5 Federal Reserve Bank Heads Named

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Five new directors of federal reserve bank branches were named today. They include John M. McGregor, Hooper, Wash., Seattle branch federal reserve bank, of San Francisco.

Mrs. C. P. Bishop, who died Sunday morning at her Court street home. She was 87 years old a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Charles P. Bishop Salem Resident 54 Years; Active in Community Life

Mrs. Charles P. Bishop, who died at her home Sunday morning, was born November 29, 1857, to Thomas and Ann Silingay Kay at Shipley, Yorkshire, England.

In 1859, as Fannie Kay, she came to Trenton, N. J., with her mother to join her father, who had preceded them to America two years before to take employment at his trade as a woolen weaver.

Again they followed the father, this time to Oregon in 1864, and this time with a younger brother, Thomas B. Kay. They settled in Brownsville where Kay was employed as an overseer at the Brownsville Woolen Mills. The trip was made by way of Panama, on the first train on the railroad across the isthmus.

In 1876, Fannie Kay was married to Charles P. Bishop at Brownsville. Their 65th wedding anniversary was celebrated in 1941, just a few weeks prior to Mr. Bishop's death.

In 1890, the Bishops came to Salem to join Mrs. Bishop's father in establishing the Thomas B. Kay Woolen Mills. Bishop gave his personal attention to the purchase and operation of the retail store which still bears his name.

Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, Clarence M., Roy T., both of Portland, and Robert C. The latter left two sons, Robert C. now of Portland, and Charles Kay of Washougal, Wash. All are engaged in the woolen industry in Oregon and Washington.

Other grandchildren are Jane Bishop Reville, Washington, D.C.; L. T. Thomas H. Bishop with the army air corps; Pfc. William H. Bishop now in France; Cpl. Clarence Morton Bishop in the U. S. marine corps at Guam, and Broughton Bishop, a student at Andover, Mass. There are five great grandchildren. Mrs. Bishop also is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lenore Roberts of Portland, and a nephew and nieces in Salem, Errol Kay, Mrs. Hollis Huntington and Mrs. K. H. Pickens.

Mrs. Bishop was active in affairs of the community and state. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church for over 50 years and active in the WCTU. It was at her home that the Salem Women's club was organized, and with Mrs. R. S. Wallace she

Yank Planes Hit Iwo Jima Isle 24th Day

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Honolulu, Jan. 1.—(AP) Iwo Jima, Japanese island base on the road to Tokyo, was hammered Saturday by Pacific strategic air force Liberator bombers in their 24th consecutive daily strike against that volcanic island, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported today.

The same day rocket firing marine Mitchell bombers hit a small coastal cargo ship near the Bonin islands, north of Iwo. The vessel was left dead in the water.

In the Palau islands marine fighter-bombers strafed ammunition dumps and supply areas on Babelthup.

Marine fighter planes sank four launches near Woleai in the western Carolines.

Strategic Yap island, at the western end of the Carolines, was blasted by marine Avengers.

Rota island, in the Marianas south of the American B-29 Sainpain base, was strafed by marine Corsairs.

Marine bombers and fighters continued their neutralization raids on Japanese bases in the they spread weight enough on the ice?" someone wondered out loud. This was translated into action.

Before dawn, the platoon of infantry had crossed the "floating" footbridge which was resting neatly atop the ice, and the outpost was established.

This story should end here, but it doesn't. The Germans attacked again today and drove the platoon off the ridge. They had to retreat across the river.

But when the Germans reached the river, the bridge was gone. They also discovered the ice wasn't strong enough to support attacking infantry columns.

The engineer company had found it sufficiently strong for them to roll up the "magic carpet" bridge behind them.

Andrew Stark Dies Sunday

Andrew J. Stark, 97, 742 North Commercial, died at a local hospital late Sunday. He was a member of the Lutheran church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mabel Hauser and Mrs. Lillian Crawford, both of Salem, one son, Walter Stark, also of Salem, 12 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

Funeral announcements will be made later by the Howell-Edwards funeral home.

30th Governor of Wisconsin Inaugurated

Two Salem Youths Receive Highest Award in Scouting

Two Salem youths who today wear the Eagle Scout badge, highest award in scouting, earned and received during 1944, represent years of steady application in the arts and crafts, the studies and hobbies embraced by the Boy Scout movement. Scout Executive Lyle Leighton said Monday.

Harry Wiedmaier, Salem high school senior and member of Sea

Scout ship in South Carolina, where the family lived for a while after his father had enlisted. W. Harry Wiedmaier, now a first lieutenant in the service of supply, European theatre, wrote a letter to serve as his proxy, which was read at the ceremony in which young Wiedmaier was made an Eagle Scout.

To Enter Service
Young Wiedmaier expects to follow 43 alumni of his Sea Scout ship into the service following his graduation from high school in June. All but three of his predecessors have entered the navy.

Skipper of the ship is Ted Roake, who has served in that capacity the last five years and has been active in scouting for more than 20 years.

From Deaf School
Royal Teets, member of troop 14 of the state school for the deaf, joined the troop May 21, 1941, as a member of the Pine patrol. His advancement has been steady and rapid. He became a second class scout in November, 1941; first class in January, 1943; Star scout in May, 1943; and a life scout in February, 1944. He joined the senior unit of Explorer Scouts in 1944 after serving as patrol leader of the Bear patrol for almost two years.

Although he has been totally deaf since he was 18 months old, 15-year-old Royal earned membership in the Order of the Arrow, national honor camper group, after his week at Camp Pioneer last summer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Teets, route two, Salem.

Troop 14 at the deaf school has had 20 other Eagle Scouts over a nine-year period. Tom Ulmer, scoutmaster, is an Eagle and a member of the Order of the Arrow.

Military Funeral Set For Capt. Schoenfeld

CORVALLIS, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A military funeral for Capt. Franklin Schoenfeld, killed in a plane mishap in Ohio, will be held here Wednesday at 3 p. m. in the Mayflower chapel.

Capt. Schoenfeld was the son of William A. Schoenfeld, dean and director of agriculture at Oregon State college. The body is en route here under military escort. The parents, brother, widow and two children survive.

Retiring C. of C. President Calls for Renewal Efforts To Develop Valley Sector

"Representing as it does the second largest city in the state, the chamber must continue to hold its gains and further increase its membership and scope of service," Carl W. Hogg, retiring president of the Salem chamber of commerce, said in an annual report issued today.

"Because of the expansion of the Pacific Northwest, and the numerous opportunities for further development of Salem certain to come in the post-war period, the chamber will have to double its present size in the next few years.

"In this report we have endeavored to present the fact that the Salem chamber of commerce is a business organization. The enlarged support given the chamber has demonstrated that the larger and stronger financial support given to it, the more effective become its results. The chamber has grown out of the old social type of structure which characterized it a few years ago, and has truly become a service organization.

"Other cities are not standing still, and we here in Salem cannot mark time in the face of industrial expansion. One of the forward steps taken by the chamber has been its leadership in establishment of a planning commission through which a greater Salem post-war improvement program can be developed to provide jobs, chart prospective expansion of the city and suburban areas, and survey the needs and requirements for new public buildings and projects."

In a foreword to the report, Manager Clay Cochran pointed out that while 1944 proved a highly successful year of accomplishment an "even greater program is ahead."

"Realizing strength that comes from unity," the report asserts, "the chamber of commerce took a leading role in the formulation of the Pacific Northwest Light Metals committee. . . . We are now endeavoring to bring into the field new industries such as light metals, aluminum, plastics and others. The lumber industry in the northwest is now taking on new expansions in modern fields with the development of alcohol-from-wood and plastic plants."

The planning commission under the chairmanship of C. B. McCullough proposes to meet the challenging problems of future development.

It comprehends development of an adequate system of transportation; solution of the parking problem; an adequate program of public buildings, schools, hospitals, auditorium, city hall and courthouse; an adequate system of public parks, adequate playgrounds, extended sewerage and water supply, stream purification, a study of the municipal terrain and zoning for industry, and an overall land use plan for Marion county and the entire region.

Industrial expansion was termed in the report "the chamber's leading activity." Plants brought to Salem through the instrumentality of the organization, it said, included the alumina-from-clay plant, now under construction at a cost of some $4,500,000 and employing approximately 450 persons, and Oregon Flax Textiles, Inc. The chamber also assisted in bringing to Salem a number of war industries and war contracts for existing firms.

In addition, the chamber played an important part in procuring workers for Salem canneries, enlisted labor for harvesting of crops, arranged bus transportation for 3000 workers employed at Camp Adair and Portland but living in Salem, and took an active interest in establishing a direct stage service between Salem and Salt Lake City, it was declared.

Attention is called in the report to the chamber's efforts in behalf of the development and expansion of agriculture in the Willamette valley. A special interest has been shown in reclamation, flood control and irrigation, and the chamber has participated in national, state and district meetings. It has assisted in the work of getting Federal approval and appropriations for the Detroit dam for which $20,000,000 has been ap-

Three Salem Hospitals on Approved List

Carl W. Hogg

Clay Cochran

War difficulties have shown hospitals what great reliance can be placed upon their personnel and communities in trying times, making it possible for them to continue to maintain high standards of service to patients, declares Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, chairman of the board of regents of the American College of Surgeons, in announcing results of the 27th annual hospital standardization survey.

Three Salem hospitals are listed among those meeting the American College's requirements: Oregon State hospital, which is also approved for residencies or fellowships by the Council on Medical Education and Hospital, American Medical association; the state tuberculosis hospital and Salem General hospital.

The requirements which the American College of Surgeons considers fundamental to good hospital care, and upon which it bases eligibility for approval, are summarized by Dr. MacEachern as follows:

1. Modern physical plant, assuring the patient safety, comfort, and efficient care.
2. Clearly defined organization, duties, responsibilities, and relations.
3. Carefully selected governing board with complete and supreme authority.
4. Competent, well trained superintendent responsible to the governing board.
5. Adequate and efficient personnel, properly organized and competently supervised.
6. Organized medical staff of ethical, competent physicians and surgeons.
7. Adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent medical supervision.
8. Accurate, complete medical records, readily accessible for research and follow-up.
9. Regular group conferences of the administrative staff and of the medical staff for reviewing activities and results so as to maintain a high plane of scientific efficiency.
10. A humanitarian spirit—the primary consideration being the best care of the patient.

Relief From Tax Depends On Jap Loss

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Any general relief from record wartime tax burdens is impossible—until Japan as well as Germany is defeated, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes said today.

But Byrnes urged that congress enact immediately several tax revisions he said "will not materially reduce revenues but" will greatly encourage new enterprise and the expansion of existing enterprise. Such revisions, in his opinion, could become effective at the end of the war in Europe.

In his report to the president and congress, Byrnes foresaw no softening of taxes for the individual taxpayer until Japan falls and, predicting that postwar government expenditures will exceed prewar outlays many fold, he said the need for taxation will continue to be heavy even after the war.
