

Few Fans See 40-8's Second Bopping Bee

Bailey in a bad way in the second, the ball saving him. Referee Packy McFarland stopped it when it was apparent Bailey was totally out-casted. Bailey subbed for Orv Fetters, who couldn't obtain foul-rough from his army post.

Kelly Jackson, 190, another sub, cleanly outpointed Jack Lindley, 162, in the six-round special, both colored boys in for the Wright-Roy McQueen "grudge" scrap. McQueen failed to show. This one kept McFarland busy telling the waiters to "shake it up, or else."

Roxey Mobley, 141, Swan Island, carried Jimmy Gordon, 140, Portland, to the fifth round of their 6-rounder, and then put him away with a soft left after one minute of that heat had elapsed. Visibly tired, Gordon was an easy target for Mobley. The two mighty mites who appeared on the first 40 at 8 card, "Dynamite" Abbott, 105, and "Pee Wee" Jackson, 110, went to a draw in last night's opening four-round exhibition. They were again crowd-pleasers.

Immediately following the Sullivan-Hooker go, the latter challenged the former to a rematch in the local pits a week from next Thursday night. Sullivan accepted and Promoter Pilcher is now "thinking it over." It was a fight worthy of a rematch.

Nazis Claim To Be Biting Into Allies

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—The Germans asserted tonight that furious fighting with the allies was reaching out on both sides of the Caen line and that the reinforced troops were biting into the western end of the allied bridgehead in France and swinging into position to strangle two infantry-supported American airborne divisions at the mouth of the Vire river.

The German claims continued to be ignored by allied headquarters and lacked confirmation elsewhere as well.

The DNB agency said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, chief of allied ground forces, had thrown 12 divisions into the battle and that his reinforcements, especially tanks, were arriving steadily from England. This, the German agency asserted, "explains the thrust to Bayeux and beyond, southeastward."

One German radio account said Gen. Eisenhower "so far has brought into play only one-tenth of the forces at his disposal."

The radio reports pictured the allied tank drives from Bayeux as seeking to link up with airborne forces in the Caen and Carentan areas.

The German accounts gave this general picture: Caen — "The allies increased their pressure on the road from Bayeux to Caen. Germans moving up from the south checked the advance. Super-heavy British tanks have landed north of Caen."

Carentan — "British tanks, having broken through the German line at Bayeux, are advancing westward, trying to link up with two American airborne divisions which are between Carentan and St. Mere-Eglise and exposed to German pressure from north, west and south. Allied reinforcements are being landed by air in this sector and hundreds of American tanks were thrown straight into battle."

St. Mere-Eglise — "House to house fighting with the Americans."

The outpouring axis radio reports, many of them obviously designed to extract information about allied intentions, included fewer reports of "new landings" than were carried in the first two days of the invasion.
