Food, Goods Ships, Slips Discussed

By MAXINE BUREN

A miscellany of ideas comes by way of publicity releases to my desk. Here are a few notes from the releases that are pertinent to the times and of interest to women.

...How to pack a ship. Ask any woman about packing, she knows that soft packages take less room than boxes. Using this principle in the army is increasing the capacity of ships as much as 50 per cent by using heavy cotton tubular baling instead of boxes to protect clothing, tents and other items shipped overseas.

What's in a name? Cardigan, collarless jacket was named for the Earl of Cardigan who wore one. Havelock, rain hood worn by the WAVEs was named for the first wearer, Sir Henry Havelock of the British army in India. A Tuxedo was first worn at Tuxedo Park in 1880. Pompadour was created and named for Madame de Pompadour, favorite of Louis XIV of France. Georgette was named for a famous French couturiere, Eton jackets for the school where they are worn and Chesterfield coats for the British lord by that name.

Leathers (coming mostly from sheep, goats and pigs for gloves) are finished in two major ways: 1—grained leathers finished on the hair or grain side of the skin and made soft or glossy. 2—napped leathers, which have the grain side cut off and are finished on the reverse or flesh side. They are given a soft velvety finish. Suede is a nap finish for sheepskin or kidskin, the flesh side being buffed to gain that soft texture.

Under cover news. According to the stores, women are asking for more petticoats, partly because they are worn with summer low backed dresses and partly to supplement regular slips in sheer dresses because the no-shadow panels have been banned by Uncle Sam.

What war has done. This is the corset situation after two and one half years of war: 1. There will be practically no new styles for the season. 2. Almost all will continue to have some sections of natural rubber, although whittled down to minimum. 3. Slide fasteners are practically out. 4. Broadcloths, brocades and rayon satins are getting scarcer. Now it's to be ginghams, taffetas, prints, new rayons and cotton weaves. 5. Boning is still with us. 6. Nude is the color, white comes second.

...Hungry ..children. ..Oregon school lunches were assured federal aid by recent congressional action authorizing funds throughout the nation, according to word sent to the office of distribution at Portland. A good school lunch program is of great importance, especially on congested production areas, believes the regional director of food distribution.

SCIO—Word has been received by Mrs. Jerry Walter (Georgit Whitney), Scio, of the marriage June 5 in England of her brother Sgt. Vernal Whitney to Margaret Woodring. Mrs. Whitney is an employee of a power company in England.
