Salem Charter, Isaac Walton League

BY VERNE ROBB

July 1st was no bank holiday; bands played and crowds gathered, but it was for the fifth war loan drive; the siren sounded, but only signaled the usual noon hour—yet quietly but effectively, Isaac Walton came back to Salem—sans fan-fare. This is true because 103 names on the charter list are now in the Chicago office of the National. May we introduce the "Salem Chapter of the Isaac Walton League of America."

League Objectives
Form Sound Platform

The manual or "bible" furnished the chapter officers is a complete resume of the principles and practices of conservation. From it, the following is again a reminder that "Waltonians are not merely a group of organized fishermen or hunters; Waltonism blankets the entire field of conservation. It represents the interests of many groups and brings the united strength of all to the common cause of systematic, planned conservation. Foresters, naturalists, devotees of the out-of-doors, fishermen, hunters, conservationists, admirers of song birds and wild flowers, leaders interested in developing the youth of America, good-citizens of every walk of life and with every variety of interest find in the Isaac Walton League an avenue of service by which they can help make America a better land in which to live."

The true functions of Waltonism and the complete scope of its program can best be covered in reviewing the "planks" in their platform:

1. Control of pollution to safeguard health and aquatic life.
2. Protect and extend our forests and grass lands.
3. Prevent unjustifiable drainage and high dams.
4. Stop the sale of wild game and game fish.
5. Encourage production of wildlife by safeguarding natural conditions.
6. Obtain non-political administration of conservation departments.
7. Establish natural resources and wildlife courses in colleges as a basis for scientific land and water management.
8. Support land use and tax policies encouraging adequate forests, wildlife and soil protection.
9. Oppose granting special rights or privileges on federal lands superior to those of the government or general public, on the

Fourth "Fireworks" Mat Title Card Set for Tuesday Night

Dual-tunneled—to both celebrate the Fourth and decide once again whether the champ of the Coast's lightweight rascals is ought but a chump, Tuesday night's bi-cep binge at the armory has been completed to the extent that all six crunch cronies have been signed and named by Matchmaker Don Owen for the card in the raw, the customers needn't worry for lack of fireworks on Independence Day. The bloopers will doubtless provide some, as they manage to do most any Tuesday night. Coast Champion Faavo Katonen will of course pitch his coveted title belt to the block and twist torsoes with Gregous Georgie Wagner in the top match, but the two 30-minute prelims loom as fitting primers. In the 8:30 opener bated of the bloeppers who dumb-founded the clients by actually showing up for last week's card, returns to mix with Walter "Th' Sneezer" Achlu. The popular Chinnaman, who woul probably be rassing Katonen Tuesday were it not for a had break which could have labled him permanently last week, was given the berth against El Bullidog' as a resture of kindness by Owen. The matchmaker is pleased with Achlu's always sparkling performances here and rewards the ju-hting Oriental accordingly. Tony "Windup" Morell, the powerhouse Gotham stylist who once grappled for Uncle Sam's Olympic Games team, makes his first appearance since returning from Hollywood in the semi-wind-up. He'll pit his strength and weight against Eugene Tex Hager's speed and cleverness in a session which is earmarked as strictly clean and scientific. The Wagner-Katonen mix is expected to be as fierce as they come. Neither grappler is liked too well in the circuit and not even a little love is lost between the two. It was Katonen who took the Coast crown from Georgie originally, and despite having three or four tries at getting it back, Wagner has failed every time, but only after blood-curdling skirmishes with the curly-headed Finn. There will be no advance in admission prices for the show and all grapplers have agreed to appear earlier in the evening at Mari a Square in behalf of the war bond and Fourth of July program ticketed for the park.

Woodburn Tops Salems, 13-2

In the fifth for two runs on three hits. Hagedorn struck out to open the frame, but Johnny Dalke popped a single to right. Bud Craig beat out a swinging bunt single down the third base line and Bielemeier shoved both along with a wild pitch. Dick Allison fanned but McKee booted Province's grounder and Dalke scored. Then Roger Dasch rifled a single to left fair by inches, to count craig. Dick Hendrie grounded out to end the inning.

Ball Bill Set Next Sunday

Another bulbous baseball day for the villagers next Sunday, July 9, only this time spiced with a nine-inning game featuring growups. Camp Adair Trailblazer Division's Cannoneers, a comparatively new outfit thirsting for competition but finding it frightfully scarce, make their debut in Geo. E. Waters park at 2:45 p.m. Sunday and against Warden George Alexander's Prison Greys.

Returns for Tuesday Mat Brawl

Golf would return to the White House as a major sport if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the republican presidential nominee, wins next November.

There hasn't been a golfing president since the early 1920s, when Warren G. Harding was a familiar sight on the Washington fairways. He probably was the most photographed sports president in history.

Dewey, who shoots in the low 90s, takes his golf game very seriously. He's been a backer of the program that has given his state one of the finest sets of municipal courses in the nation.

The first golfing president was rotund William Howard Taft, who puffed around 18 holes with a lack of hitting power that contrasted sharply with his bulk.

Taft's successor, Woodrow Wilson, played the game consistently, but not well. His golf was mostly a puttering-around job, and he seemed content with 150-yard drives.

Dewey Certain Golfing 'Prexy'

The first golfing president was rotund William Howard Taft, who puffed around 18 holes with a lack of hitting power that contrasted sharply with his bulk.

Taft's successor, Woodrow Wilson, played the game consistently, but not well. His golf was mostly a puttering-around job, and he seemed content with 150-yard drives.

Battle-scarred Bulldog Jackson, the ancient lightweight grappler who can still thrill the customers, returns Tuesday night to the armory to match muscles with Walter Achlu in the 8:30 opener. Tony Morell vs. Tex Hager in the semi-wind-up and Champion Faavo Katonen vs. Georgie Wagner in a coast title scrap complete the Fourth of July "fireworks" card.

Expression Takes Rich Lassie Trot

CHICAGO, July 1—(P)—Expression, a trim two-year-old eastern filly sired by the 29-year-old The Porter, raced to her first stake victory today in winning the $36,000 Arlington Park Lassie by the margin of a head over the Calumet Farm's Twoxy. Three and a half lengths farther back in third place was Blue Alibi, at odds of 30 to 1. Blue Skimmer, the favorite, was fourth in the field of eight.

Redlegs Blank Giants
CINCINNATI, July 1—(P)—The Cincinnati Reds increased their third place lead over New York Giants 5-0 today. Ed Heusser scattered seven hits and aided by two double plays executed by the Reds' infield, was never in any difficulty.

from the Edmarie Farms, withstood a stretch challenge by Cue Ball to take the featured race at Longacre today. Mightear paid $18.80, $7.50 and $3.60. Cue Ball paid $5 and $2.90 as runnerup and Silk Wind $2.70 for show.

Longacres Feature Taken by Mightear

SEATTLE, July 1—(P)—Mightear, a lightly-backed six-year-old in all the winners collected a dozen hits, Sauvain's double in the fourth being the only extra-baser amongst them. Dalke best out a hit to short in the ninth to go along with his other single for two of the CP's five blows. The Salems looked much better this time with the hit wand and Bielemeier managed to fan only 11 compared to the 19 he whiffed last Sunday.

All but one member of the Salem team saw action in the game, and most of those juniors who'll be back next summer and the one after played a large portion of it.

Next outing for the Salem—they want to keep on playing despite being eliminated in Legion Junior play—is booked for next Sunday morning in Waters park against Albany.

Segura Enters Net Fame Hall

EVANSTON, Ind., July 1—(P)—Francisco "Pancho" Segura, representing the University of Miami, today entered the collegiate tennis hall of fame by trouncing Notre Dame's Charley Samson in straight sets for his second straight N.C.A.A. tennis singles title.

The swarth native of Ecuador, who goes after a tennis ball in two-fisted, Babe Ruth fashion, belted Captain Samson of the Irish, 6-0, 6-4, 6-0, to rank with Tulane's talented brother, Clifford and Ernest Sutter, and Frank Guernsey of Rice institute as the only two-time collegiate champions. Segura's triumph placed Miami in a three-way tie with Notre Dame and Texas for California's undefended team championship.

Police Sports Held
VANCOUVER, B. C., July 1—(P)—More than 5,000 fans watched the 38th annual police sports here today, in which many American contestants participated.
