"A Guy Named Joe" Feature At Capitol

In the film now playing at the Capitol theatre, one of the characters explains the title as "Any guy who is a right guy, is a guy named Joe," and all the men in the American air force glorified in the movie, "A Guy Named Joe", are right guys. The film pivots around the old superstition that "pilots never die."

"A Guy Named Joe" is the story of our airmen, their loves and cares and brings to the screen one of the most heart warming romances ever filmed. Pete Sandidge, played by Spencer Tracy, is a reckless and daredevil pilot. His work is characterized by a disregard for his own safety, much to the despair of his superior officers and to Dorinda Durston, played by Miss Dunne, who loves him desperately. Their love affair is marred by petty quarrels engendered by Dorinda's worry. Finally, Pete agrees to return to the United States as an instructor, but before his departure he is sent on a reconnaissance mission. He goes to his death bombing an enemy transport.

He awakens to find himself in a strange place, the "heaven" of dead airmen. Here he learns from "The General," played by Lionel Barrymore, that he has a new job, that of aiding young student pilots to become proficient airmen. Pete's charge specifically is young Van Johnson. Unseen by any mortal, Pete sits with Van as he flies and Pete teaches him all of his tricks. Soon traits of his personality begin to appear in Van. When Van is assigned to combat duty, Pete follows. There he finds Dorinda again, still grieving for him until she falls in love with Van, mainly because he is Pete all over again. After a thrilling climax, during which Dorinda carries out a dangerous mission, she returns safely to Van and a happy future life, and Pete returns to the "General" for another assignment content with what he has done.

US Senate Committee To Meet in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., July 22-(P)—The senate committee on small business will hold a one-day hearing here next Friday, with three of the five members definitely scheduled to attend. Senators James E. Murray, Montana, chairman, Thomas Stewart of Tennessee and Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska will study problems facing small business during the transition from wartime to peacetime operations.

YEIMA MIDDLETON, dynamic vocalist appearing Monday night, July 24th at Cottonwoods with Louis Armstrong and his famous orchestra. Armstrong is one of a number of big name bands scheduled to appear at Cottonwoods this summer.

Irene Dunne and Spencer Tracy, stars of M-G-M's "A Guy Named Joe," which is now showing at the Capitol theatre, are seen together for the first time on any screen. Here Miss Dunne is thinking about Tracy, who appears in this scene spiritually, for he has already given his all for the great cause. Tracy tells Miss Dunne to carry on, and she does. She meets Van Johnson, falls in love with him and even marries him in the end. Companion feature "Dancing Masters," stars Laurel and Hardy.

"Four Jills in a Jeep" Show Now Playing at Grand Theatre

Hold on to your heart! Hang on to your funnybone! "Four Jills in a Jeep" spun across the screen of the Grand theatre last night on the musical highway to hilarity in a non-stop riot and hold-tight romance. And from all indications the movie-goers of this city are in for the entertainment ride of a lifetime.

The 20th Century Fox story of the merry, musical adventures of four girls who set out to see the world—the hard way—features Kay Francis, Carole Landis, Martha Raye and Mitzi Mayfair, with Jimmy Dorsey and his Orchestra, John Harvey, Phil Silvers, and introduces Dick Haymes, radio's sensational singing star. Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Carmen Miranda and George Jessel, who acts as master of ceremonies, appear as the film's guest stars.

The star- and song-studded hit is based on the adventures, romantic and otherwise, Kay Francis, Carole Landis, Martha Raye and Mitzi Mayfair encountered when they took their show to our fighting boys in England and in the fox-holes of North Africa while on their now-famous tour.

Happily enough, svelte Kay, glamorous Carole, madcap Martha and pert Mitzi are cast as "themselves." And that's more than enough for anyone. Those who have read any of their interviews given on their return from the real tour will realize that very little of the film is based on fiction.

Jimmy Dorsey and his Orchestra are on hand, swinging out in the famous style that has made them the No. 1 band to millions throughout the country. As Carole Landis' romantic interest, John Harvey displays a talent that is certain to skyrocket him to early stardom. And you'd better take a spare funnybone along because Phil Silvers is bound to play havoc with the one you have.

Alan Marshal and Irene Dunne in a romantic scene from M-G-M's "The White Cliffs of Dover," now at the Elsinore theatre. Based on Alice Duer Miller's beloved poem, "The White Cliffs," the film is the story of an American girl who went to England "for two weeks" and stayed to marry and live there through two World wars. Companion feature "She's A Soldier Too," with Beulah Bond.

Tender, Heart-Warming Film Is "White Cliffs of Dover"

Every once in a while there comes a beautiful heart-warming picture it is our privilege to see. Today, at the Elsinore theatre, this reviewer saw one of the most poignant films ever to emanate from Hollywood. It is called "The White Cliffs of Dover" and was produced by MGM.

If ever a motion picture tended to cement our relations with the British, this film can very well be said to be it. It grasps a definite intimacy that can be expected by an American girl who, while on a visit to Great Britain with her father, decides to make England her country. She has found love in Alan Marshal, an Englishman, and together they live an idyllic life. That is, until the trumpets call him to service in the First World War.

Marshal makes the great sacrifice, but leaves behind a son who inherits all his qualities. Miss Dunne, the boy's mother, watches him grow up and is content to have that vestige of her husband fill the long hours of day and night. But even her small happiness in this respect is short-lived, for her son now must answer the call in World War II.

Meanwhile, to occupy her time, she joins the Red Cross and sees her son brought in wounded. He dies in a cot at the hospital where she is stationed.

The warmth given by Miss Dunne to her role cannot be easily dismissed. It is hard to express, but is definitely a warmth overshadowed only by a great story itself. Frank Morgan, as her father, manages to stand out in an entirely different characterization for which he is noted. Then there is Roddy McDowall, as the boy, and Peter Lawford, as the son grown up, both of whom are almost letter-perfect in their assignments. C. Aubrey Smith lends a bit of humor to his part, as does Dame May Whitty, Gladys Cooper and Elizabeth Taylor are also among the preferred assets for fine performances.

Jap Charge Dismissed

EUREKA, Calif., July 22-(P)—An indictment charging 26 Japanese-Americans of the Tule Lake segregation center with selective service act violations was dismissed today by US District Judge Louis E. Goodman, who ruled that an internee was not accorded due process of law.

Ice-Capades Of '45 Coming To Portland

Ice skating in all its glory! Headlining a cavalcade of stars—old favorites and new faces—and with a wonderland of gorgeous new costumes, unique scenic effects and haunting music, the lavish, opulent Ice-Capades of 1945 will make its second annual pilgrimage to the Portland Ice Arena beginning Thursday, July 27. Advance reports and reviews herald this latest opus on the colorful glazed surface as the greatest of the five Ice-Capades editions.

Among the popular ice favorites who are thrilling audiences are dynamic red-haired Donna Atwood; the mellow and exhilarating "Old Smoothies", Markhus & Thomas; that "S-Pin-Up-Girl" Juggler, Trixie; the Rhythmic Bombshell, Jamie Lawrence; the painted wizard of the ice Red McCarty; the undefeated world's champion, Nate Wailey; the most beautiful girl on ice, Edythe Dustman; the originator of stilt skating, Phil Taylor; the amazing adagio pair, Condon & Bohland; that pert, clever junior miss, Marilyn Quinn; those darlings of the ice, the Benoit Sisters; and not to forget Henry Lis, Eleanor Meister, Patti Phillip, Betty Brown Lee, Elene McKay and Harry Hasley.

And for comedy, Ice Capades of 1945 offers the greatest army of talent ever presented: Eric Waite, master of serio-comic art; Al Surette, top ranking ice clown; recently discharged from the armed services; versatile, limber-legged Ted Muz; the "little big man" of ice, Chuckie Stein; "Mrs. Astor's Plush Horse at Finishing School," featuring Miss Dustman, Meza and Joe Loeb; Surette and Loeb in a blackface character portrayal "At Grand Central Station"; the hilarious "Market Ladies"; with Wailey, Taylor, Condon and William Provost; and a stellar comic appearance with the show for the first year, Esco LaRue.

Highway Tour Starts Monday From Portland

Accompanied by Congressman James W. Mott, several federal officials and newspapermen, the state highway commission leaves Portland early Monday morning for an inspection tour of state highways.

The tour this year has been arranged largely to give the commissioners an opportunity to see first hand condition of highways over which heavy wartime travel has poured. No postwar construction plans are to be discussed inasmuch as these, prepared following a previous tour, are now in the hands of the federal road building authority.

Going first to Astoria, the commission will travel south to Florence and Roseburg, where Congressman Harris Ellsworth will join the party, to Klamath Falls and back by way of Bend. Banquets have been planned at Newport and Roseburg.
