There will be no charge or obligation of any nature attached to viewing the exhibit or the pictures.

Frank F. Wedel, hospital administrator, said Thursday, "We want the public to have an opportunity to see just what their money is spent for when they buy bonds and earmark them for such humanitarian purposes as medical supplies, and so we feel quite proud of the interesting material that Lt. Ferguson is bringing to Salem."

Contents Described "We do hope that the parents of our boys in the service will take advantage of this opportunity, the first like it I believe ever to have been shown in Salem. Lt. Ferguson informs us that the display will show in part: Aeronautic first aid kit, parachute first aid packet, motor vehicle first aid kit, crash splint unit, field operating table, jungle first aid kit, snake bite kit, folding aluminum litter, dental operating chest, medical field chest, medical officer's instrument case, flight service chest, field dressings, field drugs, vaccines (yellow fever, typhus, plague, cholera, etc.), field hospital sterilizer, and a regular field ambulance, US army," said Wedel.

The $600,000 worth of treasury bonds which Salem Deaconess hospital proposes to sell in a campaign opening Saturday night will be dedicated to construction and furnishing of:

- One collecting station, $4,200; two clearing stations at $30,000 each; one mobile surgical unit truck, $4,200; one 400-bed evacuation hospital $65,000; one 750-bed evacuation hospital $90,000; one convalescent camp $41,000; one convalescent hospital $100,000; 100 blood transfusion apparatus $2,500; 225 ampules penicillin at $5.00 each, and complete equipment for one general overseas hospital, $232,000.

When treasury bonds are bought the buyer must state clearly how he wants his purchase earmarked; for instance, the buyer earmarks his purchase for a clearing station or so many ampules of penicillin.

Groups may sponsor through Deaconess hospital any one or more of the above list as a cooperating sponsor with the hospital. Those who want to help a local hospital, either the General or the Deaconess, may do so by having their bonds made payable to the hospital they wish to help.

Deaconess hospital is arranging to take applications for bonds at the hospital throughout the drive. It is also planned to sell many of these treasury bonds throughout the United States as a part of its building fund campaign, according to hospital authorities. While no attempt will be made to sell bonds by direct solicitation during the celebration, yet arrangements are being made to serve those who may want to buy bonds.
