Thanksgiving Both Joyous And Sad Time

"Thanksgiving is a joyous time because we live in America, a land of plenty; because we are free to enjoy the many blessings of our great land; free to worship God in our own way," the Rev. T. J. Bernards told members of St. Joseph's parish who crowded the church Thursday morning for the special Thanksgiving mass.

"This year, Thanksgiving is also a sad time if we think of the thousands of white beds in hospitals all over the land where wounded men are suffering as a result of the war. It is a sad time if we think of the thousands of white crosses in cemeteries in faraway places which mark the last resting place of men who have died defending freedom for us.

"Many of you may be fortunate enough to have no loved ones in the war. But remember, every soldier dying on the battle field is dying for us, every soldier fighting at the front is fighting for us.

"Is it too much to ask that we buy war bonds to the limit of our ability to show appreciation for what he is doing?"

In a time of great suffering, most members of St. Vincent dePaul have felt it only slightly as compared to many others, the Rev. Robert S. Neugebauer, told members of his parish who crowded the church for the special Thanksgiving mass. He reminded them of the many blessings for which they could be thankful on the third Thanksgiving of the war.

Music for the high mass at St. Vincent dePaul's was furnished by the grade school choir, while the Sacred Heart academy glee clubs and Treble Triad sang the high mass at St. Joseph's.

Oregon Cities Should Do Own Postwar Planning

BEND, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Oregon municipalities should do their own postwar planning and not rely on federal aid in public works and for creation of jobs for returning veterans, Herman Kehrl, executive secretary of the league of Oregon cities, declared here.

Kehrl said the nation faces a great avalanche of unemployment and urged league officials to "put our houses in order and prepare for the dilemma."

College Dean Outlines Methods For Veterans' Educational Aid

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Nov. 23.—Oregon veterans of World war II have three sources of educational aid to help them continue or begin their school or college training after their discharge, according to an analysis of federal and state laws made by E. B. Lemon, dean of administration. No individual veteran, however, may use more than one of these plans.

Any veteran who has served in the active military or naval service for at least 90 days subsequent to September 16, 1940, and whose education or training was interrupted by entrance into the service is eligible for a year or more aid under federal law No. 346, more commonly known as the GI bill of rights, Dean Lemon reports. Furthermore, any veteran not over 25 years of age at the time he entered the service is automatically considered to have had his education interrupted. The rate is up to $500 per year plus an allowance for living expenses.

If a veteran has suffered a disability he is eligible under the veteran rehabilitation act known as public law No. 16. Those who can qualify under this act will probably find it to their advantage to do so, explains Dean Lemon, as it provides essentially the same individual advantages and opportunities as the GI bill of rights but the subsistence allowances are considerably larger.

The recently enacted Oregon veterans' educational aid bill is available to any veteran who was a resident of Oregon for one year prior to induction into the service and who served in the armed forces not less than 90 days. The law specifically states, however, that if a veteran accepts aid under any federal plan he is not eligible for additional aid under the Oregon law. Dean Lemon points out that the Oregon act may offer slight financial advantage to a veteran over 25 years of age or to one with a short service record, if more than two years of college training is contemplated.

The registrar's office at OSC is prepared to give any veteran more detailed information on these laws. Already 72 World war II veterans are enrolled at Oregon State, 36 under the GI bill and 36 under the rehabilitation program.

Japs Hit China Airports, Claim

(By the Associated Press) Raids on three airfields in China by Japanese bomber units were reported yesterday by Domei, Japanese news agency.

The report, picked up by the federal communications commission and not confirmed from any allied source, said 13 allied planes were damaged or set ablaze at Suichuan and that three fires were started at Kanchow. Results of the third raid, on Laohokow, were not ascertained, Domei said. Kanchow is a city in inland north China, several hundred miles from the most active front in that country. Suichuan and Laohokow do not appear an available maps of China.

Laboratory of FBI Serves For 12 Years

The FBI laboratory in Washington, DC, has completed 12 years of service to law enforcement officers in this area.

In making that announcement today, Clinton W. Stein, special agent in charge of the Portland office of the federal bureau of investigation, pointed out that the laboratory opened November 24, 1932, with one technician and a single microscope. Today it has scores of technicians and equipment valued at $1,000,000.

Stein said the FBI laboratory will handle any technical problem arising in connection with criminal investigations. He added that many agencies in this area already have obtained free expert assistance.

"The FBI laboratory has been busy with war work; but it has handled the technical problems of local officers throughout the emergency period," Stein said. "The laboratory has the men and the equipment to handle any kind of problem met by law enforcement organizations in their criminal investigations."

Technicians in the FBI laboratory frequently can gain a great deal of information from small bits of evidence. The dried saliva on a cigarette butt, dirt scraped from a shoe sole, soil particles from trouser cuffs, fingernail dirt, or a chip of paint from a hit-and-run scene may provide the missing key to a solution.

Identification of suspected blood stains, matching of hairs and feathery bits of fibers, classification of various body fluids, handwriting comparisons and bullet identifications are among other day-to-day problems for the FBI laboratory.

Fighting Men Eat and Pray In War Areas

LONDON, Nov. 24.—(AP)—Turkey dinners went to soldiers in the front lines of Europe and Asia today and thousands of their comrades at administrative and supply posts through the world attended religious services and social functions as Americans overseas celebrated Thanksgiving day.

Some 4000 American soldiers, sailors, nurses and Red Cross workers trooped into bomb-scarred Westminster Abbey to offer hymns and prayers in this resting place of many of England's illustrious dead.

Around the rest of the world Americans celebrated in various ways—At the cathedral of Reims in France, at the embassy in Moscow, under air raid alarm in Chungking, with canned turkey in India and with an illegal peacock or two in Burma.

Knight Gives Thanksgiving Talk to Crowd

"It is not an easy year to be thankful, but then it was not easy in 1621," the Rev. John L. Knight of Willamette university pointed out to a congregation from Protestant churches of the city which filled the First Presbyterian church auditorium Thursday morning for union Thanksgiving services in Salem.

Largest crowd ever to attend the union praise services here during the years the ministerial association of the city has sponsored the Thanksgiving morning event was that which gathered yesterday.

A sense of gratitude to the giver, real contribution to one's responsibilities and a firm belief in divine providence are expressions of genuine thanks; the speaker declared.

The unselfish gifts of love, friendship, truth and honesty for which this nation fights are worthy of recognition and gratitude, Knight said.

But mere gratitude is not sufficient, he maintained, urging that the grateful of the world give in turn.

Hi-Y and Tri-Y clubs joined the Salem Ministerial association in sponsorship of the program and provided a portion of the music.
