therman, then come a period when he was inflexible, then for a time we couldn't mention weather (military secret) and now again we hear from him daily, but can't take him too seriously. The other day, we had difficulty reading about how there would be only light showers, because the pouring rain kept us from seeing, today I sit in the bright sunshine, reading about the cloudy weather we're having.

Post war plan. . . If another war threatens we are sure of one thing, we are going to rush out and marry a plumber and keep him at home. Seems to me there is nothing around the house that's gone so definitely and frequently wrong as plumbing, and just when you can't beg or borrow a plumber when you need him.

Different story. . . Last week we didn't run a "Don't look now," but failed to find a rush of persons cancelling subscriptions, as there always is if we leave out Dagwood or Popeye.

Notes on the concert. . . It seems that William Primrose will remember Salem, he had a little difficulty sleeping. The legislators not only had all the bedrooms with bairns, but the atmosphere was pretty well occupied with sound waves all night. . . The accompanist is Belgian; his wife and son are in Switzerland. . . Primrose is shorter than he appeared on the stage. . . A lot of people got fooled, they went to the program, lukewarm and came away pretty well steamed up over the beauties of the viola as a solo instrument. . . One who wasn't fooled, was Mary Talmadge Hedrick, who has known a long time that she loves it.

Speaking of the weather. . . Was a time when you couldn't depend on the weather.

A daughter, Merrie Jill, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Craig Coyner at Salem Deaconess hospital on Friday night. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Cooper, Salem, and Mr. and Mrs. Craig Coyner Bend. The mother is the former Betty Cooper.
