Rules Tighten For Buying New 1942 Car

Fewer persons will be eligible to buy new 1942 cars after June 23, Edmond W. Eggen, district OPA mileage rationing representative, announced Monday. The list of eligibles is being reduced because of the small number of new 1942 cars available for rationing, he explained.

Doctors, nurses, ministers, war workers and others engaged in work essential to the war effort or to public health and safety are on the eligible list, Eggen said. Highlights of the new rules: The car must be used principally for one or more of the purposes included in the eligibility list.

Eligibility of persons who want a 1942 car for driving four or more pupils, students, teachers or school employees to or from school is revoked.

Eligibility is granted the United Service Organizations, Inc., upon certification of U.S.O. national headquarters that a car is needed in connection with travel on official business.

In the past, members of the armed forces on active duty, as well as persons who had been advised they were physically fit for military duty, could sell their 1942 cars for any person, whether he had ration certificates or not. Now they may sell on this basis only to members of their own families, after obtaining a clearance statement from any local OPA board.

Junk or salvage companies may now buy a damaged 1942 car with a ration certificate for repair and resale.

All persons eligible to acquire a car for purposes other than their own use may scrap a 1942 car or salvage its parts if repair is not practicable.

A 1942 car may be regained by an owner from whom the car was repossessed, without the necessity of getting a certificate.

Earlier in the day an order was filed from the Silverton justice court binding Farley over to the grand jury. Besides his wife, there are five minor children involved. Date of non-support started Feb. 9, 1944, according to material submitted.

We're seeing the Lights come on again

WE'RE NOT telling ourselves that the war is practically over. There's still a tremendous job to do. But even so, as busy United Mainliners speed along the Pacific Coast, we're seeing the lights start to come on again. It is the beginning of the brighter tomorrow which lies ahead.

United has always had implicit confidence in the future of the West. From a modest beginning, United's famous Main Line Airway today links 17 Pacific Coast cities with Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and many other of the nation's East Coast cities. A record of more than 260 million miles of flying experience has been established.

The men and women of United continue to plan ahead. They know that as soon as aircraft plants can turn from building bombers to producing commercial planes, you will travel in great, new, 4-engine Mainliners that will serve the Pacific Coast . . . planes that will cruise at 300 miles an hour.

There will be luxurious flight accommodations for 52 passengers . . . details of service and cuisine that will be even finer than United's present high standards . . . fares that will be consistently lowered.

Regardless of where you want to go, call us for complete air travel information. Busy as we are with meeting wartime traffic demands, we'll do all we can to help you. Even if your destination is on a route other than United's, we want to serve as your travel information headquarters.
