OPA Attorney Says Stores Keep Ceilings

Combination of conscience on the part of merchants and well-directed efforts by the price control committees has worked to keep an effective ceiling on prices of clothing and other commodities reports McDannell Brown, director OPA enforcement attorney.

In many cases, states Brown, dealers have refunded directly to customers where prices had been in violation of the ceiling. An example is the Eastern Outfitting company of Portland, which in the past has made refunds totaling $4,527.20 to 268 purchasers of women's apparel. In addition many Oregon firms have made voluntary payments to the US treasury when the ceiling has been broken.

Among stores which have made voluntary contributions to the treasury department are Fields' Ladies' Apparel store in Salem, $122; Kays, Salem, $50; Smart Shop, Salem, $195.90; and Wolby's Silverton, $231.69.

Ninth Annual Swim Week Details Set

Details have been released concerning the 9th annual National Swim for Health week campaign slated for the week of June 26 - July 1—an event which, in these war years is devoted mainly to the furtherance of swimming knowledge among the youth who will ultimately be in uniform.

Literature received from the New York headquarters of the Swim for Health Association emphasizes the "amphibious nature of this war which makes swimming an even greater prerequisite for the young man going into the service."

Aim of the association, as in past years, is to enlist cooperation of local Red Cross chapters, the YWCA, boys' and girls' organizations and the Chamber of Commerce.

Y Head Kells Gets Tribute

In tribute to 30 years of progressive services rendered the YMCA and the Salem community, and on occasion of his 60th birthday anniversary, normal retirement age for association workers, Claude A. Kells, general secretary of the YMCA, was Friday honored in a resolution drawn up by the YMCA board of directors which urged him to continue as leader of the local association.

The resolution held that despite the fact that Mr. Kells "had reached the age of 60 years, sometimes referred to as the age of retirement of Association workers, he had but reached the full vigor of his active service to God and to the people of Salem."

He was described as "anxious to lead the Y in a new era of growth and increased usefulness to the young men and women of Marion and Polk counties."
