried a spray of cream colored orchids. . . . Marylee's five bridesmaids were all in blue marquisette and carried pink muffs with camellias and the same flowers in their hair with blue net ruffles. . . .

About the bridesmaids. . . . Mary Mar Smith caught Marylee's bouquet as she threw it from the first landing of the stairs and a week earlier had caught Jane Taubman's bouquet at her reception at the University club, Portland. . . . Jane and her army lieutenant husband, Lawrence Barbour, were back from their honeymoon in time for the wedding. . . . Peggy O'Brien was married on Wednesday afternoon in Portland to Lt. John Lucas and left immediately for Fort Sill, Oklahoma. . . . petite and blonde Barbara Johnson, engaged to Stuart Nelson, is making plans for their wedding after his graduation from Annapolis. . . . so it looks as if the bridal party will soon all be married.

St. Paul's Episcopal church was filled for the occasion with guests standing in the back and along the sides. . . . Dozens of white candles cast a soft glow over the dark woodwork. . . . vases of calla lilies on the walls, at the chancel, altar and marking the pews. . . . Gorgeous arrangements of plum blossoms and forsythia at the Fry home where the reception was held. . . . A huge jardiniere filled with blossoms in the hallway extending to the top of the stairs, and stunning bouquets in the drawing room. . . .

Quite a sight to see hundreds of guests walking up West Lef-felle street to the Fry home. . . . many cars with police directing traffic. . . . Very gay, with colorful evening dress, becoming hair-does and clever hats. . . . much rejoicing and old friends getting together, as many were from out-of-town. . . .

Mrs. Earl Flegel, one of the bride's many aunts, who came from Mineral Wells, Texas, wore black crepe and a bright colored striped short coat. . . . Mrs. Adolph Neu from Portland in a lime green dinner gown. . . . Others from Portland. . . . The Joseph Burke Knapps and William Swindells. . . . the George Ottens. . . . Mrs. George White in red and matching flowered hat. . . . From Spokane came Mrs. Wallace Foster and daughter, Patricia Edgerton. . . . the former in blue with gold velvet jacket and Patricia in pastel yellow chiffon. . . . Mrs. Foster is now circulation manager of the Chronicle in the northern city and her daughter, just finished at Whitmore college, is now with the Shell Oil company. . . .

Clever flowered hats worn by Mrs. Chester Cox and Mrs. Clifford Brown. . . . Mrs. William Connell Dyer's good-looking red evening coat and violets and roses in her hair. . . . Mrs. Curtis Cross in blue shading from light to dark and a flowered hat. . . .

Guests at the reception. . . . in the dining room, looking at the beautiful array of gifts and around the punch bowl. . . . Mrs. James Linn in fuchsia with matching veil headdress and orchids on her shoulder. . . . Mrs. Hollis Huntington in ice blue, a white orchid in her hair. . . . Mrs. Breyman Boise in black with black lace headdress. . . . A little on the wistful side was Mrs. William Speirs as she had left her navy lieutenant husband in San Francisco a few days before. . . . she looked lovely in white net with a wide berth of gold fashioned drop shoulder and long white kid gloves. . . . Mrs. Albert Curry, also home from a California vacation, wore red and a white fur jacket. . . . Brothers and their wives. . . . Bingham and Robert Powell. . . . Attractive Miriam Becke in white and a red velvet coat. . . . Mrs. Harold Olinger all in white with white veil over her hair escorted by her handsome navy lieutenant husband, home from Farragut for the weekend. . . .

And not to be forgotten are the mothers of the bridal couple. . . . Mrs. Fry's handsome beige gown with emerald trim and Mrs. Snell in camellia pink chiffon. . . . Marylee's grandmothers, Mrs. R. E. Lee Steiner and Mrs. Daniel J. Fry, both in blue. . . . her great aunts. . . . Mrs. Milton L. Meyers in blue with matching sequin trim. . . . Mrs. Walter Denton in red and Mrs. Kattie Graver in black. . . .

Lots of rice showered on Marylee and Bill as they dashed to their car. . . . they spent the week honeymoon in San Francisco. . . .

HONOR GUEST at the Junior Woman's club past president's banquet on Wednesday was Hat-tie Bretzel, last year's president. . . . she looked smart in black with white trim and black pom-padour hat with deep red flowers in front. . . . Mrs. Delbert Schwabbauer, the club's present proxy, presided and wore a gay spring print and small white hat. . . . The speaker, Mrs. Lenard Kephart, in black and a becoming large red straw hat. . . . Mrs. James Pike, the chairman, wore a gold suit and brown hat. . . . A grand affair with some 80 attending, pretty decorations and clever program and skit.

NEWS about Mrs. Robert Weldon (Maxine Rogers) who went south to Los Angeles in early February. . . . She is now companion to the Henry Fonda's two children, a girl six and a boy four, at their beautiful home in the hills in Brentwood. . . . Actor Henry is now in the navy and was recently home on leave. . . . Maxine has access to the station wagon and takes the children to oother actor's homes to play. . . . She is enjoying her work immensely. . . . Husband Bob, is flying daily over Germany and already has two gold clusters to his credit.
