AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England-Staff Sgt. Charles H. Drees, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil F. Drees of 1011 West 12th street, Vancouver, Wash., and a former resident of Salem, Ore., is a medical technician at this Eighth AAF heavy bombardment base. He not only helps to save lives and alleviate suffering, but also contributes by his work to the speedier winning of the war.

So interwoven are the various technical and administrative Yank Planes duties involved in heavy bombardment operations, that the contri-bution of every flier and every Hammer Yap AAF ground worker-no matter how insignificant his particular job may seem-is important to getting the planes into the air and over enemy targets.
