Don't Look Now...

but... if you see an old man, limping down the street today, it's probably your groceryman—after yesterday. Uncle Sam pulled a pinners movement on him. Not only was Saturday, Saturday and the first of the month, it was also the last shopping day before the Fourth of July and furthermore that impish OPA deliberately raised point values, beginning today, so every living human would heckle the food merchant at least a little on Saturday.

Glamour boy... We understand that our Father's day pictures made quite a hit with the readers but nothing compared to furor the picture of Dr. Steiner's dog raised. He's been getting fan mail ever since. One letter from Maine lamented the passing of a family pet which looked just like him, and another from Florida expressed interest in his parentage.

Exception to the rule... We heard that California fruit growers declare that unless tons of second grade peaches are used for manufacture of whiskey they will go to waste. Well at least it's drawn an admission that there's something second rate grown in California.

Same ending... funny how many different causes have the same effect. Arturo Toscanini directs the General Motors orchestra, Jack Dempsey makes a speech, the Quiz Kids perform and the circus acrobats do a stunt—and it all results in selling more war bonds.

Remember when... We bought Fourth of July firecrackers from fascinating Chinatown down on High street, and when the cherry fair featured cherries as big as prunes, a beautiful Queen Anne and rugged King Bing, and we all turned out with parasols to see the parade of decorated automobiles filled with ladies in flowing veils?
