Chiang Strengthens Control Of Chinese Government By His Cabinet Shake-Up

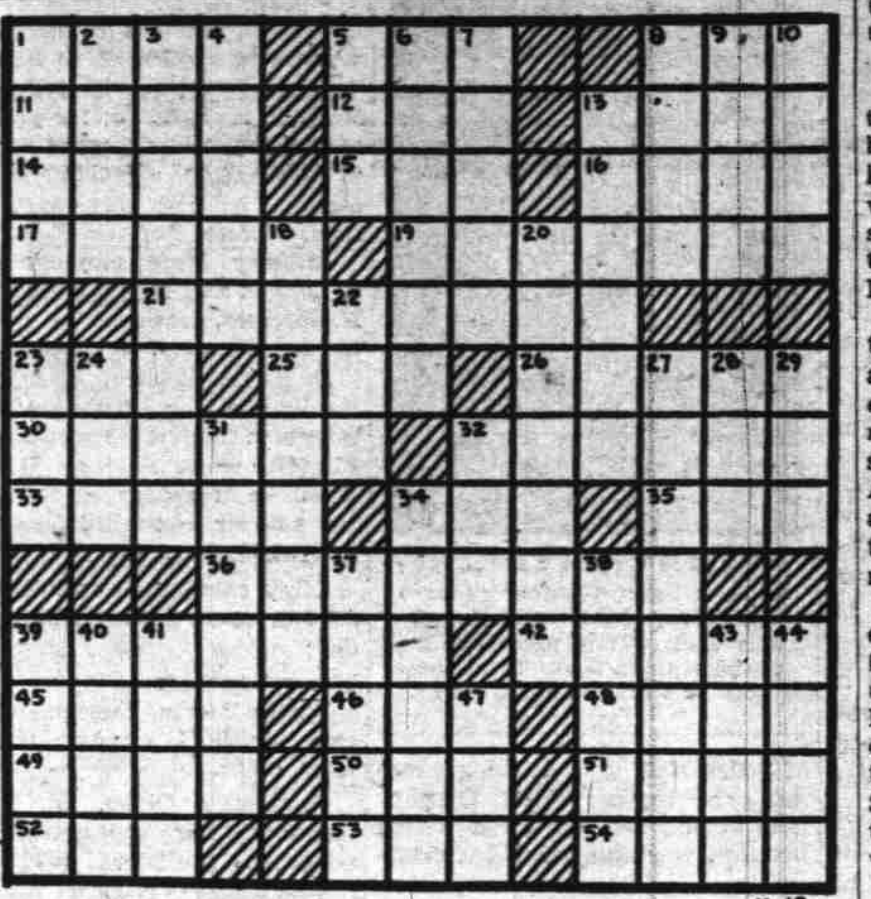

By John M. Highlower

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—(AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has considerably strengthened his control of the Chinese government by his cabinet shake-up.

Whether he will use his stronger position to reorganize the army, seek improvement in China's economic and political affairs and try for cooperation with the communists of north China is still a wide open question. American officials are looking for the answer but they are not looking through rose-colored glasses. There is a distinct air of skepticism about the whole affair insofar as its effect on China's war effort is concerned. Some hope is felt in official quarters that the effect will be good, but fingers are crossed. Internal Crisis The impression here is that Chiang reorganized because of the internal crisis, which was intensified by the Stilwell affair. American Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, who came home at President Roosevelt's orders in response to a personal request from Chiang, was well liked by his men and by many of the officers who had worked with him. They credited him with having accomplished a great deal for China. The break resulted basically from a long series of differences between Stilwell and Chiang over strategy and troop assignments—conflicts in which the Chinese war minister, General Ho Ying-Chin, is understood to have been a powerful influence against the vigorous conduct of the war which Stilwell sought. Comments on Changes Three of the changes in Chiang's cabinet drew particular comment here: 1. Possibly the most important was the replacement of General Ho by Gen. Chen Cheng. Chen is well liked by Americans who have fought in China and is understood to have had the respect and friendship of General Stilwell himself. On the other hand his position as minister of war is balanced somewhat by the fact that Ho remains as chief of staff to the Generalissimo. Not Completely Out 2. The removal of H. H. Kung as minister of finance and his replacement by O. K. Yui. Kung, like Ho, does not vanish from the administration but merely from the post in which he has gotten the blame for much of China's terrible inflation and economic crisis. He retains the vice presidency of the executive Yuan, topmost administrative council, of which Chiang is president. 3. The transfer of Wang Shih-chieh from the presidency of the

Stocks Have Slow Session

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—(AP)—A little short covering and investment bidding helped the stock market keep its balance today although it was neglected, generally, by Wall Street which had eyes mainly for the opening of the sixth big War Bond drive. Except for scattered climbers, trends were narrow from the start and dealings slow. Activity picked up a bit in the final hour when rails and steels stiffened and assorted specialties turned upward. Although declines were plentiful at the close, advances of fractions to a point or more were in the majority. Dividends and earnings apparently returned as the principal bullish stimulant. Individual situations inspired some purchasing. Many customers held aloof, however, to await the usual year-end tax swing, the fate of the "Little Steel" wage formula and important battle developments on the western front. The Associated Press 60-stock average was up 2 of a point at 54.8, best showing since Nov. 2. Of 803 issues appearing, 374 were up, 215 down and 214 unchanged. Transfers totaled 691,840 shares, smallest for a 5-hour stretch since Oct. 31, compared with 705,660 Friday.

Reed Will Be Host For College Conference

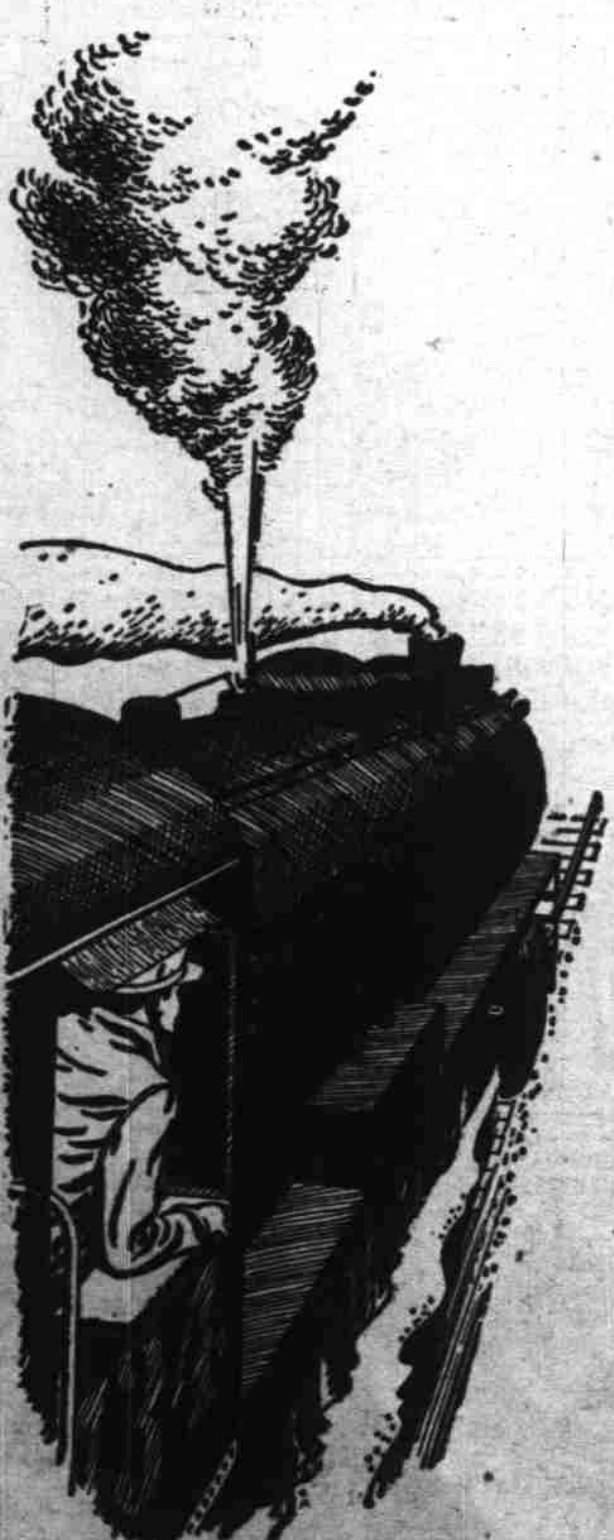

PORTLAND, Nov. 20—(AP)—Reed college here will host to the December, 1945 conference of western colleges, Arthur F. Scott, acting president of the school, said today upon his return from the 1944 conference at Washington State college, Pullman. Postwar educational plans were made by representatives from most colleges and universities in Montana, Idaho, Washington, British Columbia and Oregon.

Wine Disposal Plan Not Legal

PORTLAND, Nov. 20—(AP)—A federal alcohol tax law may upset a plan worked out for the sale of wine stocks by retailers to wholesalers for resale to the state liquor control commission. Wine dealers, attempting to get rid of their desert wine stocks before the Burke bill goes into effect December 7, explained that a retailer under his federal tax stamp can't sell more than five gallons at a time. The plan was drawn up after Hugh R. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the commission, said the commission was powerless to extend the time for the Burke bill to take effect. The bill limits sale of fortified wines to state liquor stores.

Next time you hear a Southern Pacific train whistle in the night, think of it as something more than a lonely, haunting sound. It is a reassuring sound—a promise that even while you sleep, the war trains are rolling. It's the confident voice of an industry that's doing the biggest job in its history, and will be in there pitching long after the war is over.

What S. P. train whistles mean

We haven't room to explain all the whistles, but here are the commonest ones. The "o" stands for a short sound, the dash means a longer sound.

- ● ● ● Warning whistle when train is approaching a highway crossing.
- ● ● ● When train is running, this means it will stop at next station, which is not a regular stop. If train is standing still, this signal warns that it is about to back up.
- — — One long whistle is sounded a mile before train reaches stations, railroad crossings, drawbridges, etc.
- ● ● ● Signal for brakeman to protect rear of train. He must go down the track with necessary flagman's signals.
- ● ● ● Signal for brakeman to protect front of train.
- — — This signal orders brakeman to return from the west.
- — — This signal recalls brakeman from the east.
- ● ● This tells other trains that a second section is following.
- ● This is the engineer's answer to most signals from other trains.
- ● ● ● ● A succession of short sounds is a warning to persons or livestock on the track.
