Miss Royer Now Mrs. Ebner

MT. ANGEL — Holy Trinity church at Bandon was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday morning, April 19, at 10 o'clock when Miss Mayme Royer, a former Mt. Angel normal student, and Sgt. Clarence Ebner, son of Postmaster and Mrs. G. D. Ebner of Mt. Angel, were united in marriage.

The double ring ceremony was used, Rev. Fr. Kelly officiating.

The sanctuary was beautifully decorated with tulips, stocks, snapdragons and lilies and small bouquets of the flowers were tied to the pews. Miss A. Wilson played the organ.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her brother, Charles Royer, wore a gown of white taffeta, fashioned in princess style with shirred bodice and sleeves. Her lace-edged veil was held in place with orange blossoms and she carried a bridal bouquet of red roses and gardenias.

Miss Gladys Dominigini was bridesmaid and wore a gown of pale green and a small gardenia hat. She carried white tulips.

Two of the bride's primary pupils, Johnny Libby and Rosalie Howanics, acted as ring-bearer and flower girl.

Mr. Bert Ebner of Mt. Angel, brother of the groom, was best man.

The wedding breakfast was held at the Bandon hotel for the bridal party and the members of the immediate families.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. Cackler.

Sgt. and Mrs. Ebner left the same day on a short wedding trip. The groom is stationed at Santa Ana, Calif., and is home on a two weeks furlough. The bride is teaching at the Riverton school near Bandon.

Guests at the breakfast included the Rev. Fr. John and the Rev. Fr. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Royer and daughter, Mr. C. Royer, Mrs. M. Robins, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Cackler of Bandon, and Mrs. G. D. Ebner, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ebner, Mrs. William Beyer and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wavra, all of Mt. Angel.

Mr. Wall chose as his best man, Mr. John Friesen of Dallas. Ushers were Robert Turner and Bryan Woodward.

Mr. Henry F. Wall, brother of the groom, sang "Prayer" by Hiller, and "God Make Thee Mine." Miss Marjory Tetley of Los Angeles played the marches and accompaniments. Preston Rockholt of Los Angeles played the violin preceding the ceremony and also accompanied the marches.

Mrs. Sloan wore a multiple color orchid dress, and Mrs. Wall wore a navy blue ensemble. They had gardenia corsages.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the church parlors for about 150 guests. After a short honeymoon in California the couple will be at home at Dallas.

Mr. Wall attended Dallas schools and is a graduate of the Multnomah School of the Bible in Portland. He is pastoring rural churches under the Dallas Ministerial association and lives on a farm north of Dallas.

Women in Industry They Watch Over Pencillin Culture

BERKELEY, Calif.—Remember the spotless white kitchen at the church suppers of your childhood? Remember the kindly, gray-haired women bustling about doing the dishes?

It's like that at the Cutter Laboratories these days. The same kindly, motherly-looking women. The same bustling efficiency. But they're not doing the church dishes this time.

One of the nation's few producers of the life-giving drug, the Cutter Laboratories have called upon housewives from the San Francisco bay area to help make the yellow miracle powder which saves wounded men's lives by killing germs, and the housewives, most of whom have never worked before, have responded enthusiastically.

Typical of these is Mrs. Addie Wilson, whose service flag boasts five stars—four for her sons, Charles, George, James and Earl, and one for her nephew, all fighting around the world for Uncle Sam.

"I wanted to do something as close to the war effort as I could to help my boys and I decided to keep so busy I wouldn't have time to worry," Mrs. Wilson explained, carefully filling an endless belt of bottles with an amber-colored liquid upon which the penicillin-producing mold will grow.

It was back in January, 1942, that a little test tube containing the hard, blue-green mold spores arrived at the Cutter Laboratories and was pounced upon by experimenting company scientists under government orders to produce great batches of penicillin.

Manufacture of penicillin, to the inexperienced eye of the layman, seems not too complicated a process. Technically, it is in unscientific language, it goes like this:

Half gallon bottles, whose fluffy cotton stoppers make them look like so many giant ice cream cones, are filled partially with an amber-colored liquid and are placed on a moving belt which they ride to an ultra-violet ray room (no admittance) where two white-coated young technicians remove the stoppers, squirt in a bit of spore suspension and quickly jam the stoppers back into the bottles before some unwanted bacteria decides to take up residence.

Thus inoculated, the bottles travel to the nice, warm, incubation room where they're placed upon their sides and stacked neatly to the ceiling. When fermentation gets in, little white spots develop into a fine web of mold. The web thickens and ruffles. Within the next few days the amber liquid in the bottle becomes covered completely by the mold which now resembles a thick white blanket, dotted prettily with splashes of pale blue and turquoise.

It is now that the penicillin enters the picture, for, as it grows, the mold excretes penicillin into the liquid in the bottle in increasing quantities, while the white-coated scientists keep an eagle eye upon developments to see that the penicillin does not lose strength by remaining in the bottle too long. When tests show it is ready to harvest, the mold is skimmed off and the penicillin, in liquid form, is separated from the amber liquid by a chemical process (don't ask). Then it is frozen and dried.

Mrs. Arthur Madsen left by train Thursday for Selfridge Field, Michigan, to be with her son-in-law and daughter, Captain and Mrs. Wilmer E. McDowell (Myra Madsen) and their new son, Rupert Arthur, who was born Wednesday afternoon. The baby, who is in an incubator, was born prematurely due to a severe fall by Mrs. McDowell on Wednesday morning. The little boy's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. McDowell and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Madsen of Salem. Captain McDowell, who is operations officer at the Selfridge Field air base, will meet Mrs. Madsen in Detroit Sunday.

Wall-Sloan Rites Read

SMITHFIELD—At a candle light ceremony in the Grace Baptist church at Chico, California, Miss Wilma Dee Sloan, daughter of Mrs. Wilma Sloan of Paradise, California, became the bride of Mr. Waldo H. Wall, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wall of Dallas at an 8 o'clock service on Friday, the 7th of April. Rev. A. M. Kurkowski officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar was banked with baskets of bridal wreath guarded with tall white tapers.

The bride wore eggshell satin made on princess lines with a short train. The dress had a sweetheart neckline with leg-of-mutton sleeves. Her veil of knee length was caught on her head with bridal wreath sprays. She carried a white Bible with streamers of ribbon and bouquet.

She chose as her matron of honor, her sister, Mrs. Robert Turner of Sacramento who wore a pale blue net formal and carried rosebuds. Her bridesmaids were Mrs. Francis Bowman and Miss Hope Sloan, also her sisters. They wore yellow and blue formals and carried sweetpeas. Little 4 year old Betty Jo Bowman, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore yellow or-gandie and carried a basket of hyacinths.

Miss Elsbeth Wall, sister of the groom, lighted the candles and wore a pink organdie formal.
