

Limitation for State Salary Is Proposed

A bill to limit the salaries of all state officers, elective or appointive, to not more than that paid the governor (currently $7500) was introduced into the house Monday by Rep. Joseph E. Harvey (r) of Portland (HB 200).

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 21 Compensation — Employment Expenses Certain expenses incurred by you as an employee are, in general, deductible items in computing taxable income.

Monitor Unit Has Extension Project Work

MONITOR—The extension unit of the Elliot Prairie Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. Carrie Tyler Thursday afternoon with six members and Janet C. Taylor, Clackamas county home demonstration agent from Oregon City, present.

Labor Is Part Of Industry

The Oregon state federation of labor, in letters to the 43rd legislative assembly, suggested Monday that legislators could aid "in promoting our crusade" to have the word "industry" utilized to mean both labor and management.

Measure Would Oust State Aeronautic Code

The entire aeronautic code of Oregon, with the exception of the provision for licensing of aviators, would be repealed by a bill (SB 124) introduced Monday by Sen. I. N. Jones, republican from Grant, Harney and Malheur counties.

HOUSE BILL PASSED The house passed and sent on to the senate Monday an amendment to permit employes of the state and other public agencies to be precinct committeemen and members of party central committees and conventions.

In the Capitol Limelight

Debs incurred by the weekend Willamette glee were paid off in the legislative assembly Monday when a sheeted "Diogenes," in the person of Prunyn Schappoher, arose in the gallery to proclaim while the house was in session — that he was "sorry" he couldn't find the proverbial honest man there, and blushing Alice Fay Daughtery, junior, presented a milkshake to Senate President Howard Beiton on the rostrum.

Gov. Earl Snell was not so nettled. He good-naturedly purchased a corset from a blushing co-ed, then reportedly spent a portion of the afternoon informing feminine members of his staff that he couldn't guarantee it as the pre-war article all would willingly have bought.

Gladys Selby, member of the staff in the enrolling room of the house, was called to Oregon City the past weekend by the death of her father-in-law, Edward C. Selby, pioneer citizen of that city.

An attractive oil painting of the late Sen. Charles McNary was presented to the Oregon house of representatives Monday by Mrs. A. Rose Twing, postmaster at Do-rena near Cottage Grove, who formerly had a studio in San Francisco. The painting was made from a picture sent to Mrs. Twing by Sen. Guy Cordon. The artist said she never had met Senator McNary but regarded him with high esteem. Mrs. Twing was introduced to the house by Rep. John R. Snellstrom of Lane county. Speaker Eugene Marsh, in accepting the painting, expressed his appreciation and said it would be properly displayed.

Rep. E. C. Allen, who has been ill in Portland since shortly after the 43rd session began, was at his seat in the house Monday. The Portland democrat said he was returning to a hospital for a checkup but hoped to return later this week.

The house Monday took proper cognizance of the 36th birthday of Rep. John Steelhammer (r) of Marion county. On his desk was an attractive floral tribute of roses, provided by his secretaries.

From the floor, Rep. H. F. Chindgren of Clackamas county moved that the house "give him a hand," and at the conclusion of the applause Speaker Eugene Marsh wished him "many happy returns of the day." The birthday was on Saturday.

Circuit Court Judge Duncan Cleans House

Housecleaning of the circuit docket was held Monday by Judge George R. Duncan. Fifty of 97 cases called were held valid, at least temporarily, and 47 were dismissed. Thirty of the 50 continued cases will remain on the docket indefinitely for trial, two were continued until February 19 and two until March 5.

Sixteen cases were held over until the return of Attorneys Custer Ross, George Rhoten and Walter Winslow, all of whom are on trial of a case in Oregon City before Judge E. M. Page.

The cases which follow and which were dismissed Monday are legal matters which died for lack of prosecution, some started as early as six years ago. The dismissed cases are:

ODT Request Cancels Meet

Plans for the third annual Institute of Citizenship to be conducted on the Willamette campus for high school juniors throughout the state were cancelled upon the request of the office of defense transportation.

Second casualty of the new ODT policy banning conventions of all types was the annual Methodist Youth conclave scheduled for this next weekend in Eugene.

Suspension of both assemblies is only temporary.

Rep. E. C. Allen, who has been ill in Portland since shortly after the 43rd session began, was at his seat in the house Monday. The Portland democrat said he was returning to a hospital for a checkup but hoped to return later this week.

"Righteous prayer is a very effective weapon for destroying evil, whatever its form. No evil forces can stand against a prayer-inspired people."

"The kind of prayer that I come to talk to you about is not the prayer of belief or of a blind faith. It is the prayer that flows from a spiritual understanding of God as we understand it in Christian Science. Our Way-shower, Christ Jesus, said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." We might say, "By its answered prayers ye shall know practical Christianity."

"Spiritual receptivity is essential to quick healing. No one here questions the impossibility of putting anything into closed hands. Let, how utterly simple it is to fill those same hands when they are wide open. The thoughts of many individuals are tightly bound by beliefs of unadjustability, unyielding and unresponsive self-satisfaction, and by unwillingness to accept something different from what they have heretofore believed.

"In conclusion, may I ask you to depart in quiet thought on this lecture. Let us go to our homes and pray as we never have before until we are satisfied that we have humbly done our full part in supporting our brothers, whether they be struggling with beliefs of sickness, sin, or oppression here, or whether they be our boys, scattered over the whole world, who are going forward to represent God, divine Principle, and His people, among all nations."

STAFF SERGEANT JACOB PETERSEN, aerial gunner from Central Islip, Long Island, N. Y.

"There were 130 Jap Zeros pouring into our bomber formation on the first raid on Truk. It was a hot fight and one of the Jap 20-mm shells hit me in my right leg. It felt like a thousand hornets were stinging me. I stayed at my gun until the fight was over, and then went out like a light. They operated on me at a surgical station on one of the small islands. The next day, a little Army nurse came through the combat zone in a hospital plane to bring me out. She was right there with me all the time during the long flight to the evacuation hospital. I was in agony, and it was the work she did for me that helped me through those first tough hours. Since then I've seen lots of Army nurses and they are doing everything in the world to help our wounded men. It's no picnic in the Pacific and I know they could use more nurses now."
