Lumber Wage Said No Issue In Shortages

WASHINGTON, June 12—(AP) The northwest fir and pine industries, told the war labor board today that most lumbermen who are missing from the industry are in the armed forces, not in other jobs.

He expressed belief, therefore, that wage increases would not increase manpower in the lumber industry.

Earlier, AFL lumber union representatives asked the board to reconsider its refusal to treat 77 lumber wages cases as "rare and unusual" and justify upward adjustments of wages as helping solve labor shortages in the production of critically needed lumber.

Cookley contended the case was not "rare and unusual" since 1944 production rates are higher than in 1943.

"There simply is no manpower available in the northwest area at the present time," he said, "and higher wages will not have any effect upon increasing the number of personnel in the lumber industry."

He stated that an increase of 12½ cents an hour among the lumber workers in the northwest would aggregate $50,000,000 a year.

"And the lumber industry is operating under price ceilings," he declared.

Cookley said lumber strikes in the northwest had occurred in metropolitan areas where national representatives of labor unions were concentrated.

"The strikes did not occur in the backwoods where men could act as free agents," he asserted.

Belton Seeks State Senate Presidency

Sen. Howard Belton of Canby said in Salem Monday that he is a candidate for the post of president of the senate in the next legislative assembly. Belton is leaving the last of this week to attend the republican national convention in Chicago, having been elected a delegate-at-large at the recent primaries. He has represented Clackamas county in the state legislature for several terms.

"I have been urged to be a candidate by a number of the members and have agreed to stand for the office," said Belton, who is a hold-over member. Belton is a graduate of Oregon State college and a farmer in southern Clackamas county.

Over the weekend announcement was made in Marshfield that Sen. William E. Walsh would be a candidate for senate president, if he is reelected in November. Sen. Rex Ellis of Pendleton and Coe E. McKenna of Portland are also candidates.

Monday came the report that democrats would contest the ruling of Attorney General George Neuner that Douglas McKay and Allan G. Carson, who were elected in 1942 to the senate but are serving in the armed forces hold their offices with Fred Lampport and John H. Carson serving pro tem by appointment. Sen. Lew Wallace of Portland is said to plan a test action with the view of declaring the seats vacant and so open for the November election. Just what form his action would take is not announced, but presumably it would be by mandamus to force the secretary of state to accept a filing of nomination by the county democratic committee.

Car Crashes Drug Store

Two automobile accidents over the weekend resulted in considerable damage to an "immovable bystander" in one instance, and slight damage in the second.

The plate glass window of the Capital Drug Store at State and Liberty was smashed, merchandise destroyed and the finishing damaged Sunday morning when the car operated by Charles Putnam careened about after being struck by another car operated by Rupert Magee. Putnam was driving north on Liberty and Magee west on State, neither at a rapid speed, when the intersection collision swung the Putnam car into the drug store window. Damage to right front and rear fenders of Putnam's car and to the front end of Magee's car were noted.

The less serious accident occurred Saturday afternoon when Allen Russel Wilton, 2635 South Summer street, hit the rear fender of an unidentified car parked at the curb on the 300 North Commercial block. Mrs. Walter R. Dry, 700 South Commercial, an eye-witness to the accident, reported to the police that Wilton left the scene of the accident. The rear bumper of the Nash car was dented and scratched.

State May Buy Dental School

PORTLAND, June 12—(AP)—The state system of higher education is considering buying the North Pacific College of Oregon, a dental school, as part of the state's educational facilities, the Portland Journal said today.

The matter will be acted on at a meeting of the board tomorrow, the paper said, adding the view would be expressed by the board that the state's entrance into the field of dental education is a matter for the legislature to act upon. The Oregon State Dental association in convention here last week, recommended that the state take over the privately-operated institution.

Along the 8,000 miles of Great Northern Railway thousands of men and women are co-ordinating hundreds of different tasks into one mighty big and important job every 24 hours.

They are helping to produce war-winning transportation.

In the meritorious service of Great Northern men and women these days is pride of workmanship. And, something else. Plain, old-fashioned American patriotism!

Sure, you can hear the boys up and down the line holding forth almost anytime on how the war really should be run. But, that's as American as Dan'l Boone, baseball or ice cream! Just listen a bit longer, and soon you'll hear them mention, with undisguised pride, leads in uniform... the best Victory gardens under the sun... how many pints of blood they've given the Red Cross... and their stakes in War Bonds.

Great Northern paychecks, like those of any large employer, are subject to deductions required by law. Each month, the railway's treasurer issues thousands of paychecks which are subject to still another deduction—voluntary allotments for War Bond purchases.

These are Paychecks With a Punch, and the allotments from more than 18,000 employes total nearly $400,000 in War Bonds monthly. In addition, many employes make cash purchases of bonds through the company, which is a government-licensed issuing agent.

The Paychecks With a Punch have bought for Great Northern employes almost $10,000,000 in War Bonds, earning for them a top-ranking position among all transcontinental railways for payroll allotment purchases.

They will continue to work their part, wherever they work and live along the Great Northern, during the Fifth War Bond drive, which opened June 12.
