

Entire Gestapo May Have to Stand Trial When Nazis Fall

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14-(AP)—The allied policy for political and economic reform in Germany will be developed only after complete military occupation of the country, and then to a large extent on a trial-and-error basis, but it is probable the entire gestapo may be brought to trial for war crimes.

With allied armies already driving onto German soil, it was learned today that the allies are agreed only on certain fundamentals of post-victory policy in Germany, including:

- (1) Complete military occupation of all German territory.
- (2) Destruction of the Nazi party and organization.
- (3) Arrest of German leaders and functionaries, including probably all members of the gestapo, to be held for trial for war crimes.

2 Factors Hamper
Beyond these points, planning was said to have been hampered by two major factors—ignorance of the nature and extent of hostility to the Nazis inside Germany, and Russia's fear of being caught in a "squeeze play" through an Anglo-American agreement which might set up resistances to Soviet influence and interests in Germany and all central Europe.

The first of these two, it was suggested, can be remedied only after the allied armies have taken possession of the Reich, and by observation of spontaneous developments within Germany have been able to assess the potentialities of political rehabilitation of the people.

Little Known
So little reliable information has been available for about five years that there is no way of gauging at present the extent of possible underground organizations, the probabilities of separatist tendencies among the old German states, or any of the multitude of similar broad questions which will have an important bearing, if they are not decisive, on the future of Germany.

The second factor—Russian fear or suspicion—was described as being simpler to handle, although it is of equal or perhaps greater importance to the hope of permanent peace in Europe. The American government's view was said to be that, complete and wholehearted Russian cooperation was the absolute essential, and accordingly there would be no presentation of an Anglo-American agreement which the Russians might by the widest stretch of the imagination interpret as pressure on them.

OPA Rejects Car Proposal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14-(AP)—The office of price administration has rejected a petition from used car dealers for higher ceiling prices on reconditioned automobiles. The decision, announced today, was contained in a letter from Price Administrator Chester Bowles to members of the industry's advisory committee.

The dealers, while asking no specific increase, had suggested that the present mark up of 25 per cent, allowed by reconditioned cars over ceilings for cars sold "as is", be boosted to 33 1/2 per cent. OPA also turned down a dealer proposal that the area-pricing system, based on three geographical zones, be abandoned.

Dewey Blasts Indispensable Man Theory

BILLINGS, Mont., Sept. 14-(AP)—Thomas E. Dewey promised in an unscheduled speech on his arrival here tonight to wage a "first class fight" to prove that there is no indispensable man in this government.

"This campaign will prove to all the world that we in America love our free government so much," he said, "that we can fight a total war harder because we are exercising the right of free men as we do it."

Prizes Free Men
"By holding this campaign at a time when our enemies are collapsing, and as we are making gigantic strides toward Berlin and Tokyo, we are demonstrating in perhaps the most vivid way that free men can wage a war. We have something that they have not. We are fighting to retain the most precious thing in the world, our freedom."

In a brief stop at Hardin, Mont., American voters were asked by Dewey to help him give 10 million returning service men "something better than the new deal deal" when this war is over.

Soldiers Considered
The republican presidential candidate declared that returning soldiers are entitled to something better than the deal and said: "With your help, we will be giving it to them, on January 20 next year."

Strike Pledge Not Decided

on the union's wartime no-strike pledge to the organization's 1,200,000 members.

The 2300 delegates, tired and worn after two days of stormy debate on the issue, earlier reaffirmed the pledge by a standing vote. Then a proposal to conduct a referendum vote among the rank and file apparently was approved by a standing vote; it was challenged from the floor, however, and President R. J. Thomas ordered a roll call.

The referendum, which union officials said would be held within 90 days, was carried, according to Thomas, by at least a 2-to-1 margin. Official tabulation was incomplete.
