Kennedy Tells Of Vital Need For WAVES

Qualified, available women who hesitate to leave a good job at home and enlist in the WAVES may be responsible for prolonging the war and for the death of many men, Mel Kennedy, local recruiter, told members of the Salem Credit association at the luncheon Friday.

Twenty-six thousand men were killed or wounded during the last few moments of World war I, Kennedy pointed out, and the longer this war is prolonged the more men will lose their lives. The navy has found that every woman who enlists in the WAVES is responsible for releasing two sailors to fight and the more men there are to fight the sooner the war will end, Kennedy reasoned, as high officials of the navy have reasoned before him.

"Release a Man to Fight" was the name of a WAVE film in color shown at the luncheon. The color is an important description of the film since it displayed to the fullest extent the nice blue uniforms to say nothing of the glamorous "red-headed girls" who seemed in the majority. The bright-colored flowers on the mess table were only slightly brighter than the hair of many blue uniformed women.

Listeners might be pardoned for believing there are 100,000 men eager and ready to leave for the battle fronts since the navy seeks 50,000 WAVE recruits and the recruiter admitted "one woman releases two men."

Called together by Robert M. Everden, director of the accident prevention division of the state industrial accident commission, the persons who met here are primarily concerned with a coordinating program of education to reduce accidents on farms and in homes.

It developed that many groups of city workers are being transported daily from the cities to farms and then returned at the close of the day's work. From the preliminary conference here Friday, it was expected that a definite program will be developed.

L. O. Arens, chairman of the industrial accident commission, presided. Among those in attendance were representatives of Oregon State college, various safety agencies, Farm Bureau, vocational education department, state traffic division and state police. Figures presented indicated that accidents in some categories have increased during the past two years, despite prevention activities. In other lines the accidents have been reduced materially.

SEATTLE, July 7 (AP)—A 31-year-old father, in a dramatic appeal against being returned to the Ohio state reformatory from which he escaped nine years ago, told today how he attempted to evade detection by assuming a housekeeper's role while his wife went to work in war plants.

John W. Kuglar, father of a four-month-old child, related his story to US District Judge John C. Bowen after a federal attorney sought dismissal of a selective service charge so reformatory guards can return him to Ohio. Extradition paper have been signed and two guards are here to take him back to complete his term for robbery, which had eight months to run when he escaped.

The judge continued the case until tomorrow to give Kuglar a chance to obtain an attorney to lay his case before the governor. Kuglar asked for a week's continuance.

Kuglar said he feigned a heart attack to trade jobs with his wife, first at Portland, Ore., and later here, when he feared authorities were checking on his past. He said his wife had no knowledge of his criminal record. They were married two years ago.

He said he was sentenced for participating in robbery of a chain store messenger with two other youths, and escaped after the other two had won freedom on paroles.

Service Men

Where They Are—What They Are Doing

AUMSVILLE—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Frison have received word from their son, Desmond Frison, in North Africa. He went through the Sicilian campaign and a part of the Italian campaign. Following that he was hospitalized for two months. He has now been assigned to ordnance company.

TURNER—Sgt. D. C. Robinson, son of Guy Robinson, route one, Turner, is listed among those wounded in action in the Mediterranean area in recent Washington, DC, dispatches.

Ota Benegar, Jr., has entered a five weeks training course for navigators at the Santa Ana, Calif., airbase, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Benegar, 70 East Turner road.

William Adolph Hager, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hager, route 6, received his silver wings and second lieutenant's commission on June 26. He graduated from advanced two-engine pilot school at Pecos army air field, Texas. Before being sent to Pecos he was at Lemoor, Calif., where he completed a course in training in twin engine aircraft. Lt. Hager is a graduate of Salem high schools. His wife and daughter, Janet, make their home in Tacoma.

JEFFERSON—James Hampton, who received his basic training at Fort Lewis, Wash., has been transferred to Camp Walters, Texas. He is with the army heavy artillery. Mrs. Hampton and two sons are living in Jefferson where she is working on a haybaler while her mother, Mrs. Scott Hawk, cares for the children during the day.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reid, 1546 Elm street, have received word from their sons Harry P. Reid, MM2/c and Harold W. Reid, cowboy, Seabees with the US navy, that they met for the second time within a month in England. This was their first meeting in almost two years. Both took part in the invasion. Harold enlisted January 28, 1941, and Harry in May 1943.

WITH US SOUTH PACIFIC ARMY FORCES—Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commanding US army forces in the south Pacific, announced the award of the oak leaf cluster in lieu of an additional air medal June 17 to First Lt. Russell J. Christensen, air corps, of Lyons, Ore., as element leader from May 5 to May 25, 1944.

A bronze oak leaf cluster in awarded for meritorious achievement while participating in sustained combat, operational missions of a hazardous nature during which enemy opposition is met, or during which an area is traversed where enemy anti-aircraft fire is effective or where enemy fighter patrols are habitually encountered. The missions for which the award was given were with the 13th AAF.

Col. White's, a New York advertising executive, had sought to obtain more extensive coverage of political and other controversial news from the United States. With departure of White, army public relations officers will assume direction of the editions of the paper published at Oran, Algiers, Naples and Rome, whereas previously contents of the Stars and Stripes in this area had been relatively free of war department guidance.

Col. White's removal came after the war department recently rejected his plan to have Mediterranean editions of the service paper receive 2000 words daily from the Associated Press in addition to material from the army news service and psychological warfare branch.

Honey Bees Cause Fire
LONGVIEW, July 7 (AP)—Two men quest for a wild honey cache between the walls was blamed today for the $200,000 fire which destroyed the Pacific Paperboard company box plant early Monday.

E. L. Smith, assistant state fire marshal, said the two men, whose names were not released, admitted using a blow torch on the nest after the bees stung them. Prosecutor Melvin C. Rooney said the torch flames apparently carried up between the walls and fire broke out after the two men left the plant. One was a long-time employe; the other was a former employe.

Smith said the quest netted one quart of honey.

Redmond Gets 317th Wing Headquarters
REDMOND, Ore., July 7 (AP)—Headquarters of the 317th wing of the fourth air force, with control over 20 western army bases, was established at Redmond army air base today.

The staff of 15 officers and men is under command of Col. J. C. Crothwaite, who served in the African and Sicilian campaigns as chief of staff of tactical air force under Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham. He previously commanded the San Francisco fighter wing and later the Seattle fighter wing.

The Redmond base will serve as hub for operational control of four main bases at Portland, Ephrata, Wash., Moses Lake, Wash., and Chico, Calif., and 16 sub-bases such as Madras and Yakima. All single-engine fighter pilot training on the Pacific coast is conducted on bases under the 317th wing.

The staff includes Lt. Col. Ernest C. Young, director of operations; Maj. Thomas H. Windburn, assistant director; Maj. Claude Brewer, director of administration; Lt. Irving MacPherson, assistant director, and Lt. Col. William Moody, director of supply and maintenance.
