5 January Deaths At Rail Crossings

There were 31 accidents, resulting in five deaths and eight injuries, in railroad crossing accidents during January of this year, Public Utilities Commissioner George Flagg reported Wednesday.

Flagg said this was an increase over the toll for the same period in 1943, despite that many new warning signs have been installed. Thirty-eight railroad crossing accidents, with one death and 14 injuries, already have been reported for February.

Three of the January fatalities occurred at the crossing at Willbridge and Balboa street in Portland. There were two deaths in Albany.

Judge Publicly Washes Hands in Basin

Jesus Condemned to Die on Cross; Pilate Bows to Demand of Enraged Temple Clique

(This is the third of six articles by Robert E. Geiger, AP Features Writer, telling the story of Holy Week as it written by a modern newspaperman.)

JERUSALEM, Nisan 15, A. D. 30 (Friday)—Jesus of Nazareth was tried today and condemned to the cross.

Before penalty was imposed, He was shuttled back and forth among potentates and tribunals, plainly reluctant to take the responsibility.

Even Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor, publicly washed his hands in a basin to signify he wanted no part in the proceedings.

After his arrest last night, Jesus was brought before Annas, former high priest, then to High Priest Caiaphas; to Herod, the Galilean Tetrarch, and finally to Pontius Pilate, who has the power of death. The Pharisees, the scribes and the High Priest were determined that it be used upon the Galilean who had flouted their laws, charged them with graft, and threatened their popularity.

Probably the most spirited encounter occurred in the appearance before Caiaphas.

The Temple clique produced, after much effort, only two witnesses against Jesus. They quoted Him as saying He could destroy the Temple and rebuild it in three days.

"What about this evidence?" Caiaphas asked.

Jesus didn't reply. The High Priest continued: "I adjure you, by the living God, tell us if you are the Christ, the Son of God!"

The accused answered: "Even so! In the future you will all see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of God, and coming on the clouds of heaven."

Caiaphas stormed and tore his robes. "He has blasphemed!" he shouted. "What more evidence do you want?"

After considerable mauling about, Jesus was dragged before Pilate to face trial.

But Pilate ruled that Herod, Galilean Tetrarch, should handle the matter. But after Jesus refused to answer Herod's questions he was sent back to Pilate.

Apparently weary of the case, Pilate tried to lighten the situation by sitting Jesus on his own seat—the tribunal.

"There is your king," he said. The jest fell flat.

"Off with Him!" the crowd ranted. "Crucify Him!" "Crucify your King!"

"We have no king but Caesar," bellowed Caiaphas.

Pilate tried another escape. He offered to release Jesus as the prisoner who customarily is set free in deference to the Jews' Passover observance. The crowd instead claimed the release of Barabbas, robber and murderer.

So Pilate had Jesus scourged. The soldiers dressed Him in a kingly robe, put a crown of thorns on His head and led Him around shouting: "Hail, King of the Jews!"

Then Pilate made a final plea for Jesus' release, but by this time the crowd was impatient and unrelenting. It was too much for Pilate. He handed Jesus over to them to be crucified. Hastily, they took Him, along with the cross to which they intended to nail Him, out on the road to Golgotha, the Place of the Skull.
