"She Saved My Sight . . ."

PRIVATE JOHN J. TAGGART, combat engineer from New York City

"I'm a booby trap expert, but even the experts get knocked off.

I got mine in a preinvasion rehearsal in England. Someone blundered against a booby trap I was working on, and I got a piece of brass in my forehead and another in my left eye. They took me to an evacuation hospital, where an Army nurse gave me penicillin, stopped the bleeding, covered my eyes, and gave me pills to put me to sleep. But she did more than that; she saved my sight. Before I went to sleep I heard a medical officer commend her ingenuity. She had placed me flat in bed and propped my head in place by putting sandbags on either side so I couldn't move it. The doctor said she saved my sight because if I had moved my head, the piece of metal in my eye would have ripped my eye and they couldn't have saved it. I'll always remember

Stocks Drop For 5th Day

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 -(AP)- The stock market suffered its fifth successive stumble today when a half - hearted forenoon recovery move failed and relatively heavy selling of rail and industrial leaders broke out in the final hour.

Timid bidding of the morning was attributed to the thought that the recent substantial reaction had discounted to some extent a possible quick Nazi collapse with its resultant transitional problems for business. The rapid Russian drive toward Berlin, however, revived bearish sentiment.

Volume was 1,365,850 shares compared with 1,467,370 Monday. The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .3 of a point at Prominent on the retreat were Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Union Pacific, US Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, United Aircraft and Westinghouse.

Wheat showed considerable strength at the opening, deferred deliveries being up as much as a cent over the previous close on commission house and professional buying, some of which was attributed to milling interests.
