

Service Men

Where They Are—What They Are Doing

Pfc. Perry Rake, former manager of the M and F grocery on South Commercial street, is stationed somewhere in the Pacific. His wife, Margaret Rake, is teaching at Vancouver, Wash., and living with her parents at Beaverton. Rake was stationed at Camp Adair, and with a unit went overseas sometime in May of this year.

Ensign Bob Hamilton, former student body president of Willamette university, returned to the campus Friday to visit with faculty members and other friends. Hamilton, on leave from the Mediterranean theater, was with the landing at Anzio, Italy, in charge of a landing ship.

M. Sgt. Wallace E. Lott, son of Mrs. Estella Lott, 60 South Pacific highway, has been advanced to chief clerk of the message center in the stock records section of an air service command supply depot in England, word received here Friday indicates. Supplies are housed under large tents and are assembled at this depot and shipped direct to the war fronts. Before entering the air forces in August of 1940 Lott was serving with the army in the Hawaiian Islands.

Dr. Joseph E. Nohlgren, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Nohlgren of Salem, has entered the army as a first lieutenant and has reported to Carlisle, Penn., for training. Lt. Nohlgren is a graduate of University of Oregon Medical school. He has been a resident physician at Ancker hospital, St. Paul, Minn. Mrs. Nohlgren will remain in St. Paul for awhile.

Sgt. Harold Johansen, formerly of Salem, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Johansen of Tacoma, who has been 30 months in the Aleutians, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Conrad, 1115 Madison street. He will report to Santa Barbara for reassignment.

MONMOUTH—Sgt. Orlan Setckorn is spending a 10 day furlough with his wife and little son, coming from Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He was stationed at Camp Adair for more than a year, and while here bought a home on North Knox street, where his family resides.

Pfc. Grover L. Hofstetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hofstetter, 840 Hood street, is in England at an air service command depot, according to word received here Friday. Hofstetter is in the supply division charged with rushing more than 200,000 items of essential equipment to allied planes over Germany. Before entering the air forces 18 months ago he was a supply clerk in civil service in Salem.

Brothers Far Apart

MT. ANGEL—Sgt. Robert F. Worley, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Worley of Mt. Angel, had a taste of old world tradition and pompousness when as one of a group of wounded and convalescent U.S. soldiers he was taken to the ancient towns of Stamford and Oakham in England by the Friendship committee of Northampton, England. At Oakham they were shown the famous Norman castle with its collection of horseshoes, and at Stamford they were entertained in the town hall by the mayor and mayoress, who, decked in their official regalia of heavy gold chains and massive mace, posed with the men.

Sgt. Worley is a member of the airborne division of glider troops and participated in the D-day invasion. He remained at the front in Normandy for 36 days and was then sent back to England to recover from combat fatigue.

The editor of the Northampton Chronicle-Echo, who forwarded the picture of the Mt. Angel man and his companions, remarked that Worley was recovering rapidly and was cheerful about everything.

Let's Look at The Record

Congress passed it. I regret equally that I signed it. It is dangerous, in my opinion, to American security and, above all, American peace."

On April 4, in a letter to Dr. Mary E. Woolley, the president said:

"It has been the continuous policy of this government for many years to cooperate in the world-wide technical and humanitarian activities of the League of Nations without in any way becoming involved in the political affairs of Europe."

In discussing the question of a larger navy, in response to Dewey's suggestion for a two-ocean navy, the president on May 14, 1940, only 18 months before Pearl Harbor, said:

"A two-ocean navy is an entirely outmoded conception of naval defense, and it has been since about 1847. I just never discuss a two-ocean navy in one way or the other, because it is not sensible to talk of naval defense in those terms."

"It really is an outworn conception that nobody who knows anything about defense would ever use. Such a conception (of two-ocean navy) of the Nation's floating defense was just plain dumb."

In the city of Boston, October 30, 1940, in a campaign address, the president said:

"And while I am talking to you mothers and fathers I give you one more assurance. I have said this before, and I shall say it again, again, and again: 'Your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars. They are going into training to form a force so strong that by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores.'"

On December 29, 1940, the president said:

"There is no demand for sending an American Expeditionary Force outside our own borders. There is no intention by any member of your government to send such a force. You can, therefore, nail any talk about sending armies to Europe as deliberate mistruth."

On February 25, 1941, the president stated there was no danger of our running short of rubber. On January 5, 1942, all rubber was frozen and rationed because of the shortage of rubber.

On July 24, 1941, the president said:

"It was essential for Great Britain that we try to keep the peace down there in the South Pacific by furnishing gas to Japan."

"There was a method in letting this oil go to Japan for the good of the defense of Great Britain and the freedom of the seas."

Five days later, July 29, 1941, at a press conference, he refused to comment on British Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that the United States was moving to the verge of war.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—The army mail service is equipped for any emergency. When mail comes for AWOL (absent without official leave) soldiers, officials said, it held for 15 days and then returned to the sender with the notation "Moved, left no address."

S/Sgt. Hubert V. Schwartz, husband of Mrs. H. V. Schwartz, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schwartz, 417 North Cottage, is due to arrive in the United States soon on furlough from the Asiatic Pacific theater of operations where he served 27 months with the infantry.

Sgt. Vance Lee Wins Ribbon

15TH AAF IN ITALY—Sgt. Vance E. Lee of Silverton, has been awarded a blue and gold distinguished unit citation ribbon. He is a radio mechanic in the top scoring P-51 Mustang fighter group in the Mediterranean theater under the command of Lt. Col. Yancey S. Tarrant of Brownwood, Tex.

The Mustang group was cited for its outstanding performance of duty against the enemy on April 21, 1944. Despite having nearly reached the limit of their endurance after having flown over 580 miles through almost insurmountable weather conditions, the P-51's fought off a total of 60 enemy fighters, in two groups of 30 each, which threatened the bomber formation. By destroying 16 and probably destroying or damaging a number of others, the Mustangs enabled the seven groups of 15th air force heavy bombers, which had not received the recall signal sent out because of the adverse weather conditions, to complete a highly successful mission against the important enemy installations and production centers in the Ploesti-Bucharest area of Rumania.

Injured Farmer Pulls Self Along to Get Help

MISSOULA, Mont., Oct. 6 (AP)—Although both legs were mangled when he was run over by a tractor, 23-year-old Delbert Palmer dragged himself across a field, crawled over a three-foot wire fence and inched another 100 yards to a road to call for help.

The young farmer retained consciousness during a 42-mile trip from his home at Charlo, in northwestern Montana, to a Missoula hospital. Hospital attaches said today he was recovering.
