Gain in Membership Shown by Local Congregation

The annual meeting and fourth quarterly conference of the Jason Lee Methodist church was held Thursday, with Dr. J. Edgar Purdy, the district superintendent, presiding. All departments of the church showed substantial gains, according to reports read. C. M. Roberts, Sunday school superintendent, reported a gain in Sunday school attendance in recent months of 65 new enrollments. R. M. Murphy, lay leader, reported a new interest in the men's work which includes sponsorship of the Boy Scout troop and a pack of 40 Cubs. Stearns Cushing and W. E. Savage are in charge of the Scouts and Carl Carlson, the Cub

The church membership is now 833, with 34 new members being added this year. The pastor also reported 24 baptisms. A building fund committee has been appointed to start raising money for a new Sunday school building, which will be adequate for the growing church school. The lay members of the Oregon annual conference, elected for the coming four years are Robert A. Forkner and Mrs. Carl Carlson.

On recommendation of the pastoral relations committee it was requested that the pastor, Rev. S. Raynor Smith, be again appointed for the sixth year. The license to preach was renewed for Raymond E. Short the present minister to youth, who leaves the first of June to enter the theological school of Duke university and for Nevitt B. Smith, the son of the pastor, who is now in Willamette and the student pastor at Turner Methodist church, who will enter Iliff School of Theology at Denver university July 1. The two retired members of the Jason Lee quarterly conference are Rev. John Quigley and Rev. N. Sherman
