

From First Statesman, March 28, 1851

THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLES A. SPRAGUE, Editor and Publisher

Member of the Associated Press

The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this newspaper.

State Department Reorganization

Rioting in Rome and Athens

The department of state has been in need of thorough-going reorganization for years. The ancient edifice creaked and groaned from its aged timber. Secretary Hull never got around to the house-cleaning which was needed. Edward Stettinius, jr., the new secretary, uses a new broom within the first few days of his taking office, knowing full well that if he waited very long the cobwebs of let-well-enoughalone would soon bind him.

But his reorganization will be met with mingled cheers and groans. There will be cheers over the firings and groans over the appointments for successors. Loudest groans will come from the left wingers who thought they won the recent election, but are finding out that while they did the legwork they lost the rewards usually attendant on political victory.

Discharged as assistants are Adolf A. Berle, jr., Breckinridge Long and G. Howland Shaw. Shaw is a career man in the department; Long was third assistant secretary of state in Wilson's second term, and returned to the department in Roosevelt's first term, and is a man of broad knowledge of international affairs. Berle came in as assistant in 1938 from a responsible office in the city government of New York City. To be of maximum value the cleansing should be continued into the department's sections where policies usually originate and where they always lodge for execution (one way or the other).

But what a bewildering assortment does Stettinius draw in for his new staff! The selection of Joseph C. Grew, former ambassador to Japan, is the best of the lot. Grew is a career man in diplomacy, a man of character and substance. His experience will be invaluable to the young secretary. The prime mystery is the choice of Will L. Clayton as an assistant. He had just been relieved as surplus property administrator. Clayton is one of the world's biggest cotton merchants, a Jesse Jones protege from Houston. He comes from the southern business hierarchy who are anathema to the true new dealers.

As though business was not adequately represented with Stettinius, ex-GMC and US Steel official, and Cottonbroker, -Clayton, another of the posts of assistant secretary goes to Nelson A. Rockefeller. He is to take charge of relations with other American republics. Rockefeller has been doing a great work in this field, with the customary Rockefeller devotion to duty; but the business coloration of the appointment cannot be overlooked.

A riot in Athens cost 15 lives on Sunday. On Friday at the end of an official review of Italian troops rioting broke out in Rome. In Belgium there has been internal strife since the return of the government to Brussels.

It is usually of a pattern: the resistance of the guerilla elements to orders to give up their arms, or to objections of the one-time underground to the composition of the government. Itboils down to this: a determination on the part of the masses to control the government in their interest.

In Rome the republican rioters pulled down the Italian flag bearing the emblem of the royal house of Savoy and ran up the communist red flag with hammer and sickle emblem. In Athens the E.A.M. (national liberation front) carried out a demonstration which resulted in a battle with the regular army. The Greek prime minister charged that "leaders of the extreme left are preparing the way to civil war."

This is not surprising. The people have suffered; now they want hopes fulfilled. They are deeply suspicious of old governments-of any government. Moreover the communist element sees in the present confusion an opportunity to convert the country in a collectivist state. The shadow of Russia not only as military power but as a social idea looms across Europe. Small wonder then that the liberated peoples of Europe in their bitterness, their zeal, their aspiration should demand greatly enlarged powers for themselves. Contrariwise, the conservative (Distribution by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole influences, the vested interests, political and economic, are fearful lest their countries go the way of Russia, and work to prevent such an outcome.

Order must be preserved. The fighting allies can't be distracted from fighting the Germans by trouble behind their front lines. But allied control should be limited to maintaining order where the regular government fails. Eventually the people of the several countries must work out their own plans for the future. Probably the socialistic trend will be marked, but it is doubtful if any of the independent countries of western Europe really go communist.

Bus Stop

The work stoppage of the city bus lines Sunday morning was a great inconvenience to hundreds of church-goers, and was the worse because no notice had been given. The grievance (dissatisfaction with the local superintendent) seems hardly reason enough to discommode the busriding public.

viewpoint when Paul Mallon he said:

The Uninvited Guest

'We have accumulated reserves and if Dewey had won we would have spent these in exor in part strictly prohibited.) WASHINGTON, Dec. 4-There prevalent among them or they is no use in trying to deny that will kill themselves. Their tendency to dominate the whole polmuch of business swallowed its hopes hard last icy of the country in the past few years cannot continue indefinite-A quiet pesly without building up a public simism in those resentment which will engulf

CHAIRMAN

SENATE

By PAUL MALLON

election day.

ranks has been evident since then. One nationally known

corporation

head expressed

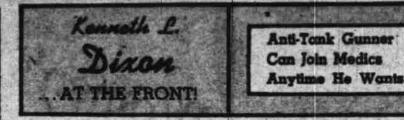

a wide spread

COMMITTEE O

FOREIGN

RELATIONS

opposite extreme. Some wise men I know, give them another year at most on their present line. I think the time depends on how they are led. But their bankroll is getting too big, the messes on their hands are increasing, their power is growing too great.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 24-(Delayed)-(A)- S/Sgt. Norman E. Hlavac is an antitank gunner, but if he wants to join the medics they'll be glad to have him. German shells hit his company's ammunition pit, wounding two men. One of them had a broken leg.

No medics were handy and the German Kenneth L. Dixon shellfire was intense, so Hlavac got busy and set the man's leg, using a couple of carbines as splints. Despite the conditions under which the amateur medic worked, when the wounded map was taken to an aid station professional, he was so pleased with the splint that he left it untouched until the patient reached the clearing station. There medics sent back the word that Norman could go to work with them any-

Speaking of medics, do you remember Pfc. Donald Woodward of Ottaway, Kan., the am-

The Literary Guidepost

time.

By John Seiby

"THE SHAPE OF BOOKS TO COME," by J. Donald Adams (Vik-ing; $2.50). Once a person admits the usefulness of writing about writing. there is no limit to what can be done, J. Donald Adams does admit this usefulness, and now he is publishing a book based on some of the thoughts and attitudes that have distinguished the inside front cover of the New York Times book review section since Mr. Adams took to writing that page instead of editing the tion was needed to base new legwhole.

Mr. Adams is a most conven- By Chemurgy tional man in real life, but he is not conventional in the sense that he cannot disagree with common opinion. There is, for example, a legend among writers that popularity means cheapness, and to this Mr. Adams creating tremendous new indus-strange idea that it is the pur-better ideas may grow. Parenthetically, there are a good many

some of the practitioners Mr.

Adams approves. His list includes

Kenneth Roberts, Walter Ed-

monds, Esther Forbes, James

tant straw in the wind.

honestly apportioned.

The "rapid substitution of new wood by-products for steel and other metals already can be foreseen for post-war years, and new bulance driver who talked the Germans into releasing him after he was captured one day?

Well, everything seems to hap-pen to him. Although he's getting to be an old hand at ducking enemy shells and sweating out barrages, he says this was the most nerve - wracking or-

He was evacuating a French woman from a front line village when moans emanating from the back of the ambulance indicated he was losing the race.

He halted the ambulance and slightly shaken, the Pfc. crawled behind the wheel and continued down the road. In the back of the ambulance the low moans had been succeeded by lusty squalls,

indicating that both mother and the new baby boy, Donald, were

The service company of the 60th combat engineers now claims a strictly cosmopolitan field kitchen, specializing in Italian, German and Chinese dish-

Sgt. Ben Juliano of Huntington, LI, NY, whose ancestors

once served spaghetti in its native haunts, handles the Italian cooking. Pfc. Bert Seigal, a New Yorker who lived in Germany

until Hitler seized power there, supervises the frankfurter and sauerkraut menus. Pfc. Sang Yip,

once of China, now of Brooklyn,

Staff Sgt. Bernard Waterbury

of Broken Bow, Neb., who thinks his crack kitchen crew can handle almost any food problem but

"In any language," he says

sadly, "a powdered egg is still

New Industries

Being Created

a powdered egg."

Boss melting pot messman is ?

supplies oriental receipts.

A short time later, white and deal of all.

investigated.

doing okay.

A previous study had been them, and no doubt lead to the made of such cost factor on highways as applied to various types of vehicles, but further informa-

I think, therefore, there is more than an even chance that vents will mitigate current fears

News Behind the News (Continued from page 1) they felt would be satisfactory.

I'M A BIG ENOUGH

BOY TO SIT WITH THE GROWN-UPS!

Another surprise package among the new faces is Archibald MacLeish, named assistant secretary of state to direct public and cultural relations. MacLeish is a fuzzy-writing poet who is now librarian of congress. He seems ill-cast for this assignment not because he is a poet but because of the kind of poet he is.

Of the lot Grew alone is a veteran in the field of foreign relations. Stettinius is a tyro and Rockefeller limited to the Latin-American field. Clayton's appointment marks a victory for Jesse Jones over the Henry Wallace crowd, and the roars that will go up from the latter's friends will rend the sky. Jones clashed with Wallace on foreign buying, and the business was consolidated under the department of state. Now a Jones crony takes over, which will make the new dealers feel they have really lost the election. A pinko-poet like MacLeish as propagandist is a pale offset to Clayton in the highly important office of foreign economic affairs.

There will be immediate efforts to place the responsibility, and probably Harry Hopkins who seems to be the White house fixer will get the credit (or blame) for the choices. Hopkins is now a "tired new dealer" who has run out on his old friends. While the left-wing democrats prayed for radical changes in the state department they did not expect to be sold down the river-not as far as Houston, Texas.

Their embarrassment is of minor importance however. The real fear is that the new crew will not only have no more imagination than the underlings who have made many and serious blunders during the Hull regime, but that they will not prove very competent as diplomats. Right when we need to put our best foot forward in the complex and delicate affairs which are coming up we put in a green team, some of whom come from the wrong street.

Editorial Comment

SOVIET FOREIGN STATEMENT

The Soviet Union's six-point statement of foreign policy issued in this country by the Soviet embassy is a welcome and enlightening document. It rules out differences of political system as a deterrent to cooperation and friendly relations with another nation and makes love of freedom and peace their prime regulaite. It further renounces imperfalistic expansion by the Soviet government at the expense of any other nation.

But most Americans will probably find greatest interest in the officially announced principle of "non-intervention in the internal affairs of other states."

This reaffirms the hands-off policy implicit in the Comintern's dissolution and, for all apparent purposes; lays the persistent ghost of a Soviet government-sponsored world revolution. These principles of foreign policy were issued over the signature of Col. A. Galin, who identifies them as the program which the Soviet Union has tently followed throughout its existence.

We may concede, then, that frequent similarity een the thoughts and actions of the communist es in the United States and Soviet Russia is not to be construed as an alliance between the Amerinists and the soviet government, of which he Russian communist party is the dominant political body.

We may also also conclude that those who before

A bus system operates as a public utility which means that both owners and employes acknowledge a prime duty in serving to the public and so must subordinate what may be regarded as "rights" in other lines of enterprise. At least the drivers should have given the public notice so people would not stand a long time on street corners waiting for buses which never came. Our Salem drivers have had such a fine record of faithful service it was a great surprise that they failed in this instance.

The Vanport deputy sheriff rounded up a bunch of negro gamblers and carted them off to the county jail. The big shot gamblers of downtown Portland still enjoy their immunity, however. And there have been no recent reform crusades rounding up a few Chinese running lotteries.

Efforts are now to be made to "revitalize" the Republican party. They will start by knifing within the Republican national committee.

Interpreting The War News KIRKE L. SIMPSON

ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR ANALYST

Surprise seizure by the American third army of the Saarlauten bridge giving direct access to the Saar basin puts the nazi command in a dilemma. The nazis must either rush armor and first line troop reserves to seal off the river puncture by quick counter attack in force, or risk loss of the Saar moat on a wide front to expose the Siegfried line to broad based American attack.

There were hints in front line from the Saar sector that enemy armor was being thrown in to limit third army exploitation of the Saarlauten breakthrough. By every sign it could ill be spared from the Roer-Meuse areas to the north where British and American armies are on the verge of breaking into the Cologne plain.

Front line observers estimate that the Germans have massed most of their armor and at least a third of some 70 under-strength field divisions behind the Roer and the Meuse to protect the Ruhr. That still is the potential scene of the most critical battle for the foe.

There is indicated German intention to make a last ditch stand in the north, sacrificing the outer defenses of the Saar basin beyond German frontiers for that reason. The American surprise puncture of the Saar gravely threatens to disrupt that plan, however. It was made by seasoned troops under command of General Patton, skilled at seizing and swiftly exploiting any tactical or strategic advantage.

The fury of nazi artillery reaction to the Saarlauten bridge seizure disclosed enemy anxiety over the American success

The diversionary effect of that third army jump upon the greater battle in the north, however, is apt to prove more important than its immediate threat to Saar basin centers. If the east bank foothold can be held and quickly expanded it could prove the break that General Eisenhower is waiting for to throw in his own reserves in the north if it forces shifting of considerable nazi reserves southward to meet the third army threat.

The other and most notable change in the Europpectation of post-war expansion now we will save them for taxes and eventualities which may be imposed upon us."

Openly the big record-making companies (CBS and RCA) threw up their hands and granted Petrillo of the Musicians Union a bounty up to five cents each on the sale of every record for no good reason except that the government had failed to bring Petrillo to terms in a long strike.

The musicians do not need the money and Petrillo has only promised he will expend it to further the appreciation of music." The public, of course, will pay it, as usual.

A wave of strikes and greatly increased wage demands are expected by all after victory in Europe has relieved somewhat the patriotic pressure upon the unions, etc., etc.

But there is another side to the story, not being told. This country already has run to extremes. Thirty years ago it was dominated by selfish financial cliques without any sense of social responsibility or the good of the nation or its people.

They got theirs in 1929. They got it because they became too big, took in too much territory. Men never seem to know how to use power wisely.

The fascist movement in Germany and Italy would today be strong had it not taken in too much territory. Napoleon committed the same error. History is unanimous with evident proofs that those who feed on power always commit suicide by their unwise excesses.

The unions are now at that crossroads. Obviously they must change from the Petrillo attitude in this respect, a far better chance than the obvious one indicating they will increase wages continuously to the point of devastating inflation, ruin business and cause socialisim, which is no doubt the goal of communists in their ranks.

> So also with the fear of the great war debt which hangs over us. This country has the stuff with which to make good. It has manpower, resources, production and efficiency beyond any other nation.

An individual in debt can always borrow money if his chances for successes are measured good. His chance of success is the real guage of his worth, not the amount of debt he carries. So also with nations. Their soundness will be measured by their prospects.

If we do not become too soft after the war, we can become a great trading nation. If we are skillfull in developing foreign trade routes and trade compacts in the wise exchange of our surpluses for what we need, we can find a new international life. The opportunity certainly exists as never before. Also we can salvage some of this debt if we are careful. We have proved by this war that we are still a strong nation. Not soon again will any aggressor count us weak. We can pay our heavy taxes, carry our heavy debt, maintain our democratic free enterprise at its current war superiority if we do not run to extremes, if we have a mind to do it, but particularly if we do just one thing -hold out the hope of success and soundly maintain that prospect.

report is that it is very brief and its recommendation exceedingly simple. It recommends important changes in the assessment of taxes on motor vehicles but does so with a minimum of change to the present system and with a minimum of complication. Its islation on. These studies were made during the biennium 1941-

43, and in 1943 the committee was continued another two years.

Its work is now concluded and a report with definite recommen-

A surprising and yet gratifying fact about the committee's dations is made.

work offers a lesson to congressional committees on taxes on how to simplify tax laws. In six pages it summarizes its own history, its findings and its recommendations.

The committee finds "inequi-Boyd, Le Grand Cannon and ties and unbalance" in the state's Howard Fast. The first and last present motor vehicle tax structure due to: of place to some.

1. Exemption of a large group. of commercial vehicles from payment of any motor transportation fee

2. Utilization of variant bases for computation of fees.

3. Use of "light" weight as basis for computation of registration fees.

4. Advantage of diesel-operated vehicles on basis of present rates

5. Failure of fuel consumption some. He has caught Hemingway to rise in direct proportion to perfectly, and especially well in gross load, making the fuel tax the period when Hemingway was inequitable. in love with his love of blood.

The recommendations of the committee are: 1. Retain the present fuel tax without modification. 2. A small flat fee to apply to all motor vehicles (in other words apply the present $5 registration fee to all vehicles). This is designed to cover the administrative charges and certain other "non-weight" road costs: in brief what might be called the "overhead." 3. Apply a graduated mileage tax to commercial vehicles using the highways. These vehicles would be classified into 12 groups, by gross weight. Vehicle owners would report their mileage and pay the amount per mile which is charged for the class in which their vehicles would fall. The rate varies from 3.75 mills per mile for vehicles under 4000 lbs. gross weight (which includes load) to 17.68 mills per mile for vehicles of over 24,000 lbs. gross weight. Owners who pay this tax would then be entitled to a refund of the amount they pay to the state of Oregon for fuel tax. The only exemptions allowed are for federal (including rural mail route operators), state, county and municipal vehicles and school buses. Special favors previously granted to farmers, gravel and log trucks and trucks operating in cities and within three-mile limit are withdrawn. The idea of the report is to assess the cost of highway construction and maintenance strictly on the basis of amount of wear given the roads; and that is determined by weight, the heavier the axle load, the greater the never has subscribed. He is, on tries, Willard Mayberry, country the other hand, not sure that the editor and high plains Kansas farhistorical novel as produced on mer, told the Salem Knife and these shores will last. This proves Fork club Tuesday night. that he does subscribe to the

The owner and publisher of the Elkhart (Kan.) Tri-State News pose of books to last, rather than said that "chemurgy is the real to form the mulch out of which hope of the lumber industry as well as all other phases of American agriculture. In no other field who will strenuously object to has the science of chemurgy made greater strides than in the field of tree products.

"The use of lignins, formerly washed down the sewers of paper mills and now saved by exploding wood fibres, has opened a great of these names may seem out field of synthetic and pressed wood, while the uses of wood Mr. Adams' book is called "The wastes for both alcohol and su-

Shape of Books to Come." By gars is in its infancy." this he means the shape of fic-The midwest rancher said the tion to come, since hardly any farmer and stockman also had consideration is given the rest of turned to farm chemurgy which the literary field except poetry, he described as "the use of farm and that briefly. Mr. Adams holds surpluses-grain, fibre and animal a very high opinion of Elizabeth -through chemical process for Madox Roberts and of Ellen finished products other than food." Glasgow, which is not remark-The club's session, at the Marion able. His opinion of Steinbeck hotel, was the third of its initial is, perhaps, a little higher than season.

Scout Awards Given at Camp Mr. Adams states his likes and dislikes much better than I can restate them. I do not think his Twenty-three members of Scout conclusion that the fiction of the troop 3, led by Scoutmaster Bob future, meaning postwar fiction, Batdorf and accompanied by Paul will be more "affirmative" is Deuber, spent the week end at the necessarily valid, but I do think Smith Creek camp. A camp fire that Mr. Adams' wishful thinkrevue was held Friday night; ing along that line is an impor- hikes, and an investure service and award ceremony constituted Saturday's program, and a church

ture. Of course the original idea service, hiking, tracking and nature service were held Sunday of collecting something for support of general government out Patrol leader certificates were of operations of commercial us- awarded Oren du Chein, Darrell ers of highways is out, because Girod, Martin Knittel and Jerry the people (foolishly in my judg- Boyer. Den chief certificates went ment) passed a constitutional to Glen Kleen, Art Jess, Gennett amendment capturing for high- Elerly and Bob Miller, and paper way uses every penny that may drive lapel pins were given Clifbe collected from motor vehicles | ford Girod, Oren du Chein, Bob or for use of highways. But it Millen, Jerry Boyer, Bob Dyer, will be a step forward if the bur- Kenneth Dresner, Richard Magurden of this support may be more en, Gilbert Woods and Martin Knittel.

Stevens Diamonds - Watches Jewelry Are You a Puzzled Santa Claus? then you should see the many beauti-ful and lasting gifts at Stevens & Son which include: Diamonds, Watches, Rings, Sil-verware, Costume Jewelry and Glassware! WE ENGRAVE GIFTS IN OUR STORE

(radical czarist leadership) so "THE YOUNG IDEA"

ean war map as the first December week opened was west of the Danube below Budapest. The Rusthe rea 01 A unists as persons bent on alienating our Rus-Do sian ally were not completely informed. For it is sian triple-threat sweep beyond that river in west-ern Hungary was moving at a pace which indiclear in the light of the soviet foreign policy state-ment that these critics were no more likely to incated nazi-Hungarian forces confronting it either too weak to resist effectively whichever way red jure Russo-American relations than were the au-thors of articles in the official soviet paper Iz-vestia which criticized American republicans.--Eu-gene Register-Guardarmy spearheads drive, or virtual abandonment by the nazis of divisions still retreating from the Bal on penins wear on roads and bridges regardless of whether the load consists of logs, gravel, sheep or cement. One virtue of the report is that the scale of fees may be altered from time to time as conditions warrant, without any need for tearing down the whole struc-"That's my neighbor's boy-I talked him out of buying a cornet!"