Vet Axeman Powerhouse Favored in No-Name Bee; Juniors Seek 11th Straight Victory in Starter

Basketball fur, ancient vintage No-Name league style, flies tonight at the Vik Villa when Eugene's stratospheric Axemen and Salem's rejuvenated Vikings toss respective winning streaks at each other in an eight o'clocker. The game, one of the topnotchers of the hoop season year in and year out since it offers Eugene vs. Salem and all

Slicker Meet Finals Due Next Weekend

Finding the sloshy course to his liking, 8-handicapped Don Hendrie slashed out a 36-41-77 to splash in ahead of the Men's club Medal tourney field over the weekend with a net 69 count. A step behind in second place was I. L. McLaughlin, a 40-41-82 shooter with an 11 handicap for a net 70. Twenty-eight players shot and chipped for the prizes.

The Federal league finals of the Winter Slicker meet were also finished up finally with the Ross Coppock - Russ Bonesteele duet emerging winner. Undefeated, they had only to see the John Heltzel-Frank Shafter team lose a point Sunday to take down the title. The Heltzel-Shafer entry suffered a 2 and 1 setback from Tom Wise and Vic Convey, the latter pinch-hitting for injured O. E. McCrary. Finals playoffs featuring American, National and Federal champs will start next weekend

But aspiring Gurnee is determined to prod the Villa back stop the state's prep sports heap and figures the way to reap dividends eventually is to keep the athletes busy in the experience department. . . .

Signs of the times, or, speaking of the basketball-for-everybody move at SHS, look at this concerning footballing: The 105,000 capacity Los Angeles Coliseum is thrown open every fall to playground kids, that is those of grammar school age, for the championship game of a touch tackle league sponsored jointly by the City Recreation department of LA, the Police department and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. The privilege of playing on the turn of the Coliseum keeps the kids enthralled from star to finish of their long schedule on smaller neighborhood playgrounds, and best of all, also keeps them occupied. The mayor and other dignitaries turn out just like it were a USC-UCLA biggie or a Rose Bowler and boys and girls from miles around scramble over the countless seats, never sitting in one place longer than three minutes.

Our village has no 105,000 capacity Coliseum, but the inviting Waters park pasture serves a similar purpose just as well come Junior baseball league time. San Francisco is thinking seriously of emulating the touch football program fostered in LA, for the Bay City fathers realize that no matter if it is the no bodily-contact touch football species, it nonetheless serves as top restraint to juvenile delinquency and forms the foundation for future varsity touchdowning. Touch tackle is the kindergarten of varsity football the same as is kids' softball to baseball.

Salem is on the right track with the annual Junior baseball movement'and wouldn't derail a single wheel should an autumn every-Saturday "Touch" grid loop for 8-15 year old kids be ushered in.

From the looks of a piece in the Oakland Tribune, Portland's Manager Marv Owen bit himself off a mouthful when he swapped (or mebbe it was the work of Overlord Bill Klepper) Norm DeWeese for Charley English. We intimated it here before via what little we know of the English baseball reputation. Says the piece: "Oakland bosses have been panned for trading Charley English to Portland for little known Norman DeWeese. In this criticism the casual fan has been aided by one or two writers who never look below the surfaceso intent are they in panning someone. In reality, the deal whereby English ceased to be an Oak was not the work of the Oak bosses, but aneger Dolph Camilli. He insisted that English be disposed of. In fact when the deal was made last season bringing English to the Oaks, Camilli accepted it with reluctance-let it be known he'd keep him Next for 'Cats fact when the deal was made last season bringing English to the Oaks, only for the balance of the season.

"The English case is one that goes deeper than appears on the surface. But, if you question Camilli's judgment and are listed among those who have yelled to the skies, try this suggestion: Ask any veteran Coast league manager or player whether or not Camilli was right in letting English get away."

Which adds up to a few bellyaches for Manager Owen and his Beavers next summer, the way we see it.
